
CONTRIBUTORS

Jesús Zamora Bonilla (jpbz@fsof.uned.es) is Professor of Philosophy of Science at Universidad Nacional de Educación a Distancia (Madrid, Spain), and a member of the executive committee of the Spanish Society for Logic, Methodology and Philosophy of Science. Some recent publications are “Verisimilitude and the dynamics of scientific research programmes” (Journal of General Philosophy of Science, 2002), “Meaning and testability in the structuralist theory of science” (Erkenntnis, 2003), and “Peddling science” (Philosophy of Science, 2003).

Pat Devine is an Honorary Fellow at the University of Manchester, having recently retired from a Senior Lectureship in Economics. He is the author of Democracy and economic planning: the political economy of a self-governing society, 1988, and joint author of What on earth is to be done?: A red-green dialogue, 1995. Email: pat.devine@manchester.ac.uk

Cécile Fabre is Senior Lecturer in Political Theory at the London School of Economics. She has written on rights, democracy, and global distributive justice. Her main publications are Social rights under the constitution: government and the decent life (Oxford University Press, 2000) and Whose body is it anyway? Justice and the integrity of the person (Oxford University Press, forthcoming 2006).

José Luis Ferreira (jlferr@eco.uc3m.es) is an Associate Professor in the Economics Department at Universidad Carlos III de Madrid. His current focus is on the applications of game theory to industrial organization and to the analysis of scientific progress. Recent publications include “Generalized externality games,” with Paula Corcho (Theory and Decision, 2003) and “Strategic interaction between futures and spot markets” (Journal of Economic Theory, 2003).

Peter Gärdenfors is Professor of Cognitive Science at Lund University. His books include Knowledge in flux: modeling the dynamics of epistemic states (Bradford Books, MIT Press, 1988), Conceptual spaces: the geometry of thought (Bradford Books, MIT Press, 2000), How homo became sapiens: on the evolution of thinking (Oxford University Press, 2003) and the Dynamics of thought (Springer, 2005). He is a member of the Royal Swedish Academy of Letters, History and Antiquities, Academia Europaea and Leopoldina Deutsche Akademie für Naturforscher. Address: Lund University Cognitive Science, Kungshuset, S-222 22 Lund, Sweden. E-mail: Peter.Gardenfors@lucs.lu.se.

Sven Ove Hansson is professor and head of the Department of Philosophy and the History of Technology, Royal Institute of Technology, Stockholm. He is also a member of the Swedish government's advisory board of researchers. His books include Setting the limit: occupational health standards and the limits of science (Oxford University Press, 1998), A textbook of belief dynamics: theory change and database updating. (Kluwer, 1999) and The structures of values and norms (Cambridge University Press, 2001). Homepage: <http://www.infra.kth.se/~soh>.

Paul Lewis was educated at Peterhouse, Cambridge, and Christ Church, Oxford. He was variously a Research Fellow of Emmanuel College, a Fellow of Selwyn College, and a Newton Trust Lecturer in the Faculty of Economics and Politics, and the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, Cambridge University, before becoming a Lecturer in Economics at King's College, University of London. His research interests include the political economy of the public services, the economics of apprentice training, the philosophy and methodology of economics, and the Austrian school of economics.

Adam Oliver is RCUK Academic Fellow in Health Economics and Policy and Deputy Director of LSE Health and Social Care at the London School of Economics, and Harkness Fellow in Health Policy at Columbia University in New York. He is a 1995–97 Japanese Ministry of Education (Monbusho) Research Scholar at Keio University in Tokyo, and is Founding Chair of the Health Equity Network, Founding Coordinator of the Preference Elicitation Group, and a former Coordinator of the European Health Policy Group. He is also Founding Co-Editor of the journal, Health Economics, Policy and Law. Dr Oliver has published widely in the areas of health equity, economic evaluation, risk and uncertainty, and the economics and policy of health care reform.

Diego Rios is a Lecturer in Philosophy and Economics at Witten/Herdecke University, Germany. His focus of research is on the philosophy of the social sciences and political philosophy. He is currently working on a book about the philosophical status of the special sciences.

Luc Van Liedekerke is professor of business ethics at the universities of Leuven and Antwerpen (Belgium). He was recently elected president of EBEN (European Business Ethics Network).

Uzi Segal is a professor of economics at Boston College. His fields of research are decision theory and social choice. Some of his papers on social choice and justice are “Quadratic social welfare functions” (with Larry Epstein, Journal of Political Economy 1992), “Preferences over solutions to the bargaining problem” (with Kim Border, Econometrica 1997), and “Let’s agree that all dictatorships are equally bad” (Journal of Political Economy, 2000).

Peter Vanderschraaf is visiting associate professor of philosophy at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His research focuses on the analysis of convention and its applications in moral and political philosophy.