

Pythagoreans & Eleatics

J. E. RAVEN

A detailed survey of the development of the Pythagorean system from early in the fifth century B.C. until Pythagoreanism merged with Platonism more than a century later. For the early period Mr Raven makes full use of Aristotle's evidence; the second part of the book deals with Eleatic attacks on Pythagoreanism and ends with an assessment of the influence of this most important of the pre-Socratic cosmogonies on Plato.
CAMBRIDGE CLASSICAL STUDIES. 12s. 6d. net

History of Ancient Geography

J. OLIVER THOMSON

Professor Thomson covers the period from the earliest beginnings of civilization to the decline of the Roman Empire. His plan has been first to discover what was known of the world at a given period and then to describe contemporary geographical ideas. His book is an essential piece of primary scholarship which at the same time illuminates the study of general and cultural history. 2 plates, 66 maps and figures.
42s. net

Aphrodite

F. L. LUCAS

Texts and English verse renderings of the 'Homeric' Hymn to Aphrodite and the Pervigilium Veneris, the earliest and latest classical poems addressed to the Cyprian goddess. Mr Lucas has written introductory essays and brief commentaries on each poem. Text and translation are on facing pages. 6s. 6d. net

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS