How We Found America

Reading Gender through East European Immigrant Narratives

MAGDALENA J. ZABOROWSKA

Magdalena Zaborowska challenges the male-dominated East European canon in American literature by demonstrating that the contributions of lesser-known immigrant and expatriate women writers from Poland and Russia offer a special perspective on what it means to "find America."

"An original and exciting study that is on the cutting edge of issues of multiculturalism, gendered identities and relations, and the roles of literature in society and history."

DOSTOEVSKY

The Miraculous Years,
1865-1871

Joseph Frank

This long-awaited volume, the fourth of five planned in Joseph Frank's widely acclaimed biography of Dostoevsky, does cover a truly miraculous period of his life—the six most remarkably productive years in the great novelist's entire career. It was in this short span of time that Dostoevsky produced three of his greatest novels—Crime and Punishment, The Idiot, and The Devils—and two of his best novellas, The Gambler and The Eternal Husband.

All these masterpieces were written in the midst of harrowing practical and economic circumstances, as Dostoevsky moved around Europe, frequently giving way to his passion for roulette. All the while, he worried that his recurrent epileptic attacks were impairing his literary capacities.

This latest installment is as beautifully written, and as magisterial in scope, as its award-winning predecessors.

The Rise of Russia and the Fall of the Soviet Empire

John B. Dunlop

This is the first work to set one of the great bloodless revolutions of the twentieth century in its proper historical context. John Dunlop pays particular attention to Boris Yeltsin's role in opposing the covert resurgence of Communist interests in post-coup Russia, and faces the possibility that new institutions may not survive long enough to sink roots in a traditionally undemocratic culture.

“The first serious attempt to analyze the last six years of the Soviet Union from the perspective of that union's largest member, the Russian Federation. The task is formidable, but Dunlop undertakes it with style and clarity.”

Nobody Covers Our Part of the World — Like OMRI —

EASTERN EUROPE AND THE FORMER SOVIET UNION — in covering this broad, mercurial area, the Open

Media Research Institute fills the gap left by the closure of the Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty Research Institute. OMRI is a non-profit news and analysis organization committed to informing policy makers, analysts, specialists, journalists and others about developments in these regions.

OMRI's staff of experts, many of whom came from the RFE/RL Research Institute, use their knowledge and experience to analyze the vast amount of primary source material that OMRI collects and catalogues every day. A growing network of correspondents throughout the region contributes to OMRI's coverage of political events and issues, which is balanced and unbiased.

Publications

OMRI's flagship publication is the journal Transition: Events and Issues in the Former Soviet Union and East-Central and Southeastern Europe. It contains analytical articles, information about key figures in the region, security and economic briefs, book reviews, essays and more.

The OMRI Daily Digest — available free on the Internet — provides concise and accurate news reports based on current sources from the region.

OMRI's publications program will be expanded to include a Media Monitoring Digest, a Regional News Digest, up-to-date handbooks and others.

Archival Resources and Training

As custodian of the RFE/RL archives, OMRI maintains materials more than five years old in a Budapest facility in cooperation with the Central European University. More recent materials are housed in OMRI's Prague headquarters. The institute's collection of newspapers, periodicals, clippings, samizdat, and biographical holdings is open to the public.

Limited internship and training programs will provide instruction for analysts from the region.

OMRI is a public service organization based in Prague, with additional offices in Washington, Budapest, and Moscow.
