Medicine and Society in Wakefield and Huddersfield 1780–1870

HILARY MARLAND

By selecting Wakefield and Huddersfield as contrasting types of Northern towns, and examining in detail their systems of medical care, Dr Marland has written a local history which says something important about the country as a whole.

'... a readable and important addition to publications on the topic.'

Morbid Appearances

The Anatomy of Pathology in the Early Nineteenth Century

RUSSELL C. MAULITZ

Morbid Appearances traces the emergence of pathological anatomy in France and England in the early years of the nineteenth century in political, institutional and administrative contexts. The author examines the forces that moved these medical ideas and techniques across national boundaries and from one culture to another. 277 pp. 1988 0 521 32828 4 £32.50 net

The French Psychiatric Profession in the Nineteenth Century

JAN GOLDSTEIN

Within the Western medical community, French physicians played the single most vigorous role in constituting and legitimatising the science of psychiatry. This book shows how and why they succeeded. Jan Goldstein presents psychiatry at once as a body of scientific knowledge, a new profession formed within the relatively fluid class society created by the Revolution, and a manifestation of the bureaucratic state.

Ordered to Care

The Dilemma of American Nursing, 1850-1945

SUSAN M. REVERBY

An engaging story of the problems of the nursing profession in America, covering the ideology, practice and efforts at reform of both trained and untrained nurses between 1850 and 1945. The development of American nursing is placed alongside the development of women's history and the social history of health care. 286 pp. 1987 0 521 25604 6 £25.00 net

The Journal of Medicine and Philosophy continues to explore the shared themes and concerns of philosophy and the medical sciences. Not since Galen's time has the contact between medicine and philosophy been so widespread; the journal seeks to meet the challenge of this dialogue by providing a forum for philosophers, medical practitioners, educationists, and humanists to examine the problems and controversies stimulated by the engagement of these two disciplines.

The range of issues having philosophical import for medical research and practice is enormous. New developments in medical technology and expertise frequently create scientific and humanistic dilemmas, and medical decision-making always involves philosophical presuppositions. Moreover, the concerns of philosophy often converge with those of medicine, as philosophers attempt to understand the nature of knowledge and the human condition. The purpose of the journal is to analyze this multifaceted relationship and to raise its discussion to a responsible and intellectually rigorous level.
