

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

John Clarke Adams has been granted a two-years' leave of absence from the University of Buffalo to serve as professor of public administration at the American University of Beirut and to act as director of the newly established in-service training program in public administration for Arab government officials.

Henry M. Alexander, of the University of Arkansas, was a visiting professor of political science at the University of Missouri during the 1954 summer session.

David Apter, who recently received the Ph.D. degree at Princeton University after completing extensive field research in the Gold Coast, West Africa, has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of political science at Northwestern University.

Robert S. Avery returned to the University of Tennessee in September after a years' leave of absence.

Stephen K. Bailey, formerly of Wesleyan University, has been appointed director of the graduate program of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University. He will hold the William Church Osborn Professorship of Public Affairs.

Sidney Baldwin, who completed his work for the Ph.D. degree at Syracuse University while serving as a member of the faculty of Wesleyan University, has accepted an appointment as instructor of political science at Northwestern University.

William M. Beany, assistant professor of politics at Princeton University, has been granted a leave of absence for 1954-55.

Paul Beckett has been promoted to professor of public administration at the State College of Washington.

George A. Bell has been appointed predoctoral instructor in political science at the University of Michigan.

Fredrick T. Bent has been appointed chairman of the department of public administration at the American University of Beirut.

Marver H. Bernstein has been promoted to the rank of associate professor in the department of politics, Princeton University.

Donald C. Blaisdell has been appointed visiting professor of political science at Wellesley College for 1954-55.

Charles Blitzer has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor of political science at Yale University. He has been awarded a research grant by the Rockefeller Foundation and is on leave of absence during 1954-55 to conduct research in England on the idea of property in the 17th and 18th centuries.

Virgil C. Blum has joined the department of political science at Creighton University as an instructor.

Henry L. Bretton has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan.

Richard G. Brown, Military Intelligence Research Specialist, Office of Assistant Chief of Staff, Department of the Army, has been advanced to the rank of professorial lecturer in political science in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

George P. Bush has been promoted to the rank of professor in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

Robert K. Carr, of Dartmouth College, was a visiting professor at Columbia University during the 1954 summer session.

H. Paul Castleberry, who has been on leave of absence as a Fulbright lecturer in Egypt, has been promoted to associate professor of international relations at the State College of Washington.

Chen Kin Cheng, associate professor of political science at the University of Hawaii, was a visiting member of the faculty at the University of North Carolina during the 1954 summer session.

Harwood L. Childs resumed his duties as professor of politics at Princeton University in September after spending the past year in Brazil.

Sven Christian Clausen, professor of law at the University of Copenhagen and distinguished playwright, is a Whitney-Fulbright visiting lecturer at the University of North Carolina during the fall semester.

Winston W. Crouch, of the University of California (Los Angeles), has received a Fulbright award to spend the 1954-55 academic year in New Delhi, India.

Robert Dahl, of Yale University, taught at Northwestern University during the 1954 summer session.

James F. Davidson has been appointed to an assistant professorship in political science at the University of Tennessee.

Claude J. Davis has been appointed to an instructorship in political science at the University of Tennessee for the year 1954-55.

W. Phillips Davison, associate of the Rand Corporation, has been promoted to the rank of professorial lecturer in political science in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

David Derge, formerly a graduate teaching assistant at Northwestern University, has accepted an instructorship in political science at the University of Missouri.

Karl W. Deutsch, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was a visiting professor in the department of political science at the University of Chicago during the summer quarter, 1954.

Gottfried Dietze has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of political science at the Johns Hopkins University, beginning in September, 1954.

Robert B. Dishman is serving as acting chairman of the department of government at the University of New Hampshire during the current academic year.

Jean Driscoll, formerly a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, is serving as research associate in connection with the Curriculum Development Project of the Northwestern University political science department.

Stephen Early, Jr., formerly of the University of Virginia, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at DePauw University.

William Ebenstein, professor of politics at Princeton University, was visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan during the summer of 1954.

Samuel J. Eldersveld, of the University of Michigan, has been granted a Fulbright fellowship to the Netherlands and will be on sabbatical leave for the academic year 1954-55.

Russell R. Elliott has been promoted to associate professor of history and political science at the University of Nevada.

Alona E. Evans is on leave of absence during 1954-55 from Wellesley College to study the status of political asylum in international law.

R. Barry Farrell has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor of political science at Yale University. He spent the summer of 1954 in Europe as the recipient of the Blanche Elizabeth MacLeish Billings Memorial Award.

Russell H. Fifield has been promoted to the rank of professor of political science at the University of Michigan. He returned to Ann Arbor in September after a years' leave spent in research in Southeast Asia.

Wesley R. Fishel has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at Michigan State College. He will continue as assistant director of the Governmental Research Bureau.

Russell H. Fitzgibbon, professor of political science at the University of California (Los Angeles), taught in the summer session at the University of Nebraska.

Peter J. Fliess, of Louisiana State University, has been promoted to associate professor of government, effective September, 1954.

Alexander George, associate of the Rand Corporation, has been promoted to the rank of professorial lecturer in political science in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

Louis L. Gerson has been promoted to assistant professor in the department of government and international relations at the University of Connecticut.

Charles Gilbert, a member of the staff of Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota while writing his thesis for the Ph.D. degree at Northwestern, has accepted a position in the political science department at Oberlin College. During the second semester of 1953-54, Mr. Gilbert was an instructor at Swarthmore College.

Gilbert F. Gilchrist, who received his Ph.D.

degree from the Johns Hopkins University in June, 1954, is spending the present year in England on a Fulbright fellowship.

William Goodman is on leave from the University of Tennessee during the fall quarter of 1954 to teach at Vanderbilt.

George Grassmuck, formerly assistant professor of political science at UCLA, has been appointed associate professor of public administration at the American University of Beirut.

Raymond H. Gusteson has been advanced to the rank of associate professor in the department of government at Ohio University, Athens, Ohio.

Randy H. Hamilton, Washington Director of the American Municipal Association, has been promoted to the rank of professorial lecturer in public administration in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

Robert J. Harris has resigned as professor and head of the department of government at Louisiana State University to accept an appointment as professor of political science at Vanderbilt University, effective September 1, 1954.

Lashley G. Harvey returned to Boston University and the chairmanship of the government department on September 1 after a year's leave, which he spent at the Public Administration Institute for Turkey and the Middle East, Ankara, Turkey.

Lowell H. Hattery has been promoted to the rank of professor in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

Jerzy Hauptmann, chairman of the political science department at Park College, has been promoted to the rank of associate professor.

Carroll Hawkins, associate professor of political science at Michigan State College, began a year's sabbatical leave on September 1, 1954.

John T. Holden, chairman of the department of government at the University of New Hampshire, is spending the present academic year as a Fulbright lecturer in public administration and political theory at Chulalonghorn University in Bangkok, Thailand.

David Horton, of Westminster College, was a visiting professor of political science at the University of Missouri during the 1954 summer session.

Philip E. Jacob has been promoted to professor of political science at the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. Professor Jacob is Director of the Summer School and the College Collateral Courses.

Judith Norvell Jamison, who has been awarded a fellowship by the Haynes Foundation, is on a year's educational leave of absence from the Bureau of Governmental Research, University of California (Los Angeles).

Philip Jessup, of Columbia University, was visiting professor during the summer session at the University of Hawaii.

Franklyn A. Johnson, chairman of the Division of Human Relations, Rollins College, has been named state director of the Florida Citizenship Clearing House which was activated on May 15 at Rollins College.

George McTurnan Kahin has been promoted to an associate professorship in government at Cornell University, effective July 1, 1954.

Robert F. Karsch has been advanced to professor of political science at the University of Missouri.

John H. Kautsky, recently a research associate at the Center for International Studies, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has been appointed visiting assistant professor of government at the University of Rochester.

John Kerry King, of the University of Virginia, is on leave during 1954-55. He has been awarded a Carnegie research fellowship for research at the Council on Foreign Relations in New York.

Hans F. Kirchberger retired in June from his position as political science lecturer in the University of Wisconsin Extension Division.

Marshall Knappen, of the University of Michigan, has been granted a sabbatical leave for the year 1954-55.

Alan A. Kuusisto has been promoted to associate professor of government at the University of New Hampshire. He returned recently from Finland where he spent the past year as a Fulbright scholar.

Lionel H. Laing, professor of political science at the University of Michigan, will be absent on sabbatical leave during this academic year in order to visit parts of the Commonwealth. He sails from Vancouver in October for New Zealand and Australia.

Robert E. Lane has been reappointed to a second three-year term as assistant professor of political science at Yale University. He resumed his duties this fall after a year's leave of absence on a fellowship of the Ford Foundation Fund for the Advancement of Education and membership in the Summer Seminar in Political Behavior Research sponsored by the Social Science Research Council at the Survey Research Center, University of Michigan.

Harold D. Lasswell, professor of law and political science at Yale University, has been granted leave of absence for 1954-55 to serve on the staff of the Institute of Behavioral Sciences at Palo Alto.

Arnaud B. Leavelle has been promoted to professor of political science at Stanford University.

Luke Lee, recently of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, is teaching courses in comparative government this year at the St. Lawrence University.

Gordon K. Lewis, who received his Ph.D. in government from Harvard University in June, 1954, has been appointed associate professor of political science at the University of Puerto Rico.

John D. Lewis, of Oberlin College, served as visiting professor at Columbia University during the 1954 summer session.

Kenneth Lindsay, former member of Parliament and former Minister of Education in England, has been appointed visiting professor of political science for the spring term 1954-55 at the University of Oregon.

George A. Lipsky, recently assistant professor of political science at the University of California (Berkeley), is serving during 1954-55 as visiting lecturer in political science at Yale University.

John J. Logue, who taught at the University of Notre Dame during 1953-54, has been appointed instructor in government at Fordham.

Norton E. Long, of Western Reserve University, was visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan during the summer of 1954.

S. Gale Lowrie retired in June, 1954 from his position as professor and head of the department of political science at Cincinnati.

Clay P. Malick is serving as chairman of the department of political science at the University of Colorado during the absence of Professor Leo C. Riethmayer.

Gerard J. Mangone will be on leave from Swarthmore College for the academic year 1954-55 as a Fulbright scholar at the University of Padua in Italy.

Conrad L. McBride, formerly an instructor at Pomona College, has been appointed instructor in political science and research associate in the Bureau of State and Community Service, University of Colorado.

Daniel S. McHargue, assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan, has been assigned to the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines for 1954-55.

Joseph E. McLean, associate professor in the department of politics at Princeton University, has been named Commissioner of Conservation and Economic Development for the State of New Jersey.

Douglas H. Mendel, formerly teaching fellow at the University of Michigan, has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of California (Los Angeles).

Wallace Mendelson resumed his regular duties as professor of political science at the University of Tennessee in September after a year's leave of absence.

Edmund C. Mester, recently on the staff of the United States Military Academy, is teaching at the University of Cincinnati during the current academic year.

Edward W. Mill, formerly of the State Department and Princeton University, has accepted an associate professorship in government at the University of Hawaii.

John H. Millett, assistant professor of government at the University of Rochester, has been granted a year's leave of absence to study the role of interest groups in British political life under a Ford Foundation fellowship.

Emmet V. Mittlebeeler has been appointed assistant professor in the department of political science and public administration at the American University. Dr. Mittlebeeler, who has been the professional assistant to Representative John M. Robison, Jr., will serve as the academic director of Unit III of the Washington Semester Program.

George E. Moore, of Fairmont State College, was a visiting member of the department of political science at West Virginia in the 1954 summer session.

Rodney L. Mott, Director of the Division of Social Science at Colgate University, has been appointed visiting professor at the University of Kyoto in Japan for the autumn term of the current academic year. Professor Mott will be on leave of absence from Colgate University until February 1, 1955. During the summer, as director of the Kyoto American Studies Seminar, sponsored by the University of Illinois, he conducted an intensive seminar on American constitutional law for graduate students and for professors of law and political science at Japanese universities.

James N. Murray, Jr., formerly of Northwestern University, has been appointed to a full-time instructorship in political science at the State University of Iowa.

Ivan G. Nagy, who has been awarded a fellowship by the Fund for Adult Education to enable him to study methods for securing adult participation in the study of international relations, is on leave during 1954-55 from the University of Oregon.

Fred Warner Neal, formerly visiting lecturer in political science at the University of Michigan, is in Yugoslavia on a research project for the American Universities Field Staff. In connection with this project he also has a grant from the American Philosophical Society.

W. Grafton Nealley has been advanced to a full professorship in government at Adelphi College.

Franz Neumann, on leave from Columbia University during 1953-54, was visiting professor at the Free University of Berlin during the spring semester under an exchange program between Columbia and Stanford Universities and the Free University, sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

Robert G. Neumann is on leave from the University of California (Los Angeles) to spend the year at the Universities of Bordeaux and Strasbourg under a Fulbright award.

Sigmund L. Neumann returned to Columbia University in September as visiting professor of government.

Richard E. Neustadt has been appointed assistant professor of government in Columbia College.

Gerhart Niemeyer, of the Council on Foreign Relations, has accepted a part-time appointment as visiting lecturer at Yale University for the current academic year to teach courses in international organization.

Clark F. Norton, professor of political science at DePauw University, was a visiting professor at West Virginia University during both terms of the 1954 summer session.

Fritz Nova has been appointed associate professor of history and political science at Villanova University.

Vincent Ostrom has been advanced to an associate professorship in political science at the University of Oregon. He has been awarded a faculty research fellowship by the Social Science Research Council which will enable him to devote half of his time during the next three years to a study of the process of public policy formation.

Louise Overacker is on leave from Wellesley College to continue a study of labor parties in England.

Saul K. Padover, of the New School for Social Research, is teaching part time at Columbia University during 1954-55.

Thomas W. Palmer, Jr., who has completed tours of duty with a Point-Four economic development commission in Brazil and with the Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, has accepted an appointment beginning September 1, 1954, as Coordinator of Latin-American Studies at Boston University.

Cheryl Petersen has been appointed to the staff of the department of political science at Wellesley College.

Claude S. Phillips, Jr., who has recently completed his doctorate at Duke University, has been appointed to an instructorship in the department of political science at the University of Michigan.

Rollin B. Posey, of Northwestern University, is a visiting professor at the University of Puerto Rico during the first semester of 1954-55 and is teaching courses in public administration and government and business.

Lawrence Preuss, of the University of Michigan, has been appointed visiting professor of political science at the University of California (Berkeley) for the year 1954-55.

James Prothro, associate professor of political science at the Florida State University, is on leave of absence during 1954-55 to study at Columbia University under a Ford fellowship.

Henry Reining, Jr., Dean of the School of Public Administration, University of Southern California, has accepted an appointment with the University of Michigan to serve for three months as consultant in public administration to the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines.

Leo C. Riethmayer is on leave of absence from the University of Colorado until June, 1955, to serve as professor of public administration in the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines.

Elston Roady has been promoted to associate professor of political science at the Florida State University.

Charles I. Robertson, instructor of politics at Princeton University, has received an appointment as instructor in the department of government at Smith College.

Howard M. Roelofs has been advanced to assistant professor of government at Cornell University.

Arnold A. Rogow, of the department of political science, State University of Iowa, is spending the academic year 1954-55 as a fellow at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Palo Alto, California.

John H. Romani, formerly research fellow, Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines, has been appointed predoctoral instructor in political science at the University of Michigan.

Clinton L. Rossiter has been promoted to professor of government at Cornell University.

Joseph S. Roucek, of the University of Bridgeport, spent the summer as visiting professor of education at the University of Oregon.

Francis E. Rourke has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of political science at the Johns Hopkins University, beginning in September, 1954.

David N. Rowe, professor of political science at Yale University, is on leave of absence during 1954-55 to serve as the Taiwan (Formosa) representative of the Committee for Free Asia.

Dankwart A. Rustow returned in September from a year in Turkey and the Near East to resume his duties as assistant professor of politics at Princeton University.

Wallace S. Sayre has joined the department of public law and government at Columbia University as professor of public administration.

Warner R. Schilling will be at Columbia for the academic year 1954-55, dividing his time between the Institute for War and Peace Studies and lecturing in the government department at Columbia College.

Charles P. Schleicher, on sabbatical leave from the University of Oregon this year, is a Fulbright lecturer at Allahabad University in India.

John R. Schmidhauser, of the University of Virginia, has been appointed to a full-time instructorship in political science at the State University of Iowa.

Carl J. Schneider has been advanced to associate professor of political science at the University of Nebraska.

William E. Scott has been appointed to an instructorship in political science at Yale University.

Chandler Shaw, professor of history and political science at Bethany College, was a visiting professor in the 1954 summer session at West Virginia University.

Wilbur S. Shepperson, who has been awarded a Commonwealth Fund fellowship, is on leave from the University of Nevada during the academic year 1954-55.

Foster H. Sherwood, of UCLA, taught in the 1954 summer session at Northwestern University.

Donald V. Smiley, formerly a graduate teaching assistant at Northwestern University, has accepted an instructorship in political science at Queen's University, Kingston, Canada.

Frank J. Sorauf, instructor in political science at the Pennsylvania State University, served as a research associate for the Secretary of State in Madison, Wisconsin, during the summer months.

James R. Soukup, graduate student in political science at the University of Michigan, has been granted a Fulbright fellowship to Japan (Keio University) for the year 1954-55.

Edmund F. Spellacy, of the department of government, University of Hawaii, has been appointed by the Governor of Hawaii to the Commission on the Organization of the Administrative Branch.

Wladyslaw J. Stankiewicz has been appointed visiting research fellow at the Center of International Studies, Princeton University.

Murray S. Stedman resumed his teaching duties at Swarthmore College and became acting chairman of the department of political science in September after a leave of absence with UNESCO in Paris.

Richard W. Sterling, formerly of Yale University, is a teaching intern under the Ford Foundation in the department of government at Dartmouth College.

John G. Stoessinger has joined the department of political science at Wellesley College.

Leo Strauss, of the University of Chicago, is a visiting professor at the Hebrew University in Israel during the 1954 academic year.

K. Thor Swanson has been appointed to an instructorship in political science at the State College of Washington.

Carl B. Swisher resumed his duties as chairman of the department of political science at the Johns Hopkins University in September after a year's leave of absence.

James D. Teller, Civilian Chief, Standards Branch, Directorate of Personnel Planning, Department of the Air Force, has been promoted to the rank of adjunct professor of public administration in the department of political science and public administration at the American University.

Kenneth Thompson has been granted a continuation of his leave from Northwestern University to permit him to remain on the staff of the Rockefeller Foundation during the year 1954-55.

John S. Thomson, assistant professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin, has been granted a foreign study and research fellowship by the Ford Foundation for a year's work in Burma.

John A. Toomey, who did his graduate work at the New School for Social Research, has been appointed instructor in social studies at Windham College, Putney, Vermont.

John Turner, of the University of Minnesota, spent the summer in England where he did research on the internal organization and dynamics of the Labor party.

Vernon Van Dyke, of the State University of Iowa, has been promoted to the rank of full professor, effective July 1, 1954.

Harold M. Vinacke has been appointed head of the department of political science at the University of Cincinnati.

Robert A. Walker has been advanced to a full professorship in political science at Stanford University.

Lawrence C. Wanlass, assistant professor of political science at Mount Holyoke College, has been granted a Fulbright award. He will spend the year at the University of the Philippines in Manila where he will study the theory and practice of communism in Southeast Asia.

Robert E. Ward has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science at the University of Michigan. He will continue as assistant director of the Center for Japanese Studies at the University of Michigan.

Henry Wells, visiting lecturer in the School of Public Administration, University of Puerto Rico, during the academic year 1953-54, has been appointed associate professor and chairman of the political science staff, University of Puerto Rico.

John E. Westburg, formerly of the University of Southern California, has been appointed research assistant to the Legislative Counsel, in the Legislative Counsel Bureau of Nevada.

Troy R. Westmeyer, assistant professor of government, has been granted partial leave from Boston University for the first semester 1954-1955 to serve as Executive Director of the Massachusetts Fiscal Survey Commission.

John P. White, who received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1953 and who has been employed by the Navy Department, has been appointed to an instructorship in the department of political science at the University of Michigan.

Ruth Widmayer has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the University of Oregon.

René de Visme Williamson, formerly of the University of Tennessee, has been appointed professor and chairman of the department of government at Louisiana State University, effective September, 1954.

George L. Willis has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the University of Cincinnati.

William R. Willoughby is on leave from the St. Lawrence University during 1954-55 to do research at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton University.

Hubert H. Wilson, associate professor of politics at Princeton University, is on leave during the first term of 1954-55.

Daniel Wit, of the University of Cincinnati, has been appointed visiting professor of political science at the University of Michigan for the year 1954-55.

Roland Young, of Northwestern University, was a visiting professor at Harvard University during the 1954 summer session.

William H. Young has been appointed budgetary assistant to the president of the University of Wisconsin. He will continue to serve half time in the department of political science.

I. William Zartman taught in the summer session at the Johns Hopkins University.

Paul E. Zinner is a visiting assistant professor of government at Columbia University during the 1954-55 academic year.

IN MEMORIAM

Waldemar Gurian died of a stroke in South Haven, Michigan, on May 26, 1954, at the age of fifty-two. He had suffered repeated illnesses in the last two years and had gone to the vacation resort after a research leave of absence in Germany.

He was born in St. Petersburg (Leningrad), Russia. Although some reference books and many obituary notices described him as a convert to Catholicism, he was baptized in that Church as a child. Russian origin and Catholicism provide fundamental clues to his thought and outlook. This religious bridge with the West was made through his mother, who moved to Germany before World War I. During the war years he was educated at the Collegium Albertinum, a Dominican school in Venlo, Holland. Later he attended the Hohenzollern Gymnasium at Dusseldorf.

His university work at Berlin and Cologne, done under such teachers as Max Scheler, culminated in his doctoral thesis on the German Youth Movement. With his doctorate he had an almost medieval sense of being a member of the academic world, perhaps, as it were, an ex-officio member of the world's universities. A powerful mind, voracious reading, an almost universal curiosity, and a remarkably retentive memory enabled him to discourse professionally with his colleagues in almost all the humanities.

At the same time he was wholly free from the erudite provincialism of the academic specialist. His generous concern for important issues and titanic impatience with the petty questions from which academicians sometimes make their claims to originality were expressed in equally unforgettable fashion. He had, and not accidentally, a journalist's sense of urgency. The work of the journalist, or better, publicist, helped him to carry on enormous learning without a trace of pedantry. Between 1923 and 1937 he acted mainly as a free-lance writer. In 1923-24 he was night-editor of the Koelnische Volkszeitung, the greatest Catholic newspaper of the Rhineland. Thereafter he remained on the staff, reviewing books in a spirit which belied his nom de plume, Hoplite.

Between 1929 and 1931 he published his major works (in German), The Political and Social Ideas of French Catholicism, 1789-1914 and Bolshevism: Theory and Practice. The latter, translated into many languages, is one of the basic books of modern scholarship for the understanding of Soviet Communism. On the latter subject he wrote a multitude of books and articles, of which mention may be made of Bolshevism: An Introduction to Soviet Communism (1952) and his contribution to the Arden House Conference (1954) on the concept of Partijnost (Party-mindedness). The work on French Catholicism grew out of his permanent