

People in Political Science

Activities

Samuel H. Beer, Eaton Professor of the Science of Government Emeritus, Harvard University, has been appointed senior scholar at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars.

Robert E. Cleary, professor of public affairs, American University, has been elected president of the Cosmos Club (Washington, DC) for a one year term.

Robert E. Cleary

Milton F. Goldman, associate professor of political science, Northeastern University, gave a series of lectures at universities in Serbia and Kosovo on American policy regarding the former Yugoslavia in October 1996. The lectures were sponsored in part by the Institute of Social Sciences at the University of Belgrade and the United States Information Agency.

Mark Hall, assistant professor of political science, East Central University, was recently re-elected president of the Association for Scientific Study of Religion: Southwest.

Ibrahim Karawan, associate professor of political science, University of Utah, is returning to teach full time after a two year leave to work at the International Institute for Strategic Studies.

Clifford Orwin, professor of political science, University of Toronto, delivered the eighth of the American Enterprise Institute's 1996-97 Bradley Lectures in April. The title of his talk was "Moist Eyes: Political Tears from Fousseau to Clinton."

Dianne M. Pinderhughes, professor of political science, and director, Afro-American Studies and Research Program, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, has been appointed to the judicial nomination merit commission (central district) that will advise U.S. Senators Carol Mosely-Braun and Dick Durbin by identifying and making recommendations on the most qualified candidates to fill vacancies on federal courts in Illinois.

Dianne M. Pinderhughes

John Gerard Ruggie

John Gerard Ruggie, Burgess Professor of Political Science, Columbia University, has been appointed senior advisor to United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan. Ruggie will serve on the Secretary-General's executive staff at the rank of Assistant Secretary General and advise on strategic planning issues in the areas of United Nations-United States relations, institutional reforms, and relations with institutions of global civil society like corporations and universities.

Administrative Appointments

Barbara Bardes, dean, Raymond Walters College, University of Cincinnati, has accepted an additional five-year term.

Robert D. Duva, coordinator, computer operations, department of political science, West Virginia University.

Andrew D. Glassberg, director, Masters in Public Policy Administration Program, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

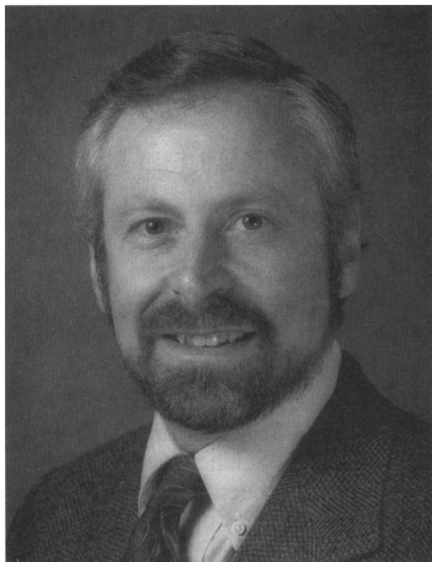

James G. Gosling, director, Center for Public Policy and Administration, University of Utah.

People in Political Science

William R. Keech, head, department of social and decision sciences, Carnegie Mellon University; formerly University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Carol W. Kohfeld, professor and chair, department of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Ian S. Lustick, chair, department of political science, University of Pennsylvania.

Ian S. Lustick

Scott P. Mainwaring, Conley Professor of Government and International Studies, University of Notre Dame, has been named director, Kellogg Institute for International Studies, effective January 1998.

A. James McAdams, chair, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame.

Christopher Z. Mooney, director, graduate studies, department of political science, West Virginia University.

Susan M. Olson, chair, department of political science, University of Utah.

Steven E. Sanderson, vice president for arts and sciences and dean, Emory College, Emory University; formerly chair, department of political science, University of Florida.

Rogers Smith, director, graduate studies, department of political science, Yale University.

Christopher Wolfe, chair, department of political science, Marquette University.

New Appointments

Arun Agrawal, assistant professor, department of political science, Yale University; formerly University of Florida.

H. Lee Cheek, Jr., assistant professor of political science, Brewton-Parker College (GA).

Margarita Estevez-Abe, assistant professor of political science, University of Minnesota.

Rui J.P. de Figueiredo, Jr., assistant professor, department of political science and Haas School of Business, University of California-Berkeley.

Geoffrey Garrett, professor, department of political science, Yale University; formerly Wharton School of Business, University of Pennsylvania.

Mary E. Guy, Jerry C. Collins Eminent Scholar Chair in Public Administration, Reubin O'D. Askew School of Public Administration and Policy, Florida State University.

Mary E. Guy

Piper A. Hodson, assistant professor of political science, department of economics, history and political science, Saint Joseph's College (IN).

Ted G. Jelen, professor and chair, department of political science, University of Nevada-Las Vegas; formerly Benedictine University.

Mark Kemper, assistant professor, department of political science, Miami University (OH).

Charles D. Kenney, assistant professor of political science, University of Oklahoma.

Charles Larmore, professor, department of political science, University of Chicago; formerly Columbia University.

Brett Ashley Leeds, assistant professor of political science, Florida State University; formerly Emory University.

J. Bradley Lewis, assistant professor, school of philosophy, Catholic University of America.

Michael F. Mastanduno, has been appointed to a five-year term as director, John Sloan Dickey Center for International Education, Dartmouth College.

Sara McLaughlin, assistant professor, department of political science, Florida State University; formerly Michigan State University.

J. Patrice McSherry, assistant professor of political science, Long Island University, Brooklyn Campus; formerly State University of New York at New Paltz.

Jeffrey J. Mondak, associate professor of political science, Florida State University; formerly University of Pittsburgh.

Will H. Moore, associate professor of political science, Florida State University; formerly University of California-Riverside.

Maria Victoria Murillo, assistant professor, department of political science, Yale University; formerly Harvard University.

Randall Partin, assistant professor, department of political science, University of New Mexico.

Antonio L. Rappa, lecturer in political theory, department of political science and European Studies Program, National University of Singapore.

Andrew Reynolds, assistant professor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame; formerly International Institute for Democracy and Electoral Assistance, Stockholm.

Eric Schickler, assistant professor of political science, University of California-Berkeley.

Gordon Silverstein, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Minnesota.

Beth A. Simmons, associate professor of political science, University of California-Berkeley.

Jacqueline G. Smith, assistant professor, sociology, State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Charles Tien, assistant professor, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY.

Lisa Wedeen, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Chicago; formerly Wesleyan University.

Margaret M. Weir, professor of sociology and political science, University of California-Berkeley; formerly the Brookings Institution and Harvard University.

Christina Wolbrecht, assistant professor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame.

Promotions

Francis Carleton, associate professor of social change and development and political science with tenure, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Joan Elizabeth Cocks, associate professor of politics, Mount Holyoke College.

James Fearon, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Chicago.

Richard Forgette, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Miami University (OH).

Rosemary O'Leary

John G. Gunnell, Distinguished Professor, department of political science, State University of New York-Albany.

Augustus Jones, Jr., professor, department of political science, Miami University (OH).

Jack Levy, Board of Governors Professor of Political Science, Rutgers University.

Eduardo Magalhaes, III, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Simpson College (IA).

Richard E. Matland, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Houston.

Rosemary O'Leary, professor, School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University.

Richard L. Pacelle, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

David Pion-Berlin, professor, department of political science, University of California-Riverside.

Cynthia A. Roberts, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY.

John Rothgeb, Paul Rejai Professor of Political Science, Miami University (OH).

Susan Scarrow, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Houston.

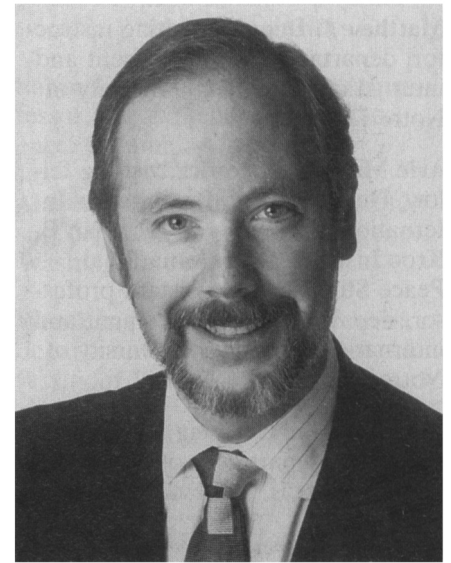

Denise Scheberle, associate professor of public and environmental affairs and political science with tenure, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

G. Eduardo Silva, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, University of Missouri-St. Louis.

Stephen J. Silvia, associate professor with tenure, School of International Service, American University.

James Snyder, professor, department of political science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Robert J. Spitzer, Distinguished Service Professor of Political Science, State University of New York at Cortland.

Robert J. Spitzer

John Wallach, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Hunter College, CUNY.

Lois Wise, professor, School of Public and Environmental Affairs, Indiana University.

Jeffrey S. Worsham, associate professor, department of political science, West Virginia University.

Keith Yanner, associate professor with tenure and chair, department of political science, Central College (IA).

Retirements

Alan Engel, professor, department of political science, Miami University (OH).

John D. Hane, associate professor of political science, Central Missouri State University.

Donald W. Hanson, professor and chair, emeritus, department of political science, University of Utah.

Charles O. Jones, professor emeritus, department of political science, University of Wisconsin-Madison.

Sophia Peterson, professor emeritus, department of political science, West Virginia University.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Matthew J. Doppke, visiting instructor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame.

Arie Marcelo Kacowicz, visiting fellow, Helen Kellogg Institute for International Studies and the Joan B. Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies, and assistant professor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame for 1997–98.

Timothy Krebs, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, Illinois Wesleyan University.

William G. Mayer, assistant professor of political science, Northeastern University has been named visiting professor, department of government, Harvard University, for 1997–98.

Margaret M. O'Callaghan, visiting associate professor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame for 1997–98.

Simon Reich, visiting fellow, Helen Kellogg Institute for International Studies, and visiting professor, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame for Fall 1997 semester.

Richard F. Starr, senior fellow, Hoover Institution, Stanford University, has been named visiting research professor, department of international relations, Boston University from June 1997 to August 1999. Starr most recently published The New Military in Russia: Ten Myths That Shape the Image (Naval Institute Press).

Richard F. Starr

Bruce A. Wallin, assistant professor of political science, Northeastern University, has been selected to serve as a visiting professor at the Center for International Relations, Meiji University in Tokyo, Japan. Wallin will deliver fifteen minute lectures on American politics and deficit reduction, and conduct comparative research on both intergovernmental relations and deficit reduction.

Awards

1997 Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowships

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has awarded fellowships to 164 artists, scholars, and scientists for 1997. The fellows were selected "on the basis of unusually distinguished achievement in the past and exceptional promise for future accomplishments." Among the winners were three political scientists:

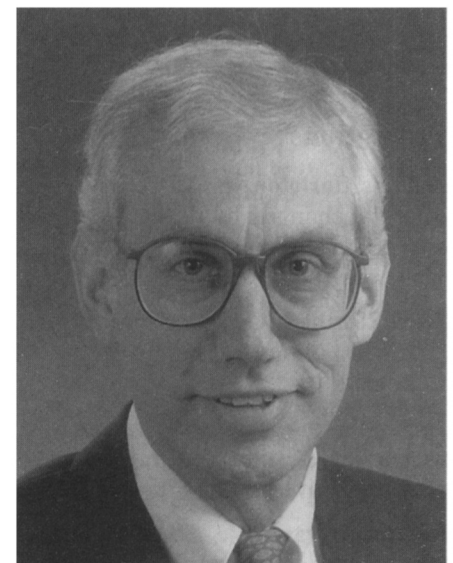

James E. Alt, professor of government, Harvard University and 1997 APSA Annual Meeting Program Co-Chair, for work on political parties, institutions, and fiscal policy.

James Miller, professor of political science and director, liberal studies program in the graduate faculty of political and social science, New School for Social Research, for work on a cultural history of rock n' roll.

Anthony Marx, associate professor of political science, Columbia University, for work on the nation-state and its exclusion. Marx has also been awarded fellowships from the Howard Foundation and the National Humanities Center. His book, Making Race and Nation: A Comparison of South Africa, the United States and Brazil, is forthcoming from Cambridge University Press.

1997 Johan Skytte Prize

Arend Lijphart, Research Professor of Political Science, University of California-San Diego, and former APSA president, has been selected to receive the 1997 Johan Skytte Prize in Political Science. Presented annually by the Johan Skytte Foundation of Uppsala University, Sweden, Lijphart was recognized for his "theoretical and empirically path-breaking research on the function of consensus in democratic politics in divided as well as homogenous soci-

Arend Lijphart