'No one concerned with the study of the prehistoric past can afford to ignore this statement of methods and aims by one of Europe's greatest archaeologists.' Manchester Guardian.

'A man of vast learning . . . by his objective analysis of the real aims (and limitations) of modern archaeology Professor Childe has done it a great service, and one can only hope that his book will be read by all who, on boards and trusts, control the conduct of excavations and the purchase of specimens.' Times Literary Supplement.

ATTIC BLACK-FIGURE VASE-PAINTERS

By Sir JOHN BEAZLEY

This is a companion volume to the same author's Attic Red-Figure Vase-Painters, published in 1942 and now out of print. A good proportion of all extant Attic black-figured vases and fragments are assigned to their painters or at least placed in stylistic groups. It is hoped that the book will be found to make an important contribution to the history of Greek art, especially in the archaic period, not only from the point of view of style, but from the point of view of subject as well. Ample indexes facilitate reference. £6. 6s. net

FROM ALEXANDER TO CONSTANTINE

Passages and Documents illustrating the History of Political and Social Ideas 336 B.C.–A.D. 337

Translated, with introductions, notes, and essays by Sir ERNEST BARKER

It has been said that 'a history of Greek political theories after Aristotle . . . is still to be written'. This volume is not that history, but is intended to provide material for it. It contains a number of passages translated from ancient authors, along with translations of some inscriptions and of a few papyri; it also contains explanatory introductions and a number of general essays—notably three essays on three different periods in the development of the idea of Kingship, a subject whose importance is increasingly realized by modern scholars. Here will be found many of the ideas which vitally affected the subsequent social and political development of Europe. 50s. net

ARCHAEOLOGY FROM THE EARTH

By Sir MORTIMER WHEELER

'There is no one in the world better qualified to write on archaeological techniques . . . it will be valuable for posterity to have this summing-up of his aims and methods by the man who is probably our most remarkable excavator since Pitt-Rivers.' Jacquetta Hawkes in The Sunday Times
