REQUEST BY Dr. MAXIMILIAN BRESGEN.

IN the endeavour to obtain for Rhino-Laryngology among special branches of medicine the appreciation which is due to it, I am occupied with an extensive treatise dealing with its importance generally and specially. I therefore beg all colleagues who have written any interesting articles, giving information upon this subject, to send to me copies of their works, with the parts referring to this matter underlined.

Dr. MAXIMILIAN BRESGEN.

THE INDEX MEDICUS.

WE have received the following letter, and willingly give it prominence. It would appear to us to argue a vast amount of apathy on the part of the profession that such a valuable work as this should be in danger of lapsing through want of support, and we can only express the hope that the subscribers will speedily reach such a number that the publisher may feel justified in continuing this most valuable and useful work :—

"Dear Sir,—In January, 1885, I entered upon the publication of the 'Index Medicus.' The scope of this publication, though doubtless familiar to you, is fully explained in the enclosed pamphlet, which was issued at the time.

"Each year during the interval has shown a deficit, and my only satisfaction has been the belief that the work was appreciated by scientific men in general, and by medical scholars in particular.

"The panic of 1893 and the ensuing hard times have diminished the number of subscribers while enlarging the amount of unpaid subscriptions. I now have to face the possibility of a still further reduction in the income of the Index for 1895, and I shall be constrained to discontinue the Journal with the December number, unless greater encouragement is bestowed on this enterprise by the physicians of America.

"Am I asking too much in bespeaking your energetic editorial influence to the end of increasing the subscription list of the 'Index Medicus' sufficiently to warrant its continued publication? Surely there are eight hundred physicians in high standing in America who must feel interested in the enterprise, and disposed to contribute to its support the sum of $10 by way of subscription.

"I remain, with many thanks,

"Most truly yours,

"GEO. S. DAVIS,

"Medical Publisher, Detroit, U.S.A.

"P.S.—Should lack of sufficient support compel me to discontinue the publication of the 'Index Medicus,' all remittances will, of course, be promptly returned."
