

MEMBERS OF THE MONTH

CAMILLE BURGE

JANUARY MEMBER OF THE MONTH

Villanova University

“While I enjoy watching many students’ attitudes towards policies or groups evolve, I can only hope that my students carry these lectures with them outside of the classroom and speak truth to power at home or in conversations both casual and in the workplace when they know something is not completely accurate or at least is misrepresented.”

ELS de GRAAUW

FEBRUARY MEMBER OF THE MONTH

Baruch College, The City University of New York

“...I left my first APSA meeting feeling exhausted. Since then, I’ve learned to do things differently, thereby making APSA meetings a whole lot more enjoyable and productive. I’ve also worked with others to create a space for migration and citizenship scholars, initially through a working group, then a related group, and then we founded our own Section on Migration and Citizenship.”

LEE TREPANIER

MARCH MEMBER OF THE MONTH

Saginaw Valley State University

“Political scientists need to figure out how to bridge the gap between conducting their specialized research and providing public knowledge if we want our profession to be publicly relevant.”
