

Information for Authors

The purpose of the Canadian Journal of Philosophy is the publication in Canada of international philosophical work of high quality, in English or French, in any field of philosophy. All submissions are given blind editorial review. As many submissions as possible are sent to external referees, with a response to authors within six months of submission. When submissions are not sent for external refereeing, CJP endeavours to respond to authors within three months.

Submissions may be sent to the Executive Secretary at cjp@uleth.ca in either Word or WordPerfect. Where submissions contain symbols or Greek letters, PDF files are preferable. Manuscripts should be double-spaced, including quotes and footnotes, in a standard (e.g., 12 point) font. CJP will not normally consider manuscripts longer than 10,000 words. Footnotes should be numbered consecutively and placed at the bottom of each page. The Journal follows The University of Chicago Manual of Style. Manuscripts should be prepared for blind review, which means they should contain no self-identifying references in either text or footnotes. An abstract of 150 to 250 words should also be included.

Authors will receive, without charge, 25 copies of their articles. Additional offprints may be ordered when the proofs are returned to the publisher.

All enquiries of an editorial nature should be directed to the Executive Secretary at the above address.

Avis aux auteurs

L'objectif du Canadian Journal of Philosophy est de publier au Canada des travaux philosophiques de grande qualité, en anglais ou en français, dans tous les domaines de la discipline. Toutes les soumissions sont évaluées à l'aveugle par le comité éditorial. La plupart des soumissions sont envoyées à des évaluateurs externes. Dans la mesure du possible, les auteurs sont avisés de la décision dans les six mois suivant la soumission. Quand les soumissions ne sont pas envoyées à des évaluateurs externes, le CJP se donne en principe trois mois pour rendre sa décision.

Les manuscrits doivent être soumis électroniquement en Word ou WordPerfect en les faisant parvenir à notre Secrétariat Administratif à l'adresse suivante: cjp@uleth.ca. Si toutefois les manuscrits contiennent des symboles ou des lettres grecques, il est alors préférable d'utiliser le format PDF. Les manuscrits doivent être rédigés à double interligne, y compris les citations et les notes, en utilisant un caractère de taille normale (soit de 12). Normalement, le CJP ne considérera pas les manuscrits excédant les 10,000 mots. Les notes doivent être numérotées de manière consécutive et se trouver au bas de chaque page. Le Journal se conforme au The University of Chicago Manual of Style. De plus, les manuscrits doivent être préparés pour être évalués à l'aveugle et ne doivent pas contenir de référence permettant l'identification de l'auteur dans le texte ou dans les notes. Veuillez aussi inclure un résumé de 150 à 250 mots.

Les auteurs recevront gratuitement 25 tirés-à-part de leur article. S'ils désirent en obtenir un plus grand nombre, ils sont priés d'en informer l'imprimeur lors du renvoi des épreuves.

Toute question de nature éditoriale doit être adressée au Secrétariat Administratif (voir ci-dessus pour l'adresse).

Reasons to Be Moral Revisited

Canadian Journal of Philosophy
Supplementary Volume 33

Edited by Sam Black and Evan Tiffany

6 x 9/paper/300 pages/$34.95S
ISBN 978-0-919491-33-5

ABOUT THE BOOK

H.A. Prichard argued that the "why should I be moral?" question is the central subject matter of moral theory. Prichard famously claimed to have proved that all efforts to answer that question are doomed. Many contributors to this volume of contemporary papers attempt to reconstruct Prichard's argument. They claim either explicitly or implicitly that Prichard was mistaken, and philosophy can contribute to meaningful engagement with the 'why be moral?' question. A theme to emerge from these papers is that arguments like Prichard's rely on numerous philosophical presuppositions. The volume therefore touches on a wide range of topics and treatments. Is there one kind of practical reason or multiple kinds of reasons? Are there separate facts that determine the rationality and reasonableness of persons? Does the conception of a practical reason found in classical philosophy have the resources to undercut Prichard's argument? Does it make sense to hold people morally accountable for their actions if it cannot be demonstrated that there are reasons to be moral? Does applied ethics have anything to contribute to the debate on morality's rational authority?

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Sam Black is Associate Professor of philosophy at Simon Fraser University. He has published papers in ethics, political philosophy, and the history of philosophy.

Evan Tiffany is Associate Professor of philosophy at Simon Fraser University. He has published papers in meta-ethics, moral psychology, and Kant's ethics.

THE MODULARITY OF EMOTIONS

edited by Luc Faucher

including notes and index
ISBN 978-0-919491-32-8

CJP Supplementary, volume 32

ABOUT THE BOOK

Can emotions be rational or are they necessarily irrational? Are emotions universally shared states? Or are they socio-cultural constructions? Are emotions perceptions of some kind? Since the publication of Jerry Fodor's The Modularity of Mind (1983), a new question about the philosophy of emotions has emerged: Are emotions modular? A positive answer to this question would mean, minimally, that emotions are cognitive capacities that can be explained in terms of mental components that are functionally dissociable from other parts of the mind. But depending on the kind of modules that are considered, be they Chomskyan, Fodorian, Darwinian, and so on, the answer to this question might well be different. The twelve new essays in this volume address the question of whether emotions, or at least some of them, are, in some sense of the word, modular, and explore how this could potentially influence our understanding of emotional phenomena.

ABOUT THE EDITORS

Christine Tappolet is the Canada Research Chair in Ethics and Meta-ethics and an associate professor in the Department of Philosophy at the Université de Montréal. She is the author of Émotions et Valeurs (2000) and the co-author, with Ruwen Ogien, of Les Concepts de l'éthique (2008) and of several articles in meta-ethics, moral psychology and the philosophy of emotions.

Luc Faucher is an associate professor in the Department of Philosophy at the Université du Québec à Montréal. He has published many papers on emotions, racial cognition and evolutionary psychology. In 2006, he edited a volume of Philosophiques on philosophy and psychopathologies.

GLOBAL JUSTICE, GLOBAL INSTITUTIONS

---

CJP Supplementary Volume 31

Edited by Daniel Weinstock

ISSN 0229-7051
ISBN 978-0-919491-31-1

$44.95 CDN $44.95 US

ABOUT THE BOOK

Defining the principles of justice that ought to govern the global economic and political sphere is one of the most urgent tasks that contemporary political philosophers face. But they must also contribute to working through the institutional implications of these principles. How might principles of global justice be realized? Must the institutions that aim to implement them be transnational, or can global justice be attained within the context of the state system? Can institutions of democratic self-governance be imagined beyond the nation-state? These are just some of the questions that still face political philosophers even when issues of abstract principle have been addressed.

This volume establishes a dialogue between philosophers working at all levels of abstraction. Some of the authors are concerned with the grounds and scope of the obligations that bind the citizens and governments of rich countries to those of poorer nations. But many examine the question of how these obligations can be satisfied, both within existing institutional frameworks and beyond. Together their essays constitute a major contribution to the advancement of both the theoretical understanding and the practical requirements of global justice.

ABOUT THE EDITOR

DANIEL WEINSTOCK holds the Canada Research Chair in Ethics and Political Philosophy in the Department of Philosophy of the University of Montreal. He is also the Founding Director of the Centre de recherche en éthique de l'Université de Montréal. He has written extensively on a wide range of issues in political philosophy, including democratic theory, multiculturalism and global justice. He was awarded the Pierre-Elliott-Trudeau Prize in 2004, and the André-Laurendeau Prize in 2006.
