BRITISH INSTITUTE AT ANKARA

The British Institute at Ankara supports, promotes and publishes British research focused on Turkey and the Black Sea littoral in all academic disciplines within the arts, humanities and social sciences, whilst maintaining a centre of excellence in Ankara focused on the archaeology and related subjects of Turkey.

A small staff at the Institute's premises in Ankara, headed by Dr Hugh Elton as Director, conduct their own research, assist scholars and maintain the centre of excellence. The centre houses a library of over 42,000 volumes, research collections of archaeobotanical, epigraphic and pottery material, together with collections of maps, photographs and fieldwork archives, and a laboratory and computer services. Access to these resources is available free of charge to members of the Institute. The Institute is able to offer to members, for a reasonable charge, the use of accommodation, surveying and photographic equipment, and vehicles.

A range of fieldwork projects, as well as museum-based research and publication projects, are currently sponsored by the Institute. Excavations presently supported include those at the Neolithic site of Çatalhöyük directed by Ian Hodder via the University of Cambridge, at the prehistoric site of Domuztepe directed by Stuart Campbell of the University of Manchester and Elizabeth Carter of the University of California, Los Angeles, at Hellenistic Pichvnari in the Republic of Georgia directed by Michael Vickers of the Ashmolean Museum and Amiran Kakhidze of Batumi Archaeological Museum, and at the Byzantine city of Amorium directed by Chris Lightfoot of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York. Surveys range from the investigation of the Iron Age city of Kerkenes Dağ by Geoff Summers of the Middle East Technical University, to the study of the Byzantine Anastasian Wall and associated features conducted by Jim Crow of the University of Newcastle upon Tyne.

Subscription to the Institute costs £30 per annum (£15 for students and those who are unwaged). Members are entitled to copies of the Institute's journal, Anatolian Studies, and of its annual publication on current research, Anatolian Archaeology, a discount on other Institute publications, notification of conferences and lectures, and access to the library, other research resources and accommodation in Ankara.
