

bility of the three partners. The Surinam and Antilles contributions are to be determined through joint consultation.

The three countries, through the Statute, declare they will assist each other in the financial, economic, and cultural fields. Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles will thus be the beneficiaries of Netherlands technical and economic assistance. A Foundation for the Development of Mechanical Agriculture in Surinam has been set up for the purpose of transforming large areas of jungle into arable land. Through the intermediary of the Netherlands Government a few projects of the Foreign Operations Administration are now under way. Consultations are now being held between Surinam and The Netherlands on a ten-year development plan. Netherlands universities, the Netherlands Institute for Applied Scientific Research, and the Royal Tropical Institute are doing extensive research on Surinam timber to determine its possible industrial uses. Assistance is being rendered to the recently instituted Netherlands Antilles Technical Economic Council, which is investigating the economic possibilities of creating so-called "free port zones" in the Antilles. Netherlands specialists are being placed at the disposal of the Netherlands Antilles for the purpose of reorganization of the police force, for organization of child welfare, for improvement of port facilities, for the organization of social security, for revision of tax legislation, and for legislation concerning the building industry.

In the cultural field, the Foundation for Cultural Cooperation and the Foundation for Scientific Research in Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles are already in operation. The latter is especially devoted to the coordination of research between Netherlands institutions of higher learning for the benefit of Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles. Rapport has also been established between Netherlands, French, and British institutions for the purpose of exchanging scientific information relating to the West Indies.

In a recent Netherlands Government report to the Dutch Parliament, it was stated: "Cooperation between the partners in the realm in every possible and profitable way will be planned on the basis of long-term projects as soon as the new statute is in operation. The Government is convinced that the extent of the willingness of the partners to render assistance, where possible and justified, and the spirit with which this assistance is to be carried out will determine the strength of the ties between the partners."

In all three parts of the realm, elections are free and secret. In Surinam and the Netherlands Antilles, there is universal suffrage for all residents who are citizens or Dutch subjects, provided they have reached the age of twenty-three.—DR. H. J. FRIEDERICX, Netherlands Embassy.

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

William Anderson, professor of political science at the University of Minnesota, was on leave from the university during the spring quarter. In addition to attending the final meetings of the Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, he prepared for publication one monograph in the Minnesota Intergovernmental Relations Series and edited for publication one or two other monographs for the same series.

Peter Bachrach has been promoted to associate professor of political science at Bryn Mawr College.

M. Margaret Ball, of Wellesley College, will offer courses in the field of international relations during the summer quarter, 1955, at Stanford University.

William E. Biggs has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science and public administration at the American University.

William W. Boyer, Jr., formerly administrative assistant to Governor Kohler of Wisconsin, has been appointed associate professor of political science and director of research in the Institute of Local Government at the University of Pittsburgh.

Donald W. Brandon has resigned his teaching post at the University of San Francisco to take a position with the federal government.

Gerard Braunthal, who was awarded the Ph.D. degree by Columbia University in June, 1953, has been appointed instructor in government at the University of Massachusetts.

David S. Brown has been named associate professor of public administration in the George Washington University School of Government. Professor Brown was with the federal government for thirteen years, his last assignment being executive secretary of the Public Advisory Board for Mutual Security.

Philip W. Buck will be on sabbatical leave from Stanford University during the academic year 1955-56. With the aid of a research grant from the Ford Foundation, he will make a study of various aspects of careers in English politics.

James L. Busey, who has been acting assistant professor for the past three years at the University of Colorado, has been appointed to an assistant professorship at that institution, beginning next year.

John C. Campbell, who is presently a member of the Policy Planning Staff of the Department of State in Washington, will join the staff of the Council on Foreign Relations, September 1, 1955, as director of political studies.

James C. Charlesworth, of the University of Pennsylvania, was granted a leave of absence for the second semester of the past academic year in order to become Secretary of Administration in the cabinet of Governor George M. Leader of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Robert A. Dahl, associate professor of political science on the Eugene Meyer Public Service Fund at Yale University, will be on leave of absence during 1955-56 to serve as a Fellow of the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences.

Marshall E. Dimock was visiting professor of political science on the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation at Carleton College, Northfield, Minnesota, during the second semester of the past academic year. Dr. Dimock taught a course in business and government and a seminar in problems of international administration. Before coming to Carleton in January, he spent three months as a consultant to the Administrative Staff College, Henley-on-Thames, in Britain.

Cecil H. Driver, professor of political science at Yale University, will be on leave of absence during the fall term of 1955-56.

Charles Fairman, first holder of the Nagel Professorship of Constitutional Law and Political Science in the Washington University School of Law, has resigned to accept appointment as professor of law in the Harvard Law School.

Wesley R. Fishel has resumed his duties as associate professor of political science and assistant director of the Governmental Research Bureau at Michigan State College. He spent the fall and winter terms in Indochina as a special advisor to U. S. Special Representative J. Lawton Collins and to President Ngo Dinh Diem of Viet Nam.

Vernon Lee Fluharty has been appointed instructor in the department of political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

Charles R. Foster, a Ph.D. candidate at the Ohio State University, served as lecturer in the department of government at Indiana University during the spring semester, teaching the introductory course.

Ernst Fraenkel, of the Free University of Berlin, taught at the University of Colorado during the spring term, taking the place of Henry Ehrmann, who was on leave of absence.

J. Leiper Freeman, formerly research associate with the Graduate School of Education, Harvard University, has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of political science at Vanderbilt University, as of September 1, 1955.

Leo Gross was on partial leave from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy during the past academic year to teach international law at the Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island.

Donald E. Hayhurst has been appointed instructor in political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

Charles B. Hirsch has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of history and political science and has been named chairman of the newly formed department of social sciences at La Sierra College, Arlington, California.

Colin Jackson, of London, England, was a visiting professor of political science at the University of Nebraska during the second semester, offering work in international affairs while Norman L. Hill was on leave of absence at the University of Washington.

Horace B. Jacobini has resigned from the staff of East Central State College, Ada, Oklahoma, to accept an appointment with the University of Michigan, assigned to the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines. His assignment began in February, 1955, and will extend to June, 1956.

Philip C. Jessup will be on leave from Columbia University during 1955-56. In his absence, the work in international law will be shared by Oliver J. Lissitzyn, Sir Zafrulla Khan, and Julian Stone. The latter will come from Sydney, Australia, to be visiting professor of international law for the spring session (1956). Sir Zafrulla Khan will be adjunct professor for the first half of the year.

Frederick E. Kidder, formerly lecturer in political science at the Polytechnic Institute of Puerto Rico, has returned to the Institute after several years of graduate study at the University of California (Berkeley). His new post as assistant librarian includes oversight of the Institute's growing collection of government documents.

Charles M. Kneier was on sabbatical leave from the University of Illinois during the spring semester, studying zoning regulations in the United States.

Gertrude Leighton has been advanced to the rank of associate professor of political science at Bryn Mawr College.

Nathan Leites, of the Rand Corporation, has been appointed visiting lecturer in political science at Yale University for 1955-56; he and Professor Harold D. Lasswell will offer jointly the graduate course in political behavior.

Ernest M. Linton, retired professor of government at Indiana University, was called back during the spring semester to assist in the teaching of the introductory course in government.

Oliver J. Lissitzyn has received a promotion to associate professor of international law at Columbia University.

William S. Livingston, associate professor of political science and assistant dean of the graduate school at the University of Texas, has been appointed visiting lecturer in political science at Yale University for the fall term of 1955-56.

Albert B. Martin has been promoted to a full professorship in the department of political science at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dean E. McHenry has resumed his duties at the University of California (Los Angeles) after a year's sabbatical leave in Australia.

Robert H. Menke, one-time member of the Indiana Legislature, served during the spring semester as lecturer in the department of government at Indiana University, teaching a course in legislatures and legislation.

Philip E. Mosely, who has served as director of the Russian Institute at Columbia University since 1951, has been appointed director of studies for the Council on Foreign Relations to supervise its program of research and publication. Dr. Mosely will continue to teach at Columbia on a part-time basis.

Forrest D. Murden, Jr., formerly a member of the United States Mission to the United Nations, has been appointed to the faculty of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy to conduct a seminar on problems of contemporary international organization.

Allan S. Nanes, formerly of Brooklyn College, has been appointed analyst in American foreign policy, Legislative Reference Service, Library of Congress.

Fred Warner Neal, who has spent one year at the University of Michigan and another on a fellowship which took him to Yugoslavia, will return as assistant professor to the University of Colorado in September.

Charles R. Nixon has resumed his teaching duties at the University of California (Los Angeles) after a year's special leave in the Union of South Africa.

Herman Clarence Nixon, professor of political science at Vanderbilt University, will retire at the end of the 1955 summer term after a rich and varied career as teacher, writer, scholar, and sage. To his associates everywhere in the South, as well as in other parts of the country, Professor Nixon's departure will leave a void that will be difficult to fill.

James A. Norton, associate professor in the School of Public Administration, Florida State University, was on leave during the 1954-55 academic year to serve as lecturer on public health administration at the Harvard School of Public Health.

C. B. O'Brien has returned from a sabbatical leave in Europe and has resumed the chairmanship of the department of history and political science, University of California (Davis).

George A. Peek, Jr., of the University of Michigan, has been assigned to the Institute of Public Administration, University of the Philippines, for a year beginning in June, 1955. He will serve as liaison officer under the contract between the two universities for establishment of the Institute.

L. H. Qureshi, former Minister of Education of Pakistan, who joined the department of history of Columbia University as visiting professor in January, 1955, will continue as visiting professor during 1955-56. Dr. Qureshi will participate in a joint seminar on the political, social, and economic problems of the Near and Middle East.

Leo C. Riethmayer will return to the University of Colorado for the second term of summer school after a year's teaching at the University of the Philippines in Manila.

Fred W. Riggs, of the Public Administration Clearing House, has been appointed visiting lecturer in political science at Yale University for 1955-56; he will offer jointly with Professors Walter R. Sharp and Herbert Kaufman a graduate course in comparative public administration.

Carlton C. Rodee has been appointed chairman of the department of political science at the University of Southern California.

Jack W. Rodgers, assistant professor of political science, University of Nebraska, has been appointed full-time director of research for the Nebraska Legislative Council. He will continue with the department of political science on a one-fourth time basis.

David N. Rowe, professor of political science at Yale University, has been granted an extension of his leave of absence so that he may continue during 1955-56 as Representative of the Asia Foundation in Taiwan.

Burton M. Sapin, of the Foreign Policy Analysis Project, Princeton University, has accepted an appointment as assistant professor of political science at Vanderbilt University, beginning in September, 1955.

Howard A. Scarrow, instructor in political science at Michigan State College during 1954-55, has been appointed administrative assistant and research associate in the Commonwealth Studies Center at Duke University. He will assume his new duties this summer, pursuing research in Canada.

John A. Schutz has been appointed associate professor in the department of political science at Whittier College.

William C. Seyler, assistant professor of political science at the University of Pittsburgh, has been granted a leave of absence to serve as Director of Program and Policy Research in the Department of Administration, Executive Office of Governor Leader of Pennsylvania.

Reed M. Smith, who taught part-time at Brooklyn College during 1954-55, has accepted a position as instructor in the department of history and political science at Baldwin-Wallace College, beginning next September.

Morgan Thomas will be on sabbatical leave from the University of Michigan during 1955-56.

Charles A. Thomson, formerly Counselor of Embassy for UNESCO Affairs, Paris, has been appointed research associate in the department of government at Indiana University for the purpose of collaborating with Walter H. C. Laves in the preparation of an analytical volume on UNESCO.

Frank N. Trager has been appointed research professor in the department of government, Graduate School of Arts and Science, New York University.

Tang Tsou, formerly lecturer at the University of Utah, has been appointed research associate with the rank of assistant professor in the Center for the Study of American Foreign Policy at the University of Chicago.

Vakur Versan, of the University of Istanbul, has been invited to be visiting associate professor of government in the Near and Middle East Institute at Columbia University during 1955-56.

Robert A. Walker, who will return from a Fulbright professorship in Belgium in June of this year, will be on duty during the summer quarter at Stanford University.

Frederick M. Watkins has been appointed chairman of the department of political science at Yale University, succeeding James W. Fesler, Alfred Cowles Professor of Government.

Paul G. Willis, assistant professor of government at Indiana University, was on leave during the spring semester while serving as assistant to Paul M. Butler, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Georgia Wilson has been promoted to an assistant professorship in political science at Brooklyn College.

T. P. Wright, vice-president for research at Cornell University, has been appointed professor of air transportation in the university's School of Business and Public Administration. Dr. Wright is president of the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory in Buffalo and was formerly head of the Civil Aeronautics Administration.

Chitoshi Yanaga, associate professor of political science at Yale University, will be on leave of absence during 1955-56 for field research in Japan under a Fulbright award.

Roland Young, of the political science department, Northwestern University, will be on leave from April through September to study political problems in Tanganyika under a grant from the Program of African Studies at Northwestern.

Belle Zeller was on sabbatical leave from Brooklyn College during the spring semester, studying governments in Mediterranean countries.

IN MEMORIAM

Stephen B. Sarasohn, assistant professor of government at Wayne University, died on January 5, 1955, from a heart attack. Only thirty at the time of his decease, Stephen Sarasohn had packed those years with the bright promise of high achievement and scholarly distinction. Although plagued by the after effects of rheumatic fever, he secured his B.A. at Wayne University and his graduate degrees, including the doctorate, at Columbia University; his teaching experience was encompassed in a brief tenure at Hunter College and a five-year period at Wayne University.

Admired by his colleagues, Stephen Sarasohn found time to encourage and to stimulate his students to a degree which was most unusual. His productive scholarship was necessarily limited by the brevity of his life tenure, but it included an article in the Public Opinion Quarterly, in collaboration with his instructor, Carl O. Smith, and co-authorship of two basic texts in the social sciences. Beyond these works, he was engaged in research in the fields of political parties and behavior at the time of his death. Miss him we shall, but the bright promise of his career, terminated at such an early age, should afford an incentive for greater achievement to those who were privileged to know him.—Charles W. Shull.