Aaron Wildavsky, chairman of the Nominating Committee, invites members to recommend candidates for 1968-69 Association offices. The elective officers are: President-Elect, three Vice-Presidents, Secretary, Treasurer, and eight members for two year terms on the Council.

Fenno, Jr., Political Science Department, University of Rochester, Rochester, New York; Harry Eckstein, Department of Politics, Princeton University, Princeton, New Jersey; Leon D. PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO CONSTITUTION

The Caucus for a New Political Science, organized at the 1967 Annual Meeting in Chicago and chaired by Mark Roelofs, New York University, has proposed an amendment to Article II of the Association Constitution. The proposed amendment consists of a sentence (italicized below) to be added to Paragraph 2, Article II, so it would read:

2. The Association as such is non-partisan. It will not support political parties or candidates. It will not commit its members on questions of public policy nor take positions not immediately concerned with its direct purpose as stated above. But the Association nonetheless actively encourages in its membership and its journal research in and concern for significant contemporary political and social problems and policies, however controversial and subject to partisan discourse in the community at large these may be.

Other Constitutional amendments are being discussed, and it is likely that several additional amendments will be submitted before the Annual Meeting.

Article IX of the Constitution of the American Political Science Association, which governs amendments to the Constitution, provides:

Amendments to this Constitution shall be proposed by the Council and adopted by a majority vote of the members present at any regular or special meeting of the Association.

Ten members of the Association may propose amendments to this Constitution. Such proposed amendments shall be referred to the Council for consideration, and by them referred to the Association for its action thereon at the next Annual Business Meeting with such recommendations as the Council may see fit to make.

PERSONNEL SERVICE

The Association Personnel Service is open to all Association members for $6 per calendar year. This cost covers printing, mailing and processing of referrals. Ten newsletters are sent each year to those members who are registered, listing employment openings. These positions include teaching, research and administration. The number of openings listed has been constantly increasing the last few years. Over 60 positions were listed in the last newsletter.

For further information and registration forms, write to the Director of the Personnel Service at Association headquarters.

REGISTRY OF RETIRED PROFESSORS

As an adjunct to the Personnel Service, a Registry of Retired Professors has been established in response to members' requests. This Registry will serve as an information exchange for retired professors interested in teaching one (or more) courses on a one semester or one year basis, and institutions interested in employing them. Retired professors interested in registration should write to the Association for the fact sheet and one page forms. Departments interested in employing retired professors should also write to the Director of the Personnel Service stating their requirements.

STATE LEGISLATIVE SERVICE PROJECT

In March, the Association and the Louisiana State Legislative Council will co-sponsor orientation sessions for newly elected members of the Louisiana Legislature. The sessions, to be conducted under auspices of the State Legislative Service Project, will be led by senior legislators and other experts in the legislative process. Similar programs were co-sponsored by the Association in 1966 and 1967 in Illinois, Iowa and Wisconsin.

Serving as the Association's representative and working with the Louisiana legislature to organize the program will be James H. Chubbuck, Director, Institute of Politics, New Orleans. The orientation sessions will emphasize the immediate practical problems of the legislative newcomer—committee assignment and service, relationships with party leadership and colleagues, parliamentary procedure and the conduct of legislative business, and constituency education and service. A number of political scientists from the state's colleges and universities will be invited to attend as observers.

Other political scientists representing the Association in the development of the state legislative service projects are: Samuel K. Gove, Institute of Government and Public Affairs, University of Illinois; Charles W. Wiggins, Department of Political Science, University of Iowa; and Wilder W. Crane, Jr., Department of Political Science, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

Under terms of the Ford Foundation grant which supports this program, the Association will establish state legislative service projects in about 25 states in the next five years.

STATE AND LOCAL INTERNSHIP PROGRAM

In December, the Association announced awards to support establishment of six new State and Local Government Internship Programs, to be administered by graduate departments of political science. This was the second group of awards made under the Association's new State and Local Government Internship Program, supported by the Ford Foundation and designed to encourage integration of internship into regular graduate instruction.

Seven programs were funded through the State and Local Government Internship Program in 1966. The 1967 awards, totaling $55,320, were distributed as follows: University of California (Davis), Paul E. Zinner; University of California (Santa Barbara), R. J. Snow; Case Western Reserve University, Louis H. Masotti and William P. Irwin; Indiana University, James B. Cristoph; and West Virginia University, Thomas M. Drake and David G. Temple. In all, 28 proposals—including requests for renewals submitted by departments funded in 1966—were submitted to the Association for consideration for this year's awards.

All decisions regarding funding were made by the program's Advisory Committee, composed of Charles Hagan, chairman, University of Houston; Chester Earle, American University; Franklin Burdette, University of Maryland; Thomas Flinn, Ohio State University; Donald Herzberg, Eagleton Institute of Politics; and Joseph Cooper, Rice University.

CANADIAN—U. S. LEGISLATIVE EXCHANGE PROGRAM

The Association has received a grant from the Donner Foundation to establish a Canadian-U.S. Legislative Exchange Program. The program is designed to develop a more concrete understanding of mutual governmental problems among individuals who participate in the legislative processes of the United States and Canada. It will provide an opportunity for Canadian Members of Parliament and staff, as well as U.S. Congressional staff members, to observe and participate in the procedures of the legislative bodies of the other country.

Bipartisan advisory groups will be established in both Canada and the United States, in cooperation with the Canadian Political Science Association. It is expected that Members of the Canadian Parliament will participate for periods up to six weeks, while the staff members from each country would be eligible for up to six months.
