

JOHN M. COOK (1910–1994): A BIBLIOGRAPHY

JOHN COOK, whose distinguished career included nine years (1946–54) as Director of the British School at Athens, was a scholar of great industry, insight, and originality, and a teacher and colleague of exceptional warmth and generosity. This bibliography is intended partly as a tribute to the man and his work, partly as an aid to others whose interests are contingent on his own.

The publications are listed under headings which represent his main areas of scholarly activity and, within these, are divided by format (books, articles, reviews), each category being arranged chronologically (although some publications, such as his contributions to Archaeological Reports, are grouped together for convenience). The changing focuses of his activity can be identified by scrutinizing the chronology of the works listed in each major category.

The bibliography was initially compiled by RLNB and revised, categorized, and prepared for publication by KAS, who also traced some additional entries. We have tried to ensure that it is complete. We are very grateful for the interest and assistance of Mrs Nancy Cook. The system of abbreviations adopted is that of this journal.
