

The Journal of African Zoology (formerly Revue de Zoologie africaine) is a peer-reviewed journal founded in 1911.

It is the leading journal in African zoology with more than 100 volumes published and 43000 pages printed.

* Bilingual English (73 %) - French (27 %)

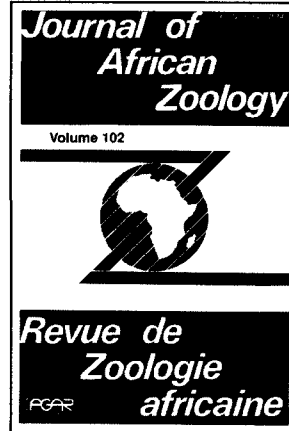

* Bimonthly (6 nos a year)

* Review papers

* Original contributions

* Short notes

*The African zoology in all aspects :
- from the elephant to the plasmodium,
- from systematics to ecology,
- from fundamental to applied biology.

TOMORROW IS TOO LATE TO ANALYZE THE COST OF BEING ECOLOGICALLY BLIND.

The grassroots movement begins with a few seeds of knowledge.

The Subsidy From Nature: Palm Forests, Peasantry, and Development on an Amazon Frontier by Anthony B. Anderson, Peter H. May, and Michael J. Balick explores policy alternatives that could promote sustained use of Brazil's naturally occurring babassu palm forests and enhance the livelihood of the half million rural families that depend on it for economic survival. Sixty-five photos expand understanding.

Towards a Unified Ecology by Timothy F.H. Allen and Thomas Hoekstra presents a new conceptual context for a more coherent ecology.

Ecological Economics: The Science and Management of Sustainability, edited by Robert Costanza offers a new trans-disciplinary approach to understanding and managing the ecology and economics of our world for sustainability, on local, regional, and global scales. Thirty-two chapters and over fifty illustrations cover the basic worldview of ecological economics: accounting, modeling, analysis of ecological economic systems, necessary institutional changes, and case studies.

Agriculture from Cambridge

The Journal of Agricultural Science

Published in six parts a year, this leading journal is concerned with the advance of agriculture and the use of land resources throughout the world. It publishes original scientific work related to strategic and applied studies in all aspects of agricultural science, including agronomy and crop physiology, breeding, genetics and pathology; soil science; animal nutrition, physiology and genetics; and the mathematical and statistical methods used in experimentation and data analysis. Recent articles include: Tillage and irrigation effects on root growth, soil water depletion and yield of wheat following rice; Uptake, cycling and fate of nitrogen in grass-clover swards continuously grazed by sheep.

Volumes 118 & 119, 1992. Published in February, April, June, August, October and December; £195; airmail £29 per year extra ISSN 0021-8596

Experimental Agriculture

This quarterly journal publishes the results of analytical research into the agronomy of crops, particularly the food, forage and industrial crops of the warmer regions of the earth. International in scope, it is especially concerned with experimental work conducted in the field and is designed to explain agronomic results in biological and environmental terms. It publishes accounts of new methods of experimental crop production and discussions of problems arising from the rapid expansion of agricultural production. Recent articles include: Effects of Age of Harvesting after Pod Set on the Growth, Yield and Quality of Okra; Towards the Reliable Prediction of Time to Flowering in Six Annual Crops. I. The Development of Simple Models for Fluctuating Field Environments.

Volume 28, 1992. Published in January, April, July and October. £76; £38 for TAA Members; airmail £15 per year extra ISSN 0014-4797
