

A REFLECTIVE TRADITION

The Moral Theology of Pope John Paul II

CHARLES E. CURRAN

"A penetrating analysis of the moral theology of one of the dominant religious leaders of our time by one of contemporary Catholicism's most respected thinkers. Catholics and non-Catholics alike will be impressed by Fr. Curran's insights and criticisms and by the fair-minded and gracious spirit in which he offers them."—J. Philip Wogaman, Wesley Theological Seminary

"Charles Curran has given us a much-needed volume and has done so in masterful vision. . . . No one serious about understanding Catholic social teaching can ignore this work."—John T. Pawlikowski, Catholic Theological Union

"This invaluable volume assembles the most respected experts in Catholic social ethics. . . . Not only does it treat the full range of topics one might anticipate, but it goes beyond the expected to offer original and creative insights regarding a venerable tradition of reflection upon life in society. The quality of the contributions is consistently outstanding. No teacher of Catholic ethics should be without this extraordinary resource, which promises to be a standard reference in the field for many years to come."—Thomas Massaro, S.J., Weston Jesuit School of Theology
