NEW TITLES IN ASIAN STUDIES

RECORDS OF WIND AND EARTH: A TRANSLATION OF FUDOKI, WITH INTRODUCTION AND COMMENTARIES by Michiko Y. Aoki

In A.D. 713, the Japanese central government ordered all provincial governors to compile surveys of their respective regions, including products, animals, plants, land conditions, etymologies of place names, legends, and oral traditions. The five extant "old" fudoki translated in Records of Wind and Earth are all that remain of these early reports. Three of these fudoki (Harima, Bungo, and Hizen) are being made available here for the first time in English. This collection contains invaluable records for any English-speaking person wishing to understand the early history of Japan—its land, its people, and its earliest literature.

RIVER OF SORROW: ENVIRONMENT AND SOCIAL CONTROL IN RIPARIAN NORTH INDIA, 1770-1994 by CHRISTOPHER V. Hill

In this analysis of colonial attempts to control and manage the agrarian region surrounding the Kosi River, Hill argues that colonial ecological, political, and social policies were inextricably intertwined. The colonial administrators set about "improving" India's physical environment, just as they "improved" its social and political climate. In so doing, they were ill-prepared to understand, let alone administer, a river such as the Kosi—which traced a violent and erratic course out of the Himalayas, "carrying thousands of tons of silty sand and destroying everything in its path." The ecological paternalism imposed by the colonial governors introduced social and revenue policies that were to have a profound effect on the peasantry that continues to this day.

THE ORIGINAL ANALECTS

Sayings of Confucius and His Successors

E. BRUCE BROOKS WITH A. TAEKO BROOKS

"THE ORIGINAL ANALECTS inaugurates a new era. Scholars take note: the study of early China will never be the same. And its richly thoughtful commentaries assure that the general reader will stop to ponder the words of the most influential book in the long history of Chinese civilization."

—Frederick W. Mote, Princeton University

"THE ORIGINAL ANALECTS shows the text evolving over 230 years following the Master's death. It identifies and dates each layer of accretion, bringing the text to life, and throwing light on shifts and shades of thought in Warring States China, generation by generation. It represents an exciting new mode of investigation that will require most scholarship on ancient Chinese philosophy to be redone."

CONFUCIANISM AND HUMAN RIGHTS

WM. THEODORE DE BARY

AND TU WEIMING, EDITORS

Is the Confucian tradition compatible with the Western understanding of human rights? Are there fundamental human values common to all people? At this critical point in China's history, eighteen distinguished scholars address the role of Confucianism in dealing with questions of universal human rights. For any reader interested in understanding the clash of Western notions of human rights with the ideologies of some Asian regimes, this volume provides a clear, thought-provoking entry to this complex subject.

SEX AMONG ALLIES

Military Prostitution in U.S.-Korea Relations

KATHARINE H. S. MOON

Katharine Moon examines the role prostitutes played in preserving the strategic relationship between Korea and the United States. Drawing on a vast array of data, and weaving together issues of gender, race, sex, the relationship between individuals and the state, and foreign policy, SEX AMONG ALLIES illustrates how and why Korean prostitutes are marginalized and made invisible in militarily dependent societies, both because of the degradation of their work and because of their importance for national security.

WHOSE INTERESTS ARE SUPREME?

ORGANIZATIONAL POLITICS IN THE CIVIL COURTS OF INDIA

by ROBERT S. MOOG

Posted on many courtroom walls in Varanasi is a simple sign, written in Hindi and English, which reads: "Litigant's Interest Is Supreme." In actuality, the author argues, the interests of litigants in India's civil courts are often largely forgotten—lost in the ongoing political conflict among judges, attorneys, and ministerial staff. Drawing upon organizational theory, this book offers a comprehensive analysis of the internal political struggles in India's district courts and their impact upon the entire judicial process. It focuses upon the reasons for the administrative problems (prolonged delays, huge backlog of pending cases, unenforceable decisions) that have become synonymous with litigation in India—and that distort the search for justice.

Land of the Tiger

A Natural History of the Indian Subcontinent

Valmik Thapar

After a lifetime devoted to the study and conservation of the tiger, Thapar turns his attention to the plants and animals that share the tiger's domain. He links the region's tremendous diversity to the reverence shown to nature by Eastern religions, but modern and urban values are seriously eroding the subcontinent's ecosystems.

COURAGE TO STAND ALONE

Letters from Prison and Other Writings

Wei Jingsheng

Translated by Kris Torgeson

A collection of writings by the Chinese dissident, and winner of the 1996 Sakharov Peace Prize, who has inspired generations in the struggle for Democracy and human rights. Includes letters to Communist leaders—written from his solitary confinement cell and expressing his views on such topics as economic and social reform, foreign relations, and Tibet—as well as letters to his family, excerpts of essays, and his defense statement at trial. “The most impressive dissenting document to emerge from China since the Communist revolution of 1949 . . . promises to take its place among the classics of the 20th-century literature of dissent.”—Richard Bernstein, The New York Times. 336 pp.

PLAYING FOR THRILLS

Wang Shuo

Translated by Howard Goldblatt

In late 1980's China, Wang Shuo pioneered a movement known as pizi wenxue, or hooligan literature, shunning the heroic models common to Chinese literature. Playing for Thrills, his first book published in English, is the story of an anti-hero's search for the truth about a mysterious murder, and takes place in the seamy underside of Beijing and its environs. “The most brilliantly entertaining ‘hardboiled’ novel of the ‘90’s”—Stephen King. 336 pp.

COMFORT WOMAN

Nora Okja Keller

The story of Akiko, a Korean refugee of WW II, and Beccah, her daughter by an American missionary. The two are living on the edge of society—and sanity—in Honolulu, plagued by Akiko's periodic encounters with the spirits of the dead, and by Beccah's struggles to reclaim her mother from her past—and from the horrifying years she was forced to serve as a “comfort woman” to Japanese soldiers. 224 pp.

Golden Arches East

McDonald's in East Asia

Edited by
JAMES L. WATSON

McDonald's restaurants are found in over 100 countries, serving tens of millions of people each day. What are the cultural implications of this phenomenal success? Does the introduction of American fast food undermine local cuisines, many of them celebrated for centuries? Does it, as some critics fear, presage a homogeneous, global culture? These are but a few of the questions confronted in this engaging study that vividly demonstrates how the theories and techniques of anthropology can be used not only to examine obscure peoples and exotic practices, but to shed light on the motivations and behavior of people conducting their daily lives in some of the major population centers of the world.

Introducing a New Series in Asian American Studies . . .

Developed for the new millennium, Intersections: Asian and Pacific American Transcultural Studies is an interdisciplinary series viewing thirty years of Asian American Studies as a critical intervention that challenges traditional American, Ethnic, and Asian Studies approaches to race and culture, to gender and sexuality, and to community, class, and religion. The series links the editorships of both the University of Hawai'i Press—at the intersection of Asia, the Pacific, and the Americas—and the UCLA Asian American Studies Center, the national center of scholarship and publishing on Asian Americans since 1971.

Grand Sacrifice as Text/Performance in Eighteenth-Century China

ANGELA ZITO

"Zito shows how the production of imperial politics was driven by a dialectic between ritual performance and textual practice. By focusing on the Grand Sacrifice, she has managed to perform brilliantly an historical ethnography of the relationship between knowledge of ritual and the power it conferred in a distant time and place."—Harry Harootunian, author of Things Seen and Unseen

BRUCE KAPFERER

In The Feast of the Sorcerer, Bruce Kapferer reorients the study of sorcery and ritual. His analysis—part phenomenological, part ethnographic, part deconstructive—of Sinhalese Buddhist exorcism demonstrates that sorcery can be seen not as irrational and antithetical to modern thought but as a pragmatic, conscious practice that makes it possible for humans to reconstruct repeatedly their relation to the world.

"The Feast of the Sorcerer is ethnographically rich and interpretively original. It is the best study so far on Sinhalese exorcism."—S. J. Tambiah, author of World Conqueror and World Renouncer

NAKAMA 2: ©1999

Distinguished author Seiichi Makino, in collaboration with experienced Japanese educators and co-authors Yukiko Abe Hatasa and Kazumi Hatasa, presents his proven, class-tested approach that emphasizes language proficiency, practical communication, development of all four language skills, student interaction, and awareness of Japanese culture.

FEATURES

- Twelve thematically organized chapters focus on high-frequency communicative situations and include five grammar points with clear explanations.
- Dialogues are presented visually with manga (cartoon strips) and accompanied by pre-listening and comprehension activities. Dialogue translations are available in the text's appendix.
- Helpful mnemonic devices accompany the introduction of hiragana and katakana characters. NAKAMA 1 presents 90 kanji characters, with the remainder planned for NAKAMA 2.
- Exercises integrated into each chapter progress from directed practice to a wide range of open-ended communicative activities emphasizing pair and group work.
- Readings feature hiragana superscripts to reinforce comprehension and are preceded by learning strategies and warm-up activities.
- Culture notes offer insights into contemporary Japanese lifestyles.
- Listening activities and Dict-a-Conversations are preceded by useful listening strategies.
- A Communication section offers strategies for developing oral proficiency.
- An Integration section reinforces chapter materials through a variety of communicative activities.
- Free, text-linked software is available via our Modern Language Web site (www.hmco.com/college)

A History of Laos

Martin Stuart-Fox

This authoritative and wide-ranging history focuses on the period from the founding of modern Laos as a French colony to its independence, involvement in the war in Vietnam, the formation of the communist republic, and the present authoritarian government. The author shows how the nationalist struggle for independence and unity was subverted by foreign intervention, and how the country has now resumed its traditional role as a neutral state in Southeast Asia.

Malaysia's Political Economy

Politics, Patronage and Profits

Edmund Terence Gomez and K.S. Jomo

This insightful and accessible analysis examines government-led change in Malaysia's business community, examining policies and their economic and political consequences. The authors use the concepts of rent and rent seeking to trace the ways in which political patronage influences the concentration and accumulation of wealth. It also contains richly detailed case studies of the contemporary Malaysian corporate world and its political relationships.

Economic Ideology and Japanese Industrial Policy

Developmentalism from 1931 to 1965

Bai Gao

During the Great Depression and World War II, the ideology of developmentalism—characterized by a nationalistic perspective—emerged and strongly influenced policy innovation in Japan and institutional reforms in its economy. Liberal capitalism in the postwar era eliminated the military nature of the Japanese economy, and forced developmentalism to adapt to democratic political institutions and the free trade regime.

The Politics of Open Economies

Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines and Thailand

Alasdair Bowie and Danny Unger

The countries of Southeast Asia have generally enjoyed economic success in the postwar period. The authors argue that one of the explanations for this success has been their integration into the global division of labor, and analyze decisionmaker's reasons for following this course. Particular emphasis is placed on external events, notably the two oil shocks of the 1970s, and the more recent outflow of investment capital and manufacturing capacity from Japan and East Asia.

Commodity and Exchange in the Mongol Empire

A Cultural History of Islamic Textiles

Thomas T. Allsen

In the thirteenth century the Mongols created a vast transcontinental empire that transported skilled artisans from one cultural zone to another. Situated within the broader context of the history of the Silk Road, this book considers the significance of cloth and color in the political and cultural life of the Mongols and will interest not only historians of the Middle East and Asia, but also art historians and textile specialists.

Britain and Indian Nationalism

The Imprint of Ambiguity 1929-1942

D.A. Low

Anthony Low examines anew the distinctive character of perhaps the most momentous struggle of the twentieth century. He shows how the struggle was conditioned by the ambiguity of the British position, determined to hold fast to their Indian empire yet reluctant to offer unyielding resistance to their nationalist opponents.
