Renaissance Society of America Reprint Texts (RSART)

DESIGNED TO KEEP IN PRINT VALUABLE WORKS
FOR YOUR COLLEGE CLASSROOM AND FOR YOUR BOOKSHELF.

How often have you ordered a well tested book for one of your courses on the Renaissance only to be told that the book was "out of print"? The "Renaissance Society of America Reprint Texts" (RSART) series might be exactly the solution for those frustrating cases where a textbook is no longer in print. Sponsored by the RSA and the University of Toronto Press, the RSART series is a series designed to keep in print — or reprint — the most treasured works in Renaissance studies. These can be either texts from the Renaissance itself or "classical" studies on the Renaissance. With a student budget in mind, the books are modestly priced. In the last eight years thirteen volumes have appeared, including Werner Gundersheimer's The Italian Renaissance, Gene Brucker's The Society of Renaissance Florence, and David Chambers' and Brian Pullan's Venice: A Documentary History. Most recently very attractive covers have been designed for these titles. The latest reprint came out just last month. It is Lucien Wolf's Jews in the Canary Islands. If you know of any out-of-print titles you would like considered for the series, please send me an email at eberstein@holycross.edu. We depend on your expertise. I will then contact the holder of the original copyright and start the negotiations. — by Eckhard Bernstein, Publications Chair
