Despite labour history's flourishing since the 1960s an essential aspect of workers' lives has been virtually overlooked: their constant struggle for protection from threats to their way of life, such as illness, unemployment, disability and old age. Mutual benefit societies have been a major means of social self-defence in this area. The present collection of essays covers new ground by exploring the development of mutual benefit societies in 26 countries across five continents. A number of comparative and international analyses has also been included.

Migration, Migration History, History Old Paradigms and New Perspectives

Jan Lucassen and Leo Lucassen, eds.

1997. ca. 454 pp. ISBN 3-906756-86-6 / US-ISBN 0-8204-3405-1

During the last decade studies have indicated that migration has been a normal, structural element of human societies throughout history. Progress in migration and settlement studies under this new paradigm has been so substantial that a new state of the art is needed. This book presents a reconsideration of current theoretical perspectives encompassing enlightened insights in diverging specializations in the field of migration history, such as slavery studies, ethnic history, macro-economic migration studies, and gypsy studies. The seventeen essays in this volume, written by leading scholars in the field, collectively represent a pioneering effort in migration and settlement studies. They address the problems of ongoing specialization (and hence the need for synthesis) and the difficulties of integrating the consequences of this new paradigm into general histories.

Guidelines for contributors

Manuscripts are considered for publication on the understanding that they are not currently under consideration elsewhere and that the material – in substance as well as form – has not been previously published.

Two copies of the manuscript should be submitted.

Each article should be accompanied by a summary, not exceeding 100 words, outlining the principal conclusions and methods in the context of currently accepted views on the subject.

All material – including quotations and notes – must be double-spaced with generous margins. Use of dot-matrix printers is discouraged.

Notes should be numbered consecutively and placed at the end of the text.

Spelling should be consistent throughout (e.g. Labour and Labor are both acceptable, but only one of these forms should be used in an article).

Turns of phrase using masculine forms as universals are not acceptable.
