

International Journal of AFRICAN HISTORICAL STUDIES

Published by Africana Publishing Company, this quarterly journal is now in its twelfth year of publication and has become a leading journal of African history. The development of better historiographic tools in the last decade, the high standards of scholarship, and the extraordinary liveliness of African studies as a field are all evident in the pages of the journal. Scholars from diverse disciplinary backgrounds and with diverse intellectual approaches contribute original work ranging in scope from prehistoric archaeology to slave economics and social aspects of the African diaspora.

The diversity of its articles, the willingness to allot space to scholarly controversies, the review essays, and an extensive, up-to-date book-review section make it a thorough and vigorous review of recent literature in African historical writing and essential reading for historians and specialists of Africa.

Recent and Forthcoming Articles:

- Richard Caulk, "Armies as Predators: Ethiopia"
- David Northrup, "Nineteenth-Century Patterns of Slavery and Economic Growth in Southeastern Nigeria"
- Owen J. M. Kalinga, "Trade, the Kyungus, and the Emergence of the Mgonde Kingdom of Malawi"

Review Articles:

REVIEW

a journal of the Fernand Braudel Center for the Study of Economies, Historical Systems, and Civilizations

Editor: Immanuel Wallerstein

Review is committed to the pursuit of a perspective which recognizes the primacy of analysis of economies over long historical time and large space, the holism of the socio-historical process, and the transitory (heuristic) nature of theories.

The Growth of Islam among the Yoruba

T G O Gbadamosi

In the well established Ibadan History Series, the focus of this work is the outstanding development and activities of the Muslim community among the Yoruba in the second half of the nineteenth century.

Dr. Gbadamosi concentrates his attention on the socio-economic aspects of this phenomenal growth and describes the relationship that developed between the Muslims and the rising forces of Christianity and colonialism. He discusses the overall significance of the community to the society.

Contents: Islam in Yorubaland before 1840; The resurgence of Islam 1841–60; The era of consolidation 1861–94; The zenith of Islamic expansion 1895–1908; The challenge of Christianity 1875–1908; Relations with the colonial government 1875–1980; Islam and Yoruba society.

CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions to the Journal are welcomed. They may be submitted in either English or French. They should not exceed about 6000 words (excluding footnotes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words in length, should be attached on a separate sheet. Contributors are asked to observe closely the conventions listed in the Notes for Contributors, Vol. XV, pp. 173-4. It is essential that contributors observe these conventions, as the Journal now goes straight into page proof. This severely limits the number of corrections which are possible.

Page proofs will be sent, if necessary by airmail, to each contributor (or his nominee) provided that the Editors have been given an address through which he can be reached without delay. Corrections should be kept to the minimum, and should be corrections, not new material. If they are to be incorporated in the master proof corrected by the Editors, it is important that the contributor should return the page proofs, by airmail if necessary, to the Editor named when they are sent out (and not to the Cambridge University Press), within ten days of his receipt of them.

Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints. Additional offprints may be obtained at reasonable cost, provided that they are ordered before publication on the special form sent out with the page proofs.

All contributions and books for review should be addressed to The Editors, The Journal of African History, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, London, W.C.1.
