

Report and acknowledgments for the year 2021

Jonathan Baron, on behalf of the other editors: Mandeep Dhami and Andreas Glöckner

Here is the annual report for Judgment and Decision Making. We welcome suggestions and questions, including those concerning issues not mentioned here.

2021 was the second year of COVID-19. Many authors, reviewers, editors, and current and potential consulting and associate editors were slowed down, rarely by the disease itself but more often by the need to care for children stuck at home. Of course the number of submissions and published papers about issues related to COVID-19, including political issues, increased here, as they did everywhere else. This increased interest is likely to continue. We hope that 2022 is better for the disease. “Think positive. Test negative.” (from an email signature).

Personnel

New Associate Editors: none!

New Consulting Editors: Arvid Erlandsson, Esther Kaufmann, Michal Król, Miroslav Sirota, Erin Krupka (change of role)

Retiring Associate Editors: Shane Frederick, Leif Nelson, Gretchen Chapman, Shane Frederick, Erin Krupka

Retiring Consulting Editors: Barry Schwartz

Data about the journal

The following plot shows the continuing trends: more submissions but also a clearer increase in the number of published articles. 69% of the rejections took 1 or 2 days.

For what it is worth, articles from Judgment and Decision Making continue to be cited at about the same rate as those from the most similar journal, Journal of Behavioral Decision Making. The impact factor (Web of Science) of Judgment and Decision Making for 2021 was 2.543, which is about the same as that for the Journal of Behavioral Decision Making (2.438). I am unable to find Google Scholar metrics for both journals.

Thanks

The journal depends on the help of many people. Reviewers and board members have been extremely cooperative and prompt in processing articles. We would like to thank everyone and hope that the quality and speed continue. The following is an approximate list of those who reviewed articles in 2021.

Technical stuff

We remain indebted to the many writers of the open-source software that make the production process possible and sometimes even fun: \LaTeX , OpenOffice, Emacs, Firefox, Perl, Linux, R, other GNU software, and especially Writer2LaTeX (which extracts papers from the clutches of Microsoft), and Hevea (which makes the html versions with almost no extra effort).
