“Brilliant . . . . Mr. Terrill’s rare genius is that he is able to mesh the research of the scholar with writing that has the color and the pace of the journalist.”

—Christian Science Monitor

“Journalistic yet authoritative . . . lively and readable, [goes] a long way toward demystifying a figure who nevertheless remains mysterious.”

—The New York Times

“Illuminating. . . A fascinating story.” —The Los Angeles Times

“A magnificent work, as elegant as Chinese calligraphy, as cunning as Chinese aphorisms.” —Newsday

“Ross Terrill, probably this country’s pre-eminent writer on China, has accomplished a major feat in this biography of the architect, builder and first caretaker of China’s contemporary revolution.”

—The Boston Globe

—The Wall Street Journal

“Succeeds in reaching the private man behind the public idol.” —The New Republic
