International Environmental Law and Policy

(Foundation Press 1998, 1,564 pages, $56.95)

- An indispensable reference for understanding the forces responsible for global environmental problems, as well as the specific legal responses that are reshaping the way governments, businesses, and civil society interact.
- A comprehensive textbook that allows professors to design courses to fit their interests and background.
- Part I presents the problems, players, and principles that shape the legal discourse (503 pages).
- Part II explains the science, economics, and politics of specific global environmental problems, along with the specific legal responses (602 pages).
- Part III analyzes the relationship with other legal regimes, including Trade and Investment, Human Rights, National Security, and Corporate Codes of Conduct (338 pages).

CONTENTS

	PAGE
The Political Economy of a Bilateral Investment Treaty Kenneth J. Vandeveld An astonishing increase in the number of bilateral investment treaties concluded during the 1990s appears to signal the emergence of a liberal international investment regime. The author argues, however, that these treaties are best understood as economic nationalist rather than liberal instruments. He concludes with a summary of proposed modifications to the treaties that would render them more genuinely liberal.	621
The Legal Mandate of Multilateral Development Banks as Agents for Change toward Sustainable Development Günther Handl In view of multilateral development banks' critical role in global development, can furthering sustainable development be squared with their mandate to base lending activities exclusively on "economic considerations"? This article shows that these activities are delineated by general international law, if not by certain special obligations. It concludes that the normative implications of sustainable development provide both a legal basis for considering noneconomic factors in lending activities, and an international legal dimension requiring banks to apply environmental and social development criteria.	642

THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

The American Society of International Law was organized in 1906 "to foster the study of international law and to promote the establishment and maintenance of international relations on the basis of law and justice." Society membership is open to all persons of whatever nationality and profession who are interested in its objectives. Dues are: regular, $125; special category, $90; intermediate, $95; student, $45. Sustaining Memberships—contributing ($225), supporting ($350), annual patrons ($825) and patrons ($7,500)—are also available. Corporations may join ASIL as institutional members ($2,000).
