

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

TALIA BUGEL is assistant professor of Spanish at Indiana University–Purdue University, Fort Wayne. She is a linguist with interests in the fields of sociolinguistics—specifically, the study of language attitudes, language contact (Spanish and Portuguese), language policy and planning, and critical discourse analysis—and critical applied linguistics, the training of language teachers with sociocultural and political awareness. Her work has appeared in several peer-reviewed journals, such as Trabalhos em Lingüística Aplicada, Studies in Hispanic and Lusophone Linguistics, Language Policy, and Revista Internacional de Lingüística Iberoamericana (forthcoming).

MARIA DEL CARMEN CABA PÉREZ es doctora del área economía financiera y contabilidad por la Universidad de Granada y profesor titular de universidad en la Universidad de Almería. Actualmente imparte docencia de contabilidad pública y contabilidad financiera, centrando sus investigaciones en el ámbito de la transparencia informativa. Ha publicado múltiples artículos tanto en revistas nacionales (Papeles de Economía, Revista de Contabilidad, Presupuesto y Gasto Público) como internacionales indexadas en el Journal Citation Reports (International Review of Administrative Sciences, American Review of Public Administration, Public Administration and Development, Journal of Management Research and Practice, Online Information Review, Innovar Journal, Government Information Quarterly, International Journal of Public Sector Management). Asimismo, ha participado en libros evaluados por el Book Citation Index, tales como Citizens and E-Government: Evaluating Policy and Management, Electronic Governance and Cross Boundary Collaboration y Comparative E-Government.

GERMÁN CAMPOS-MUÑOZ is a PhD student in the Department of Comparative Literature at Pennsylvania State University. His research and teaching interests include mythology and mythography, classical philology and textual criticism, founding narratives of the Americas, and Latin American cinema. He is currently completing a dissertation on the presence of the classical tradition in Latin American literatures.

RACHEL CORR is associate professor of anthropology at the Wilkes Honors College of Florida Atlantic University. She has conducted ethnographic fieldwork in Ecuador since 1990 and was awarded Fulbright IIE and Fulbright-Hays grants to conduct research in highland Ecuador. She has published articles in Journal of Latin American and Caribbean Anthropology and contributed a chapter to Millennial Ecuador: Critical Essays on Cultural Transformations and Social Dynamics, edited by Norman E. Whitten Jr. Her book Ritual and Remembrance in the Ecuadorian Andes (2010) focuses on collective memory and ritual in the indigenous parish of Salasaca. Her current research focuses on race, ethnicity, and cultural change in colonial Ambato. This marks her first publication in the field of ethnohistory.

CHRISTINE RUFINO DABAT teaches and researches at the Federal University of Pernambuco on the history of sugar production, with an emphasis on labor relationships. Her book Moradores de Engenho, a study of rural workers in Pernambuco's Latin American Research Review, Vol. 47, Special Issue. © 2012 by the Latin American Studies Association.

sugarcane region, will soon appear in a second edition. Her translations of a group of Sidney Mintz's essays were published as O poder amargo do açúcar. She recently edited issues of the journals Clio and Cadernos de História.

MARIA DEL MAR GÁLVEZ RODRÍGUEZ es licenciada en ciencias económicas y empresariales por la Universidad de Almería y diploma de estudios avanzados (DEA) en la Universidad de Almería. Actualmente es becaria de investigación en la Universidad de Almería. Su trabajo se centra en su tesis doctoral que versa sobre la transparencia informativa y la rendición de cuentas de las organizaciones no-gubernamentales. Entre sus publicaciones están "Determining Factors in Online Transparency of NGOs: A Spanish Case Study", publicado en VOLUNTAS: International Journal of Voluntary and Nonprofit Organizations, y "Responsabilidad social y transparencia on-line de las ONG: Análisis del caso español", publicado en la revista CIRIEC-España: Revista de Economía Pública, Social y Cooperativa. Asimismo, ha presentado trabajos en congresos como "NGOs' Accountability Mechanisms: What Is the Way Forward for European NGOs?" en el 28º Congreso Internacional del International Center of Research and Information on the Public, Social, and Cooperative Economy celebrado en Berlín.

ERIKA D. GRAJEDA is currently pursuing a PhD in sociology at the University of Texas at Austin. She holds a master of arts in Latin American studies (from UT-Austin) and a bachelor of arts in Spanish and Latin American studies. Her primary research interests include urban sociology, housing, and family demography. She is project leader for the Santo Domingo (Dominican Republic) study of the Latin American Housing Network (www.lahn.utexas.org) and was a team participant in the fieldwork relating to the Mexico City and Monterrey city studies.

MANUEL LÓPEZ GODOY es profesor titular de universidad del área economía financiera y contabilidad en la Universidad de Almería. Actualmente imparte docencia de mercados financieros y dirección financiera, centrandose sus investigaciones en el ámbito del tercer sector, fundamentalmente en el ámbito de las cooperativas y organizaciones no-gubernamentales. Recibió el Premio Arco Iris a la mejor investigación cooperativa en el año 2006. Ha publicado artículos en revistas de prestigio como Revista de Contabilidad, CIRIEC-España: Revista de Economía Pública, Social y Cooperativa, Actualidad Financiera, Partida Doble, y Revista Europea de Dirección y Economía de la Empresa y ha publicado libros tales como Control económico en las cooperativas: Propuesta de un modelo basado en indicadores.

MARIANO DANIEL PERELMAN es licenciado en antropología social (Universidad de Buenos Aires) y doctor de la Universidad de Buenos Aires (con orientación en antropología). Es becario pos doctoral del Consejo Nacional de Investigaciones Científicas y Técnicas (CONICET) con sede en el Instituto de Investigaciones Gino Germani perteneciente a la Facultad de Ciencias Sociales de la Universidad de Buenos Aires. Forma parte del Área de Estudios Urbanos del mismo instituto. Es profesor ayudante de primera del Departamento de Antropología de la Facultad de Filosofía y Letras de la UBA. Se especializa en temas relacionados a la antropología urbana y del trabajo, en especial a los procesos de pauperización, las transformaciones en el mercado de trabajo y acceso a la ciudad en Buenos Aires.

MICHAEL J. PISANI is professor of international business at Central Michigan University and an affiliated faculty member with the Julian Samora Research Institute at Michigan State University. He received his AB (Latin American history and international relations) from the University of California, Davis; his MA (Latin American studies) and MBA (international management) from the University of New Mexico; and his PhD (international business) from the University of Texas–Pan American. His research interests include the intersection of international business and development, cross-border business and economic phenomena, and entrepreneurship and microenterprise development primarily within Central America and the US–Mexico borderlands. His research has appeared in numerous journals including Business Horizons, Entrepreneurship & Regional Development, Estudios Interdisciplinarios de América Latina y El Caribe, International Business Review, International Trade Journal, Journal of Business Ethics, Journal of Borderlands Studies, Management International Review, Review of Development Economics, Social Science Quarterly, and Thunderbird International Business Review. Pisani is coauthor of the forthcoming book Over, Under, and Around: The Informal and Underground Economy of the South Texas Border.

KAREN VIEIRA POWERS is a guest scholar at University of Arizona's Center for Latin American Studies. She is an ethnohistorian who has studied the Andes for more than thirty years and has spent sixteen years working in the Arizona university system. She is the author of two award-winning books, Andean Journeys: Migration, Ethnogenesis, and the State in Colonial Quito (1995), which was awarded the Howard F. Cline Memorial Prize in 1997 by the Conference on Latin American History, and Women in the Crucible of Conquest: The Gendered Genesis of Spanish American Society, 1500–1600 (2005), which won the Thomas McGann Award in 2006 from the Rocky Mountain Council on Latin American Studies. She has been the recipient of research grants from the Fulbright Commission, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Social Science Research Council, and the Wenner-Grenn Foundation for Anthropological Research.

THOMAS D. ROGERS, from Emory University's History Department, works at the intersection between labor and environmental history, with a focus on twentieth-century Brazil. His book The Deepest Wounds: A Labor and Environmental History of Sugar in Northeast Brazil (2010) describes the mutually transformative relationship between sugarcane agriculture and cane workers' lives. He is currently researching Brazil's first ethanol boom and its links to hunger and environmental destruction.

DAMIÁN SETTON es investigador del Consejo Nacional de Investigaciones Científicas y Técnicas (CONICET), doctor en ciencias sociales por la Universidad de Buenos Aires, magíster en ciencias sociales por la Universidad de Buenos Aires y licenciado en sociología. Es miembro del área Sociedad, Cultura y Religión, del Consejo Nacional de Investigaciones Científicas y Técnicas (CONICET), y coordinador del Núcleo de Estudios Judíos del Instituto de Desarrollo Económico y Social. Es docente de la carrera de sociología de la UBA. Se ha especializado en estudios sobre la ortodoxia judía en la Argentina.

PETER M. WARD holds the C. B. Smith Sr. Centennial Chair in US-Mexico Relations and is professor in the Department of Sociology and in the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas at Austin. He was formerly director of the Mexican Center at the Teresa Lozano Long Institute of Latin American Studies and served as executive editor of the Latin American Research Review between 2002 and 2007. He is author or coauthor of seventeen books and more than one hundred journal articles and book chapters on low-income housing, land markets, social policy, democratization and governance, Mexican politics, and megacities (most notably Mexico City). Among his most recent book publications on housing are Housing, the State and the Poor: Policy and Practice in Latin American Cities (1985; reprinted in 2009, with Alan Gilbert); Mexico City: The Production and Reproduction of an Urban Environment (1998; 2004 edition [Spanish]); Governance in the Americas: Decentralization Democracy and Subnational Government in the USA, Mexico, and Brazil (2008, with Robert Wilson, Peter Spink, and Victoria Rodríguez), and Metropolitan Governance in the Federalist Americas: Case Studies and Strategies for Equitable and Integrated Development (2012, with Peter Spink and Robert Wilson). He is the coordinator of the multicity Latin American Housing Network (www.lahn.utexas.org).

DAVID W. YOSKOWITZ is professor of economics and is endowed chair for socio-economics at the Harte Research Institute for Gulf of Mexico Studies at Texas A&M University–Corpus Christi. His research focuses on environmental and social issues. He is currently conducting a socioeconomic assessment for the UN Industrial Development Organization's Gulf of Mexico–Large Marine Ecosystem project, looking at the reliance that coastal communities in Mexico and the United States have on this body of water. His work appears in International Labour Review, Quarterly Review of Economics and Finance, Journal of Microfinance, Social Science Quarterly, and Journal of Borderlands Studies, among others.