SYMPOSIUM PROCEEDINGS

Eighty-sixth Scientific Meeting

SOME PROBLEMS IN NUTRITION

	PAGE
The gluten-free management of coeliac disease. By DAVID LAWSON	75
Statistical aspects of dietary surveys. By BARNET WOOLF	82
Infant-feeding practices. Breast feeding and the prevention of infant malnutrition. By B. S. PLATT	94
The interpretation of the clinical stigmata of nutritional deficiency. By R. PASSMORE	105

Eighty-seventh Scientific Meeting

NUTRITION AND THE LIVER

The chemical architecture of the liver cell. By J. N. DAVIDSON	112
The influence of the protein and energy content of the diet on the liver. By H. N. MUNRO	115
The influence of diet, environment and other factors on experimental liver necrosis in the rat. By J. M. NAFTALIN	120
Storage of vitamins in liver. By E. KODICEK	125
Disorders of the liver in tropical nutritional diseases. By J. WATERLOW	135
Dietetic aspects of the treatment of liver disease. By A. L. LATNER	139

ABSTRACTS OF COMMUNICATIONS

Eighty-fifth Scientific Meeting

The retention of vitamin B ₁₂ by the chick receiving all-vegetable rations. By D. H. SHRIMPTON	i
The origin of tetany in magnesium deficiency. By K. L. BLAXTER, J. A. F. ROOK and A. M. MACDONALD	ii
Anaemigenic and lipogenic actions of dietary calcium carbonate. By W. A. GREIG ..	iii
Artificial milk mixtures prepared by the mothers of young babies. By F. E. HYTEN	iv
Studies on the fate of the major plant pigments in the alimentary tract of the sheep and their relation to the 'chromogen' marker method for determining nutrient digestibilities. By J. DAVIDSON	v
The relationship between the chemical composition of hays and their content of gross digestible energy. By D. M. WALKER	vi
Plane of nutrition and energy utilization by sheep. By K. L. BLAXTER and N. McC. GRAHAM	vii

Eighty-eighth Scientific Meeting

Malnutrition and hair pigmentation. By B. S. PLATT and J. NAGCHAUDHURI ..	ix
Histochemical changes in scurvy. By C. RUTH HILL and G. H. BOURNE	x
The effect of the vegetable ration on carotene and vitamin A in the blood of chronic hospital patients. By Z. A. LEITNER, T. MOORE and I. M. SHARMAN	xi
Hydrocephalus in rabbits associated with maternal vitamin A deficiency. By G. E. LAMMING, J. W. MILLEN and D. H. M. WOOLLAM	xii
A physiological constant and its nutritional significance. By R. L. WORRALL ..	xiii
A study of the effects of completely vegetarian diets on human subjects. By J. F. DE WIJN, W. F. DONATH and H. C. VAN DER MEULEN-van EYSBERGEN	xiv
