The Origenist Controversy

The Cultural Construction of an Early Christian Debate

Elizabeth A. Clark

Around the turn of the fifth century, Christian theologians contested each other's orthodoxy by hurling charges of "Origenism" at their opponents. Origen's theology was not the only issue at stake in the Origenist controversy: "Origen" became a code word for nontheological complaints as well.

Elizabeth Clark explores the theological and extra-theological implications of the dispute, uses social network analysis to explain the personal alliances and enmities of its participants, and suggests how it prefigured modern concerns with the status of representation, the social construction of the body, and praxis vis-à-vis theory.

"... an important and distinguished book. . . . indispensable to anyone working on the history of Christian thought in this period or on the history of asceticism, and it will be of interest to anyone concerned with the history of Christian thought in general."—R.A. Markus, Professor Emeritus, University of Nottingham

Works of a partisan nature are excluded. The following categories are eligible:

- b. Analyses of church councils, dialogues, and debates, or interactions between Christianity and other religious traditions.
- c. Biographical studies of significant leaders, or of persons whose involvement in ecumenical dialogue and action was noteworthy.
- d. Critical editions (preferably annotated) of significant ecumenical documents.
- e. Bibliographical reviews and evaluations in major areas of ecumenical church history.

The prize consists of an award of $1000 to the author and a possible grant of up to $3000 for publication (or in exceptional cases, for necessary expenses in the preparation of a book-length manuscript accepted for publication). The prize will be awarded annually, though no award will be made in any year when none of the manuscripts is adjudged to be outstanding. AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CHURCH HISTORY

Membership Information

The American Society of Church History was founded in 1888 by Philip Schaff and a group of colleagues. It is affiliated with the American Historical Association. Its purpose is to foster interest in the history of Christianity, and its interrelationship with its cultural context by encouraging research, writing, and teaching in this discipline.

The membership of the society consists of scholars, men and women, the majority of whom serve on faculties of colleges, universities, and seminaries. Others are archivists, clergy members, professional writers, and students, or simply those who have a serious interest in church history. The society is ecumenical in character, comprising members of various religious persuasions.

In addition to Church History, a journal published quarterly, the society holds an annual meeting in conjunction with the American Historical Association and a spring meeting on the campus of a host institution. The meeting programs and the journal provide opportunities for exploring a wide variety of subjects and the exchange of thought. Membership dues entitle one to receive the journal, with its informative articles and large book review section, and attend the meetings of the society.

In order to interest younger scholars, particularly those of ethnic minorities, in the work of the society, the council has voted to offer a dues-free membership (up to two years) to all graduate students working in the area of church history at an accredited institution upon the approval of a professor who is also a member of the society.
