

C COMMUNITY OF SUFFERING AND STRUGGLE

Women, Men, and the Labor Movement in Minneapolis, 1915–1945

by Elizabeth Faue

Traces the transformation of the American labor movement from community forms of solidarity to bureaucratic unionism. "The confluence of labor, women, social history, and the rise of the New Deal state constitute together one of the hot areas in the current historiography, and Faue's work is, as they say, at the cutting edge."—Daniel J. As the importance of institutions rises within today's economy, the Political Economy of Institutions and Decisions Series sets out to answer two crucial questions: How do institutions evolve in response to individual incentives, strategies, and choices, and how do institutions affect the performance of political and economic systems?

Institutions, Institutional Change and Economic Performance

Douglass C. North

Continuing his groundbreaking analysis of economic structures, Douglass North develops an analytical framework for explaining the ways in which institutions and institutional change affect the performance of economies, both at a given time and over time.

The Rise of Financial Capitalism
International Capital Markets in the Age of Reason

Larry Neal

This work establishes the existence of a sophisticated system of financial markets in the mercantile states of northwestern Europe in the 1700s. Based on computer analysis of thousands of price quotes from the financial press of the eighteenth century, the results should force historians and economists to reevaluate their understanding of the evolution of financial markets and their importance for the economic developments of that era.

Economic Laws and Economic History

Charles P. Kindleberger

Too many economists discover a relationship or a uniformity in economic behavior, develop a model, and use it to explain more than it is capable of, including on occasion all economic behavior. The author makes a powerful case against the idea that any one model or law could be used to unlock the basic secrets of economic history.
