

The Profession

Professional Notes

Woodrow Wilson

International Center for Scholars

Established in 1968, the Smithsonian Institution's Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars recently opened in Washington, D.C. Up to forty Fellows a year will eventually be at the Center – half from the United States and half from abroad; work will be independent or in groups. Scholars will focus on "studies designated to increase man's understanding of significant international, governmental and social problems, and to improve the organization of society at all levels to meet such problems." Two topics have been selected by the Center's Trustees for special consideration for the initial period: development of international law for ocean space and contemporary man and his deteriorating environment.

Nomination and application forms are available by writing to the Center, Room 321, Smithsonian Institution, 1000 Jefferson Drive, Washington, D.C. 20560. Requests for fellowships will be processed upon receipt. Normal selection schedule will be three times a year, March 1 (Jan. 1, application deadline); July 1 (May 1, deadline); and December 1 (October 1, deadline). Fellowships will be for several months up to a year although some short and long term appointments may be accepted. Financial support is available to meet Fellow's previous year's salary with cost of living adjustments for foreign scholars. Fellows are requested to seek financial support if possible from other sources.

The Center's Trustees are headed by Hubert H. Humphrey. Political Scientists serving on the Board of Trustees are: James MacGregor Burns, Williams College, Daniel P. Moynihan, The White House, and John P. Roche, Brandeis University.

New Editor of the Midwest Journal of Political Science

As of June 1, Samuel C. Patterson, University of Iowa, is the Editor of the Midwest Journal of Political Science. The journal welcomes manuscripts. They should be submitted to the Editor, Department of Political Science, University of Iowa, Iowa City, Iowa 52240 in duplicate, following the style of the Journal, along with an abstract of about one hundred words.

John G. Grumm remains as Book Review Editor and communications should be sent to him at his new address, Department of Government, Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut 06457.

Interdisciplinary Seminar on Western Europe

The City University of New York has been awarded a grant by the Ford Foundation to establish an interdisciplinary research seminar on the problems of political, economic, and legal cooperation and integration in Western Europe. Members of the seminar are drawn from the New York Metropolitan area academic community as well as from business and law firms, banks and foundations. The title of the group is Faculty Seminar for European Community Studies. The director is Steven Warnecke, the Graduate Center, City University of New York, 33 West 42 Street, New York, New York 10036.

Political Activities

of Colleges and Universities

American Enterprise Institute has recently published a special analysis, Political Activities of Colleges and Universities: Some Policy and Legal Implications. The volume by Robert H. Bork, Howard G. Krane, and George D. Webster, is available for $2.00 from the Institute, 1200-17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

Mass Political Communication Institute

The third National Science Foundation Summer Institute in Mass Political Communication will be held at Ohio University June 21 – July 24, 1971. College teachers in political science, sociology, social psychology, and communications are eligible for this interdisciplinary program. Stipends, travel, and dependency allowances are provided for qualified applicants.

The Institute program will cover current theories and research methods. A laboratory will provide opportunities for application of research techniques. Topics will include emerging issues in political communication; the coverage of political events; legislative, executive, and agency relations with the media; campaign strategies and the effects of communication; foreign affairs and international communication systems; crisis communications; sampling, interviewing, content analysis, data processing, and simulation.

Address inquiries to William H. Harlan, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Carnegie Hall, Ohio University, Athens, Ohio 45701. Completed applications must be received by March 1 in order to be considered.

NSF Publications

The National Science Foundation has published a Guide to Programs detailing principal characteristics and basic purposes of each activity, eligibility requirements, closing dates (where applicable) and the address from which more detailed information, brochures, or application forms may be obtained. Copies may be obtained from the Foundation, Washington, D.C. 20550.

A second item available from the Foundation which may be of interest to readers is "Impact of Changes in Federal Science Funding Patterns on Academic Institutions" in the October 15 Science Resources Studies Highlights.

Guide to Political Science Research

Political science scholars planning work in the Washington, D.C. area may be interested in The University of Maryland Guide to Political Science Research. In addition to describing University facilities at the College Park Campus, the Guide also details political science research resources in the Washington, D.C., Annapolis, and Baltimore metropolitan areas. Sponsored by the Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland, the GUIDE is in its second edition (1970). It is edited by Professor Richard Claude and is available for $1.00 (postpaid) from: Student Supply Store
U. of Maryland
College Park, Md. 20742

Manuscripts on Urban Problems and Policies Invited

The Social Science Quarterly announces another topical issue to be published in December, 1971. The Editor is especially interested in manuscripts dealing with either urban problems or urban policies and preferably both. The preference is for articles no longer than 30 typewritten pages (including footnotes and tables) and research notes of 10 pages or less. Receipt of three copies of a manuscript facilitates an editorial decision within six weeks. For style and format see recent issues of SSQ or write for a style sheet. Readers cooperation in bringing this intended issue to the attention of colleagues in the profession will be greatly appreciated. Considerational manuscripts for the topical issue will continue until June 15, 1971. Manuscripts should be addressed to the Editor, Social Science Quarterly, the University of Texas at Austin, Austin, Texas 78712.

Michigan Election Campaign Course

Students from The University of Michigan who worked in this fall's election campaign had the opportunity to gain academic credit as well as a political experience. Michigan's Political Science Department and Institute of Public Policy Studies jointly sponsored "Elections 1970," a four credit course which required active campaign participation in addition to attendance at a series of lectures and weekly discussion groups. About 450 students were enrolled.

The objective of the course was to provide a comprehensive understanding of elections in American politics through a mixture of standard academic analysis and practical experience in the 1970 elections. Candidates from both parties in campaigns for the Senate, House of Representatives (primarily Michigan's Second District), state legislature, governor, and county commission were designated liaison men to work with the course staff. Students worked through the course staff and were assigned only to campaigns of their choice.

Lectures included analyses of campaign techniques, a review of research on voting and elections, debates and analyses of principal campaign issues, and a series of discussions that took place after the election was over in which the electoral process was evaluated as a means to social change.

Discussion sections were conducted by graduate students in political science and students were required to write papers evaluating their campaign experiences, analyzing the treatment of issues in the campaign, and comparing elections to other forms of political action as political resources.

Jack L. Walker, Associate Professor of Political Science and Research Associate in the Institute of Public Policy Studies, was the principal instructor; Lectures were also given by Angus Campbell, Phillip Converse, Samuel Eldersveld, Donald Stokes, Joel Aberbach, Michael Lipsky, and several other members of the Michigan faculty.

Undergraduate Political Science in Illinois

Steven A. Shull, Millikin University, has prepared a study, "Undergraduate Political Science in Illinois." Information is included on 36 colleges and universities in Illinois with breakdowns by departmental faculty and institutional characteristics. Copies may be obtained from Steven A. Shull, Department of Political Science, Millikin University, Decatur, Illinois. 62522.

Journal of Studies in Comparative

Communism

Studies in comparative communism, a quarterly inter-disciplinary journal published by the School of Politics and International Relations, University of Southern California solicits manuscripts from the profession. Priority will be given to articles attempting comparative analyses of historical as well as current developments in the Communist world and problems of Marxist ideology. Studies may be comparative with respect to other Communist states (or parties) or to non-Communist societies. The editors will attempt to provide comparative foci on a given subject (e.g., economic reforms in the U.S.S.R.) by soliciting comments of a comparative character from scholars specializing in the same subject matter but on different Communist countries (e.g., reforms in Yugoslavia and China). Through multiple assignments, book reviews and review articles will also be utilized as vehicles for comparative analysis. Books on Rumanian agriculture may be reviewed by an economist specializing in Polish agriculture, a sociologist specializing on Rumania, and a general expert on agriculture who does not profess any particular knowledge of Communist affairs. The journal will attempt to extend coverage to underdeveloped disciplines such as education, geography, religion, aesthetics, etc. in addition to the traditional strongholds of history, political science, economics and international relations. Authors will be encouraged, wherever appropriate, to accompany their articles with a list of primary documents emanating from the Communist world, some of which may be reproduced in the journal's documentary section.

The editors of the journal are also looking for research centers or individuals who would be willing to prepare on a regular basis a quarterly annotated and readable chronology – more akin to an analysis of current developments in the Communist world, accompanied by excerpts from appropriate Communist documentation. documentation.

Manuscripts (in triplicate), proposals and suggestions should be submitted to The Editors, Studies in Comparative Communism, Von KleinSmid Center for International and Public Affairs, Room 301, University of Southern California, Los Angeles, California 90007.

National Goals

and Research Staff Report

Toward Balanced Growth: Quantity with Quality, the report of the National Goals and Research Staff was recently delivered to President Richard M. Nixon and is available for $1.50 from the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. Leonard Garment was the Director of the project and Raymond A. Bauer served as Senior Consultant and Report Coordinator.

Journal of Black Studies

The first issue of the Journal of Black Studies is now available. Published by Sage Publications, the journal seeks to sustain a full analytical discussion of issues related to persons of African descent. Original scholarly works are invited on a broad range of questions involving black people: economic, political, sociological, historical, literary and philosophical. Manuscripts should be submitted in duplicate to Arthur L. Smith, Editor, Afro-American Studies Center, University of California, Los Angeles, California 90024.

Subscription to the quarterly journal is $15.00 a year (professionals and teachers, $10.00 a year; students $7.50 a year). Subscriptions should be ordered from Sage Publications, 275 South Beverly Drive, Beverly Hills, California 90212.

Data Book for Brazilian States

The Departamento De Ciencia Politica, Universidade Federal De Minas Gerais announces that its Data Archive for Brazilian State and Local data is now prepared to service requests for data use. Data from 1940 to 1968 is available in three areas: socio-economic and demographic; social and/or political participation and government policy planning. For further information contact Sonia Maria de Avelar, Banco De Dados Para Estados Brasileiros, Departamento de Ciencia Politics (DCP), Universidade Federal de Minas Gerais, Caixa Postal, 1.621, Belo Horizonte-Mina Gerais, Brazil.

NSF Advisory Panel for Political Science

Members of the National Science Foundation Advisory Board for Political Science for 1970 for one year terms are: Bernard C. Cohen, University of Wisconsin; Fred I. Greenstein, Wesleyan University; H. Douglas Price, Harvard University; Robert E. Scott, University of Illinois; S. Sidney Ulmer, University of Kentucky; and Sidney Verba, University of Chicago.

New Federalism Journal

The first issue of Publius, A Journal of Studies in Federalism published by the Center for the Study of Federalism of Temple University, is scheduled to appear in Spring 1971. Editor of the journal is Daniel J. Elazar. Associate Editor is Earl M. Baker.

Publius will be published periodically with the present intention of becoming a quarterly within three years. Manuscripts on federal questions, broadly construed, are invited by the Editor.

Subscriptions to the journal can be obtained directly or in conjunction with membership in the newly established Conference for Federal Studies. Subscribers choosing membership in the Conference will also receive publications of the Center, now numbering about twelve per year. The Center's Program and a list of the Center's publications are available on request.

The topic of the first issue of Publius will be "Themes and Issues in the American Federal System." The contents of the first issue include the following articles: John Kincaid, "The American Vocation"; Rozann Rothman, "Political Method in the Federal System: Albert Gallatin's Contribution"; Elliott White, "From Log Cabin to White House: Was Lincoln Created Equal?"; Daniel J. Elazar, "Civil War and the Preservation of American Federalism"; Sylvia Snowiss, "Presidential Leadership of Congress: An Analysis of Roosevelt's First Hundred Days"; Ellis Katz, "Apportionment and Majority Rule"; and Thomas J. Anton, "Three Models of Community Development in the United States."

Inquiries concerning the activities and publications of the Center for the Study of Federalism as well as subscriptions or manuscripts for Publius should be sent to Daniel J. Elazar, Center for the Study of Federalism, Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa. 19122.