

A major looseleaf work for the European environmental practitioner

European Environmental Law

John R Salter, Solicitor, Denton Hall

The rapid rate of regulation and the very wide spectrum of activities and substances now falling under environmental control have created the necessity for a Europe-wide reference work which combines theoretical discussion with the pressing need of the practitioner to know what the law is, and its application. The purpose of this major new looseleaf is to provide environmental practitioners - both inside and outside Europe - with a succinct, accurate and up-to-date text on current European environmental law. Coverage is not only from the point of view of a Community lawyer, but also covers the impact of Community law on the environment under GATT, the EC EFTA Accord and the wider European environment. European Environmental Law provides the information that a practitioner in any of the 12 Member States, or six participating EFTA countries needs.

There will be two supplements in 1994, from 1995 supplements will be issued three times a year, ensuring that readers are kept up to date with the vast amount of Community and wider European legislation relating to the environment.
