

Thompson of the Rockefeller Foundation, David Easton of the University of Chicago and Bryce Wood of the Social Science Research Council were present and participated in the conference for part of the time. Discussion, based upon papers circulated in advance, ranged widely within the general framework of the subject of the conference: "Political Theory and the Organization and Processes of Modern Democracy." Special consideration was given to the opportunities for empirical and other research to contribute to the solution, clarification or validation of the theoretical problems discussed.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

The American Political Science Association has announced a new award program, the J. Kimbrough Owen Memorial Award, for the most significant doctoral dissertation within the general field of state and local government. A lifetime membership in the Association, the cash value of which is $250, will be awarded the author of the winning dissertation.

The John Hay Whitney Foundation, 630 Fifth Ave., New York 20, N. Y., announces the ninth year of its Opportunity Fellowships for 1958-59. The closing date for applications, to be presented on forms provided by the Foundation on request, is November 30. The competition is open to any citizen of the United States or territorial resident who has given positive evidence of special ability and superior promise and who has not had full opportunity to develop his talents because of arbitrary barriers, such as racial or cultural background or region of residence. Awards have been made in the past to Negroes, Spanish-Americans, Chinese- and Japanese-Americans, American Indians, residents of the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Guam, Alaska, Samoa and the Appalachian Mountain area. Candidates are in general expected to be between the ages of 22 and 35, and to have completed their undergraduate college education. Awards are for a full year of serious work in any field and normally range from $1000 to $3000. Results of the competition will be announced in the latter part of April, 1958.

The University of Chicago and the University of Virginia are sponsoring the publication of a new and complete edition of the papers of James Madison. The editors will appreciate information about the location of letters by or to James Madison or his wife, especially letters in private possession or among uncalendared manuscripts in the collection of public or private institutions. Please address The Papers of James Madison, 1126 East 59th St., Chicago 37, Illinois.

The Committee for Economic Development is conducting a competition of ideas on the question "What is the most important economic problem which the United States must face in the next twenty years?" Papers to be submitted are to be not more than two thousand words in length. The competition is open to anyone in the Free World except trustees, employees and their families, consultants and advisors to the committees or subcommittees of the Committee for Economic Development. The deadline for the papers is October 31, 1957. Entries should be addressed to "Problems of United States Economic Development" Committee for Economic Development, 444 Madison Ave., New York 22, N. Y.

Section K—Social and Economic Sciences—of the American Association for the Advancement of Science will hold a session for contributed papers at the annual meeting of the AAAS in Indianapolis, December 26-31, 1957. Association members interested in presenting a paper at this session should forward titles and abstracts not later than October 15 to the secretary of section K, Donald P. Ray, George Washington University, Washington 6, D. C. The American Political Science Association is an affiliate member of the section on Social and Economic Sciences of the AAAS.

Plans for a new School of International Service under the auspices of The American University in Washington have been announced by president Hurst R. Anderson. The school is not to be a foreign service school exclusively or even primarily. It is to be a school for the preparation of selected young men and women in several varieties of international service. Extensive use will be made of area studies dealing with all parts of the world. Professor Pittman B. Potter has been working on the problems concerning the school program and student and staff personnel. The staff will consist of members of the University faculty and numerous experts from government departments and international agencies. Ernest S. Griffith, director of the legislative reference service of the Library of Congress, has been designated as dean of the new school.

Effective September 1, 1957, the department of social science of Wake Forest College was divided into two departments, a department of history and a department of political science. The staff of the department of political science consists of Claud H. Richards, Jr. (promoted to full professor) chairman, and Roy Jumper, assistant professor of political science.

Thirty-five leading scholars and specialists on African affairs named Melville J. Herskovits, director of the Northwestern University program of African studies, president of the newly created African Studies Association. This new formal organization will service the needs and interests of individual scholars, university African programs, and organizations concerned with Africa. Gwendolen M. Carter, Smith College, is serving as vice-president. A board of trustees empowered to draft a constitution and administer association affairs until the convening of the first annual meeting was also set up.

Effective July 1, 1957, The Roper Public Opinion Research Center was established at Williams College. The main function of the Center is to make the Roper survey materials available to American educators and their students for teaching and research purposes. Philip K. Hastings, associate professor of psychology and political science has been appointed director. The Center contains the raw materials of more than 600,000 interviews, dating from 1938, conducted by the Roper organization for Fortune magazine and various American industries. Through periodic gifts from Mr. Roper the collection is growing at the rate of about 12 studies each year.

The department of political science at the University of North Carolina has received a three-year grant from the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation to institute a program of field work and participation in politics as primary elements of the learning experience in its courses on the political process. The program, inaugurated this fall, is under the direction of Donald Matthews, formerly of Smith College, who will serve as Falk lecturer in political science.

The political science department of Rutgers University and the Eagleton Foundation have begun a cooperative program in practical politics leading to the master's degree. The core of the program is centered around a seminar in practical politics taught by Neil A. McDonald and Donald G. Herzberg, executive secretary of the Eagleton Foundation. The new program is designed for students who wish to enter government service through political rather than civil service channels.

A California state legislative internship program has been established, starting this fall, under the sponsorship and joint participation of five universities in the state offering graduate work, in cooperation with the Rules Committee of the State Assembly. Under the program which is patterned after the congressional internship plan of the American Political Science Association, up to fifteen interns will be appointed annually for a period of ten months service with the Assembly and its staff agencies. Interns, who will receive a stipend of $400 monthly, will devote full time to the program, and will reside in Sacramento or wherever their duties require. They will normally be enrolled as graduate students in one of the participating universities, and may receive credit for the internship, which includes participation in a weekly seminar on the legislative process. The participating universities include the University of California, Berkeley and Los Angeles, Stanford University, University of Southern California and the Claremont Graduate Schools. An unusual feature of the program is the joint sponsorship by the departments of political science, journalism and the school of law at these institutions and the availability of the program to graduate students of other social science departments. The program is financed jointly by the State Assembly and the participating universities. The Ford Foundation has made a five year grant to cover half of the annual stipends of the interns. Eugene Lee of the department of political science of the University of California, Berkeley, has been appointed faculty supervisor of the program.

The University of Pittsburgh has established an administrative science center on its campus. James D. Thompson, associate professor of administration at Cornell University and editor of Administrative Science Quarterly has been appointed head of the center. Experimental in nature, the new center is founded on the thesis that administration as a process in the operation of an organization has progressed beyond the stage of being an art and may now be properly considered a science.

A new quarterly journal of world affairs, Orbis, is being published for the Foreign Policy Research Institute by the University of Pennsylvania Press. The new periodical will solicit articles and reviews from contributors in the United States and other countries. It hopes to make available to the American public writings from abroad which are not easily accessible even to American specialists in foreign affairs.

Arnaud B. Leavelle, Stanford University political scientist, who died last October, has been honored by the Stanford class of '58 with a gift of $1000 to establish the Leavelle Memorial Fund. Interest from the fund will provide an annual prize for the outstanding student in political science 150, the course in political theory which was Dr. Leavelle's favorite.

An educational, non-profit institution, The Academy of Organizational Science, has been founded in San Antonio by Colonel Leland B. Kuhre, to deal with the problems of participation in and management of the organization for human enterprise. Further information about the organization and its publication Atorgenic Aspects can be obtained by writing to The Academy of Organizational Science, 203 Greenlawn Dr., San Antonio 1, Texas.

William Anderson retired from the department of political science at the University of Minnesota at the close of the year 1956-57. To honor him for his contributions to the profession and to the political life of the Twin Cities, the state, and the nation, the department held a three day conference, "Political Science: Today and Tomorrow" on May 9, 10 and 11. The participants in the conference were either former Minnesota colleagues of Professor Anderson or students who had received their doctors' degrees under his direction. Papers were presented by Robert Cushman (Cornell), John Gaus (Harvard), J. Edward Gerald (Minnesota), Harold Quigley (Minnesota), Francis Rourke (Johns Hopkins), Edwin Stene (Kansas), Edward Weidner (Michigan State), and Quincy Wright (Chicago). The final paper, "The Future of Political Science in the United States" was presented by Professor Anderson. At a testimonial dinner for Professor and Mrs. Anderson on May 10th, Professor Anderson was presented with a bound volume of letters from colleagues, former students and persons in public life.

Charles S. Ascher and Erwin Bard of Brooklyn College attended the Round Table of the International Institute of Administrative Sciences at Opatija, Yugoslavia, in June, 1957. Professors Ascher and Albert Gorvine of Brooklyn College attended the Congress of the International Union of Local Authorities in The Hague in June, 1957. In addition Professor Ascher attended a meeting of the Council of the International Federation for Housing and Town Planning in West Berlin during August.

Stephen K. Bailey will be on leave from Princeton for the academic year 1957-58 on a Fulbright lectureship at Oxford University.

Gordon E. Baker, assistant professor of political science at the University of California, Santa Barbara College, has been awarded a grant in state politics by the Social Science Research Council for the summer of 1957.

Paul C. Bartholomew of Notre Dame taught at the summer session of Northwestern University.

Kenneth E. Beasley has been granted a leave of absence from his duties as assistant director of the governmental research center, University of Kansas, to serve as executive director of the legislative committee on efficiency and economy in government for the state of Kansas.

Anthony T. Bouscaren, associate professor of political science at Marquette University, has been granted a leave of absence during 1957-1958 to join the staff of The National War College in Washington, D. C.

Phillips Bradley, Maxwell School, Syracuse University, will spend the academic year 1957-58 at the University of New Delhi. While there, Professor Bradley will be assisting in the development of an American Studies program at the graduate level.

Henry L. Bretton has returned to his duties as assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan after spending a year at the University of Innsbruck, Austria.

Denis W. Brogan, professor of political science at Cambridge University, has been appointed visiting professor of political science at Yale University for the fall term, 1957-58. Professor Brogan taught at the summer session of the University of California, Berkeley.

Edward H. Buehrig of the department of government at Indiana University will spend the academic year as visiting professor at the American University of Beirut, Lebanon under a Smith-Mundt grant.

Ronald F. Bunn, instructor in government at the University of Texas spent the summer doing research at the Chicago offices of the Inland Steel Corporation under a fellowship granted by the Foundation for Economic Education.

Eugene Burdick, University of California, Berkeley, has received a grant from the Fund for the Republic to undertake a study in the field of civil liberties.

Robert K. Carr of Dartmouth College has been granted a leave of absence to serve as general secretary of the American Association of University professors. He assumed his duties on September 1, 1957. In his absence Robert A. Horn of Stanford will serve as visiting professor.

Byrum E. Carter, associate professor of government at Indiana University received the Frederick Bachman Lieber award for distinguished teaching at the Founders Day ceremonies, May 1. The award is made annually to the teacher selected by an all-University committee of 10 faculty members and administrators.

John Chapman of Smith College was a member of the staff of the 1957 University of California summer session.

James C. Charlesworth, professor of political science, University of Pennsylvania, recently concluded his services as executive director of the Pennsylvania State Reorganization Commission. The Commission submitted a series of seven reports to the General Assembly.

Hugh Clokie, lecturer in political science, University of California, Berkeley, who spent the 1956-57 year in teaching at Vanderbilt University and in travel in the Caribbean and Africa, resumed teaching at Berkeley this fall.

George A. Coddington, Jr., assistant professor of political science, University of Pennsylvania, has been awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for 1957-58.

Thomas I. Cook served as lecturer in political theory at the several terms of the mid-career training course which is offered by the Department of State for the benefit of its Foreign Service personnel.

Joseph Costanzo, S.J., of Fordham University, delivered four lectures at the Spring Hill College Forum last April on "Religious Liberty and the First Amendment."

Cecil V. Crabb, assistant professor of political science at Vassar College, has been awarded a Vassar College Faculty Fellowship for 1957-58.

Robert T. Daland, assistant professor at the University of Connecticut spent the summer on research for a nation-wide research project on urban renewal politics sponsored by the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of California and the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

John Dorsey of Michigan State University will begin a two year assignment in Vietnam in June in connection with the MSU technical assistance program there.

Cecil H. Driver, chairman of the department of political science at Yale University suffered a heart attack in December, 1956. Pending his full recovery, James W. Fesler served as acting chairman from January to June, 1957, and Robert A. Dahl is serving as acting chairman from June, 1957 to June, 1958. Professor Driver resumed his teaching activities in September, 1957.

Arthur B. Dugan, chairman of the department of political science at the University of the South, will serve as acting dean of administration for the academic year 1957-58.

Joseph Dunner, chairman of the political science department at Grinnell College, lectured at the Johann Wolfgang Goethe University of Frankfurt, West Germany in July and at the Hebrew University in Jerusalem in August. He has been granted a sabbatical leave for the second semester of 1957-58 which he will spend in India and Japan.

Martin L. Faust, of the University of Missouri, taught at the University of Illinois summer session.

Robert Y. Fluno, of Whitman College, will be on leave of absence for the academic year 1957-58 while engaged as Fulbright lecturer at Rajshahi University of East Pakistan.

C. Nolan Fortenberry served as visiting professor of political science at the University of Alabama during the summer of 1957.

Ludwig Freund of Roosevelt University will spend the first semester of the 1957-58 academic year lecturing at German universities under the auspices of the "Gesellschaft zur wissenschaftlichen Foerderung Politischer Literatur."

Alex T. Edelman will be visiting professor of political science at the University of Nebraska during 1957-58.

Keener Chapman Frazer returned to the University of North Carolina in September, 1957, after two years leave of absence during which he served as Chester W. Nimitz professor of social and political science at the Naval War College in Newport, R. I.

Louis L. Gerson of the University of Connecticut will be directing a full-time research project, financed by congressional funds, on the impact of ethnic groups on American foreign policy, during the academic year 1957-58.

Federico G. Gil returned to the University of North Carolina in September, 1957 after a year's leave of absence spent in Chile on a Rockefeller Foundation grant-in-aid.

Wesley L. Gould of Purdue University has received a leave of absence for the fall semester 1957-58 for the purpose of accepting a National Science Research Council fellowship and a Purdue University XL summer grant for study at the Hague.

Frank Grace of the University of Michigan taught at the University of Illinois summer session.

Leo Gross, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, taught at the summer session of the University of California.

Ernst Haas is on partial leave of absence from the University of California, Berkeley, for the 1957 calendar year.

Louis J. Halle of the University of Virginia will remain on leave in Geneva during the 1957-58 academic year on the faculty of the Institut Universitaire de Hautes Etudes Internationales.

William H. Harbold of the University of Washington was engaged in the summer of 1957 as research specialist on the Library Government Project sponsored by the Ford Foundation and the Pacific Northwest Library Association.

Joseph Harris has returned to full-time teaching at the University of California, Berkeley, following a half-year of service at the University of Bologna graduate school of administrative sciences and after a year of sabbatical leave as Fulbright Scholar (England) and Guggenheim Fellow. He was also the recipient of a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

Robert J. Harris of Vanderbilt University is serving as visiting professor of American Government at Columbia University during 1957-1958.

Carroll Hawkins of Michigan State University will be on leave at the University of the Andes in Bogota, Colombia for a year.

Alexander Heard is on leave from the University of North Carolina from February 1, 1957 to January 31, 1958, as Ford Research professor of government at Harvard University.

Richard H. Heindel, vice-chancellor and professor of history and government, University of Buffalo was the recipient of an honorary degree at Wagner College.

Dell G. Hitchner, who is on a year's leave from the University of Washington to serve as head of the American Section of the Hansard Society for Parliamentary Government (London), delivered a series of lectures on the background of American politics at the Congress of European American Associations' Seminar on American Life at Salzburg, May 26-June 8, 1957.

Lynwood M. Holland has an Emory University research grant to study metropolitan planning in the South.

John Perry Horlacher, professor of political science, University of Pennsylvania, has been named chairman of a tripartite minimum wage board set up under the Act of 1937 for the purpose of establishing minimum wage rates for retail trade throughout the State of Pennsylvania.

David Horton of Westminster College taught at the University of Missouri during the summer session.

Charles D. Hounshell of Emory University was a Commonwealth Summer Research Scholar at the Duke University Commonwealth-Studies Center.

Edwin C. Hoyt, of Columbia University, has been appointed visiting assistant professor of government at Hamilton College for the year 1957-58.

Ronald F. Howell of Emory University was visiting professor at the Johns Hopkins University for the summer quarter.

Nobutake Ike, of the Hoover Institute, Stanford University will spend 1957-58 as visiting associate professor of political science at the University of California, Berkeley.

Jack Isakoff, director of research of the Illinois Legislative Council is a visiting professor of political science at the University of Illinois during the first semester of this academic year.

Louis G. Kahle, associate professor of political science at the University of Missouri will be on sabbatical leave of absence during the second semester of the 1957-58 academic year, having been granted a research fellowship by the University of Missouri.

Gladys M. Kammerer of the University of Kentucky was elected Distinguished Professor of the year by her colleagues of the Arts and Science faculty. Under terms of the election she was granted relief from academic duties during the first semester and gave a public university lecture in April.

Hans Kelsen, professor emeritus, University of California, Berkeley, is spending the summer as visiting lecturer at the University of Athens and the Graduate Institute of International Studies, Geneva.

Norman Kogan of the University of Connecticut will be on sabbatical leave during the academic year 1957-58. He will be in Italy doing work on foreign policy formation.

Samuel J. Konefsky of Brooklyn College will be a member of the School of Historical Studies of the Institute for Advanced Studies, Princeton, for the academic year 1957-58.

Richard J. Kozicki of the University of Pennsylvania has received a Ford Fellowship for research in India and Burma.

George A. Lanyi, of Oberlin College, will be an academic consultant in international relations and social science at the Naval War College in Newport, R. I., from July to December. In the second half of 1957-58 he will be on sabbatical leave, which he plans to spend in research in England.

William F. Larsen, on leave from his duties at the Graduate School of Public Administration and Social Service at New York University, has joined the NYU group at the University of Athens. En route to Turkey, Professor Larsen was a member of the US delegations to the meetings of the IULA at the Hague and the IIAS at Opatija, Yugoslavia.

Carl Leiden of Marshall College was a member of the 1957 summer session at the University of California.

Albert Lepawsky, University of California, Berkeley, was on leave of absence for the spring and summer terms, 1957, to undertake research in Europe.

Charles O. Lerche was director of the seminar in international relations sponsored by the Ford Foundation at Emory University during the past summer.

John D. Lewis, of Oberlin College, taught in the first summer session of the University of California (Berkeley).

Leslie Lipson, who is on leave of absence from the University of California, Berkeley, for the fall of 1957, spent the summer in Europe doing study and research.

Gerhard Loewenberg, assistant professor of political science at Mount Holyoke College will be at the University of Bonn from June, 1957 to January, 1958 on a Fulbright grant.

Norton Long of Michigan State University is going to Harvard as visiting professor of government and research associate in the graduate school of public administration. He will be working with Charles Cherington on a study of metropolitan leadership under a grant from the Stern Family Foundation to the G.A.I.

Clarence C. Ludwig, professor of political science and director of the municipal reference bureau of the University of Minnesota, has been appointed by Governor Freeman as one of seven citizen members of the newly established Twin Cities Area Metropolitan Planning Commission.

Joseph Maloney of Fordham University is a visiting professor of political science at Hunter College during 1957-58.

Gerard J. Mangone of the Maxwell School, Syracuse University, was appointed special lecturer on American foreign policy for the Council on Student Travel of New York during the summer. Professor Mangone visited Yugoslavia as part of an overseas interviewing project on Americans At Work Abroad which the Maxwell School, supported by the Carnegie Corporation of New York, is conducting.

Roscoe Martin, Jesse V. Burkhead, and Guthrie S. Birkhead, Maxwell School, Syracuse University have been awarded a joint grant by the Ford Foundation for a study of water resources policy administration.

Dwaine Marvick and Charles Nixon, University of California at Los Angeles, have received a joint grant from the Committee on Political Behavior, Social Science Research Council, for a study dealing with active campaign workers.

Alpheus T. Mason, McCormick professor of jurisprudence at Princeton, gave the Edward Douglass White Lectures at Louisiana State University on March 27, 28 and 29. His book Harlan Fiske Stone: Pillar of the Law, was awarded the American Library Association Liberty and Justice Prize of $5,000 in History and Biography.

Edwin B. McPheron has been granted sabbatical leave for the first semester of 1957-58 to carry on research projects in England and Sweden.

Douglas H. Mendel, Jr., University of California at Los Angeles, has been awarded a grant by the Comparative Politics Committee of the Social Science Research Council for a field survey in Japan which he will conduct from June, 1957 until early 1958. He has been granted a sabbatical leave for the second half of 1957-58.

Eugene Miller was on the staff of the summer session at the University of Hawaii.

Malcolm Moos and Francis E. Rourke are director and assistant director respectively for the Committee on Government and Higher Education to conduct a study under the financial auspices of the Fund for the Advancement of Education from February 1957 through the succeeding academic year. They are on half-time leave from The Johns Hopkins University for the completion of the study.

Robert J. Morgan, University of Nebraska, will be on leave of absence at the University of Virginia for the academic year 1957-58.

Herbert J. Muller of Indiana University spent the summer in Cambridge, England on a grant from the Fund for the Republic, doing research on the unpublished papers of Lord Acton.

James N. Murray, Jr. of the State University of Iowa has been awarded a grant by the Ford Foundation to study at Columbia University in the field of sociology and anthropology.

Lloyd D. Musolf and Nelson Taylor of Vassar College have undertaken a study for the Temporary State Commission on a Constitution Convention of the State of New York.

Sigmund Neumann of Wesleyan University taught at the summer session of the University of Michigan.

Peter Odegard has resumed full-time teaching at the University of California, Berkeley, following a year's leave of absence.

Richard Park, of the Modern India Project under the Institute of International Studies, University of California, Berkeley, will be on leave during the spring term, 1958 to carry on research in the South Asia field.

Robert J. Pitchell has received a two-year leave of absence at Purdue University to accept an appointment as resident director, Indiana Commission on State Tax and Financing Policy.

James K. Pollock, Murfin professor of political science and chairman of the department of political science at the University of Michigan was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree by the University of Pittsburgh in May.

Ralph E. Purcell of the University of Virginia has been awarded a grant by the Committee on Comparative Politics of the Social Science Research Council.

Emmette S. Redford, professor of government at the University of Texas spent the summer at Columbia University where he served as visiting professor in the department of public law and government.

John S. Reshetar of Yale University has been appointed as acting associate professor at the University of Washington.

Donald Rhodes, administrative consultant, governmental research center, University of Kansas, has been given a leave of absence to serve on the staff of the legislative committee on efficiency and economy in government for the State of Kansas.

Channing B. Richardson has received a Ford Fellowship for study and travel in Africa. He will also lecture at the University College of Rhodesia and Nyasaland at Salisbury in Central Africa.

Arnold A. Rogow of the State University of Iowa has been awarded a research professorship for the first semester of 1957-58.

Joseph S. Roucek, chairman of the department of political science and sociology at the University of Bridgeport has been appointed American editor of Il Politico, a quarterly published by the University of Pavia (Italy) under the editor-in-chief, Bruno Leoni.

Walter E. Sandelius, professor of political science at the University of Kansas, has been named chairman of Governor George Docking's Commission on Constitution Revision.

Robert Scalapino is on sabbatical leave from the University of California, Berkeley, to spend 15 months in Japan and the Far East under a Rockefeller Foundation grant.

Elmer E. Schattschneider directed a program of thirteen television interviews under the direction of NBC in cooperation with the Educational Television and Radio Center under the title of "The American Government and the Pursuit of Happiness."

Robert Scigliano, assistant professor of political science at Michigan State University, will begin a two year assignment in Vietnam in June in connection with the MSU technical assistance program there.

George Sherrill, head of the department of political science at the University of South Carolina will retire at the close of the summer session of 1957. He will be succeeded by Henry B. Mayo of the University of Alberta, Canada.

Mulford Q. Sibley of Minnesota has accepted an appointment as visiting professor at Stanford University for 1957-58.

William J. Siffin of the department of government at Indiana University has joined the staff of the Institute of public administration at the University of Thammasat in Bangkok, Thailand as visiting professor.

R. G. Steinmeyer, who taught in the University of Maryland overseas program in the Far East during the spring semester, has returned to teaching on the campus at College Park.

Edwin O. Stene, professor of political science, University of Kansas, has been granted a leave of absence to accept an appointment as professor of political science, University of the Philippines for the academic year 1957-58.

Albert L. Sturm, professor of political science at West Virginia University has been granted a leave of absence for two years. He will join the New York University group at the University of Ankara, in October, as professor of public administration.

Carl B. Swisher lectured at the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies during the March-April term. In May he was awarded an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws by West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Eduard Taborsky of the University of Texas spent the summer at the University of Tennessee.

Jan Triska, of the Hoover Institute, Stanford, has been appointed visiting lecturer at the University of California, Berkeley.

Julian Towster, University of California, Berkeley, is spending the summer in travel and study in Russia, Eastern Europe, and the Middle East under grants from the Rockefeller Foundation and the Committee on University Travel. He will also be on leave during the spring semester, 1958.

Amry Vandenbosch of the University of Kentucky will serve as a Fulbright lecturer at Leiden University during 1957-58.

Dwight Waldo, University of California, Berkeley, has returned to full-time teaching after a year's service at the University of Bologna graduate school of administrative sciences.

Schuyler C. Wallace, executive officer of the department of public law and government and director of the school of international Affairs at Columbia University, is returning to the United States after a six-months' trip around the world on work related to the school of international affairs and the Near and Middle East Institute.

E. V. Walter of Ohio Wesleyan University will be on leave for the year 1957-58 doing research under a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation.

Herbert Waltzer who has been chief personnel psychologist at the Armed Forces Examining Station in New York City has joined the department of government at Miami University as visiting assistant professor.

Robert E. Ward has returned to his duties as associate professor of political science at the University of Michigan after spending a year in Japan.

Egbert S. Wengert, head of the department of political science at the University of Oregon, has returned to the University of Oregon after spending a year as visiting professor of public administration at the institute of public administration, University of Philippines.

William S. White, of the New York Times, has been appointed Regents' professor at the University of California, Berkeley, for 1957-58, to serve as visiting professor of journalism, in cooperation with the political science faculty.

Robert R. Wilson, professor of political science and director of graduate studies in the department of political science at Duke University, was elected president of the American Society of International Law at the last meeting of the Society.

Glenn G. Wiltsey, chairman of the department of government, University of Rochester, has been chosen to fill the R. T. French exchange professorship at the University of Hull, England during the next academic year. During his absence, William E. Diez will serve as acting chairman of the department.

Sheldon Wolin, University of California, Berkeley, has been granted leave of absence for the 1957 calendar year.

Herbert H. Wood, assistant professor at the University of Maine was a member of the summer study group on the teaching of international relations at Emory University.

Lloyd W. Woodruff, formerly of the bureau of government, university extension division, University of Wisconsin, recently accepted a two year appointment from Michigan State University as a public administration specialist with the Vietnam project.

Robert Yee, formerly of the bureau of governmental research, University of Washington, has been appointed instructor at Whitman College.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Henry J. Abraham has been promoted to associate professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania.

John A. Anderegg, doctoral candidate at Rutgers University, is currently a foreign service officer in Colombo, Ceylon.

Totton J. Anderson has been promoted to professor of political science at the University of Southern California. He became chairman of the department commencing with the fall semester.

Charles Adrian has been promoted to the rank of associate professor at Michigan State University.

Chester W. Bain has been promoted to associate professor at the University of Virginia. He will continue as assistant director of the bureau of public administration.

Benjamin Baker has been promoted to associate professor at Rutgers University.

William B. Ballis, formerly of the University of Washington, has been appointed professor of political science at the University of Michigan.