Essays: Mainly Shakespearean

ANNE BARTON.

Anne Barton's essays on Shakespeare and his contemporaries are characterised by their combination of intelligence, humanity and elegance. In this linked but wide-ranging collection she looks at both major and neglected plays and the ongoing dialogue between them.

Shakespeare and the Geography of Difference

JOHN GILLIES

In this engaging book, John Gillies explores Shakespeare's geographic imagination, and discovers an intimate relationship between Renaissance geography and theatre arising from a shared dependence on the opposing impulses of taboo-laden closure and hubristic expansiveness.

The First Quarto of King Lear

Edited by JAY L. HALIO

This critical, modern-spelling edition of King Lear is based on the first (1608) quarto and is significantly different from the 1623 Folio printed in the standard New Cambridge Shakespeare version. The differences affect the structure, characterisation and overall impact of the play.
