

P03-48

AGRESSION IN A DYNAMICALLY ORIENTED CRISIS UNIT. MANAGEMEMNT AND EVOLUTION

J. Guimón<sup>1</sup>, C. Mauruottolo<sup>2</sup>, F. Moneo<sup>2</sup>, J.A. Fernandez<sup>2</sup>, A. Boyra<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Departmental Section of Psychiatry, University of the Basque Country (UPV/EHU), <sup>2</sup>Emergency Services, AMSA, Bilbao, Spain

Acute episodes are treated in AMSA psychiatric services in a emergency service including a call center, domicilliary visits, a crisis unit, three short-term day hospitals and a short-term stay unit in a general hospital. An Intensive Brief Dynamic Group Therapy is offered in the units allowing for a decreased appearance of self and hetero aggression in patients both during the crisis and after one year as shown in a follow-up study.