Russian Officialdom in Crisis

Autocracy and Local Self-Government, 1861-1900

Thomas S. Pearson

The first full-scale account of the development of rural self-government from the "Great Reforms" to its bureaucratization in the counterreforms of 1889-90 and their implementation during the following decade. The author pinpoints the concrete problems that Russian officials experienced in introducing rural self-government, and shows that the land captain and zemstvo counterreform, like the earlier "Great Reforms," resulted from practical statist considerations.

Boris Pasternak: A Literary Biography

Volume I

Christopher Barnes

This authoritative new biography sheds light on currently unexplored aspects of Pasternak's character. Combining biographical investigation with detailed textual analysis of translated quotations in verse and prose, the author reveals the source of Pasternak's extraordinary writings and examines a wide range of topics that include his musical enthusiasm and relations with Scriabin, his philosophical studies, his activities in World War I and his response to the 1917 revolutions, and his stance as a liberal artistic intellectual in the 1920s.

The Poetic Imagination of Vyacheslav Ivanov

A Russian Symbolist's Perception of Dante

Pamela Davidson

Vyacheslav Ivanov, poet, philosopher and critic, played a key role in the formation of early twentieth-century Russian literature as leader of the religious branch of the Symbolist movement. This study explores Ivanov's poetic method, relating his art to his central beliefs and considers the ways in which he attempted to embody these ideas in his own life.

Intelligentsia and Revolution

Russian Views of Bolshevism, 1917-1922

JANE BURBANK, University of Michigan

"An important and original book. Dealing with the period of the Revolution, Civil War, and the beginning of the New Economic Policy, Dr. Burbank presents an admirable summary and analysis of the vast body of polemical literature inspired by the Bolshevik seizure of power in 1917. It raises fundamental and provocative questions about the Russian Revolution."—Paul Avrich, C.U.N.Y. 1987 (paper 1989) 352 pp. paper $12.95 cloth $36.00

The Generation of Power

The History of Dneprostoi

ANNE D. RASSWEILER, Temple University

This study of the Dneprostoi dam and power plant reveals new aspects of the struggle between Trotsky and Stalin, the use of foreign advisers, and the devastating effects of collectivization on the industrial projects of the Bolsheviks' First Five-Year Plan. 1988 262 pp.; illus. $32.50

Economic Life of the Jews in the Balkans and Anatolia 1453-1600

ELIEZER BASHAN, Bar Ilan University, Israel

The author has drawn on an immense variety of sources to give a detailed and original picture of Jewish economic social life in the Ottoman environment. His account of the legal and organisational structures of trade and commerce, commodities of merchandise, trade routes, markets and business centers makes this book a pioneer contribution to the history of both European and Asiatic Jewry and of the Levant. BETWEEN CHURCHILL AND STALIN

The Soviet Union, Great Britain, and the Origins of the Grand Alliance

by Steven Merritt Miner

“Miner’s interesting and well-documented study throws a sharp light into a dark corner of Anglo-Soviet wartime diplomacy.”—Fraser J. Harbutt, Emory University

Between Churchill and Stalin examines shifting Anglo-Soviet relations from 1939 to 1942. At the beginning of this period, Britain, along with France, considered plans to attack the USSR. By 1942, however, London and Moscow had pledged themselves to twenty years of diplomatic partnership. Steven Miner shows how the circumstances and considerations leading to this turnabout had broad and long-lasting consequences. 331 pp., $36

The Red Pencil

Artists, Scholars, and Censors in the USSR

Marianna Tax Choldin and Maurice Friedberg

An examination of the ways that Soviet censorship interferes with the creative process in the words of those who have experienced it first hand — Soviet exiles and emigres — this book examines how Soviet writers attempt to strike a balance between accommodating the demands of government censorship while retaining a modicum of unfettered expression and intellectual integrity. February 1989 Cloth $39.95

The Armenians

A People in Exile

David Marshall Lang

The troubled region of Armenia constitutes a test case in Gorbachev's campaign for glasnost and perestroika. In this lively and readable book, Lang tells the story of 2,000 years of Armenian diaspora. He provides a graphic account of the Turkish persecution of Armenians from 1895 to 1922, which is said to have provided Hitler with a model for the Holocaust. February 1989 Paper $ 9.95

Social Justice, Social Change

Alexander Bovin, Gennady Lischkin, and Andrei Nuikin

This fascinating insider's view from three Soviet commentators provides the first Soviet perspective on the domestic and international repercussions of perestroika. The Truth of Authority

Ideology and Communication in the Soviet Union

THOMAS REMINGTON

The challenge of glasnost is nowhere more apparent than in the structure and behavior of the Soviet media. In this timely book, Remington evaluates the methods used by the Communist Party to manage political communications in Soviet society. He focuses on two main types of party ideological work—direct agitation and the operation of print and broadcast media—presenting new data on the participants at every level.

The Twilight of French Eastern Alliances, 1926–1936 French-Czechoslovak-Polish Relations from Locarno to the Remilitarization of the Rhineland

Piotr S. Wandycz

Although France, Poland, and Czechoslovakia were in jeopardy from a recovery of German power after World War I and from a potential German hegemony in Europe, France failed in her efforts to maintain a system of alliances with her two imperiled neighbors. Focusing on the period from 1926 to 1936, Piotr Wandycz seeks to explain how and why these three nations, with so much at risk, neglected to act in concert. He shows how the divergent aims of Czechoslovakia and Poland combined with a decline of French will power to prevent a real cohesion among the partners.

The Shape of Apocalypse in Modern Russian Fiction

David M. Bethea

David Bethea examines the distinctly Russian view of the "end" of history (eskhaton) in five major works of modern Russian fiction: Dostoevsky's The Idiot, Bely's Petersburg, Platonov's Chetengur, Bulgakov's The Master and Margarita, and Pasternak's Doctor Zhivago. His is the first attempt by any scholar, Western or Soviet, to trace the impact of "apocalyptic thinking" on the actual literary form of the novels written under the shadow of 1917.
