

I Friends

Darwin loved female company. As a boy in Shropshire, he spent time not only with his sisters and Wedgwood cousins, but with the Owen girls at Woodhouse. Later in life, Emma Darwin was entertained to see him flirting prettily, as she put it, with female visitors. He was on cordial terms with the ladies he met while he was undergoing hydropathic treatment, and Ellen Lubbock and Henrietta Huxley sent him teasing, funny letters. The formidable Lady Derby kept up an intermittent friendship with him in a series of visits and characteristically brief letters. As an old man, Darwin made an effort to reconnect with the Owen girls, sending a copy of his book on expression of the emotions to the elderly Sarah Haliburton, as she had become.

The first letter is to Darwin from an elderly friend of his family, Mary Congreve. At the time, in 1821, she would have been 75; Darwin was 12. Little is known of Mary. Her brother William, comptroller of the Royal Laboratory at Woolwich, where ammunition was manufactured, became a baronet, and his son, William, the second baronet, became famous as a rocket designer. It's tempting to suggest that the Congreve family might have fostered Darwin's youthful interest in chemistry.

My dear M^r. Charles

I find I have only just time to thank you for your entertaining letter, as if I take time to write what I intended I shall not be able to get it franked & I'm sure it will not be worth the postage, I should have liked to have seen the good Gentleman Grim that you mention there is no doubt but those that were out of the Scrape were much amused, I assure you I wish'd much you had been of our party on thursday night at the play, I think you would have been highly entertained both with the Coronation, and the entertainment of Monsieur Tonson [a farce by W. T. Moncrieff], I never laugh'd so much at a play I think, I dare say you have been much amused with M^r. Alexander [a ventriloquist] & I hope I shall hear some specimenes of his art from you when I return, as I dare say it is practiced in School Lane, so god bless you as I am obliged to conclude this ever believe me | Yours truly M Congreve ...

I think you will not be able with all your Greek knowledge to read this precious Scrawl

Darwin was a boarder at Shrewsbury School, close enough to home to see his family regularly. In 1825, at the age of 16, he went to Edinburgh University with his brother, Erasmus, to study medicine, but soon decided it was not for him. He then spent three years at Cambridge University, with the intention of later becoming a clergyman. In 1831, he was invited to join HMS Beagle as companion to the captain on a surveying voyage to South America and circumnavigation of the globe. When Darwin departed on the Beagle voyage, Fanny Owen of Woodhouse wrote her farewells in a letter of 26 September 1831. She had kept up a long, jokey correspondence with Darwin whenever they were apart, alluding to the games they played as children.

2. Northernhay Place, Exeter
Monday

My dear Charles,

I have this evening heard from Caroline that you leave home the end of this week—and that you wish to have a good bye from me before you go. I had not the least idea you were to go so soon, for they told me it was the end of October you sailed, so I hoped and fully expected I should have been at home in time to see you—I cannot tell you how disappointed & vexed I am that that cannot be. Little did I think the last time I saw you at the poor old Forest [Woodhouse], that it would be so long before we should meet again!! This horrid Devonshire—fool that I was to come here—I shall just get home when you are gone I dare say—My dear Charles I do hope you will enjoy yourself & be the happiest of the happy, I would give any thing to see you once more before you go, for it does make me melancholy to think the time you are to be away—& Heaven knows what may have become of all of us by this time two years. at all events we must be grown old & steady—the pleasant days, and fun we have had at the Forest can never come over again—how I wish I was there this week to have one last chat with you I cannot bear to think you are really going clear away, without my saying one good bye!!

But I must drop this subject for I find I am getting prosy & melancholy & that wont do—They tell me you were at Plymouth about 10 days ago & so was I, how very very unlucky we never met, do you go there again? if you should perhaps you may pass through Exeter—I shall leave it on the 6th with the Hunts—I believe not come home direct but go with them to pay some visits—if possible I shall shirk and get the Gov— [governor, i.e. father] to meet me at Leamington or Birmingham for I think it will be awful flat work, dowagering about with the Hunts to unknown parts—I am sure I have been dull enough all this summer—hope I have expiated all my sins for a severe Penance I have had of it—I wont be taken alive again in that way when once I get home—Home sweet home you should hear me sing now—I assure you I do it feelingly—it would melt a heart of stone—or rather crack an ear drum of Iron to hear me—but here my powers have no scope I can never give vent to my feelings as I feel inclined—

... did you throw yourself on the Governor's mercy, & confess your creditors, or what have you done? What a capital way of escaping ungentlemanlike Tailors &c— When you are far from the Land they may whistle for their cash for what you care! Well, dont be surprised if you hear I have taken Ship too and fled my duns— that joyful season Xmas is fast approaching— my heart sinks when I think of it—but there's nothing like putting a good face on it— I shall do so as long as I can— Pray write to me one last Farewell my dear Charles & tell me all your plans & prospects—where you are to go to—& all about it?
And tell me too if I shall look out for a nice little Wife for the Parsonage by the time you return. tell me what you require and I will look about and get one in my eye by the time you want her—a proper knowledge of the Beetle tribe of course you require— bye the bye has your faithless
Charlotte Salway bee(n) twined off yet—I have heard nothing of her
As for all your Sisters I think they are gone crazy or sulky or sleepy or somethi(ng) for not one line have I had from any of them these two months—they treat me with the most marked contempt.— I was much amused at Plymouth there is so much worth seeing— Mount Edgcombe I dare say you saw—it is a beautiful Place.— I went on board the Adelaide and all over it—so can fancy you in your little Cabin—and I assure you you will not be forgotten, I shall often long to have you to laugh with and scold out of the Painting room— I wish I had made your Pincushions they might have been useful—and occasionally in taking out an instrument of death for a Beetle you would have called to mind the Manufacturer of the useful article—but it cant be helped now— this letter is most prosy, & duller than letter ever was before—but I cant help it you must take the will for the deed — write to me 2 Northernhay Place= I must now conclude—can only add—I most sincerely wish you every amusement & happiness possible—but only wish most heartily you were not going quite so soon that we might have one more talk & laugh first—but it is not to be— so good bye my dear Charles

Believe me always yours most sincerely and affecty | F O—
Burn this before you sail for pitys sake —

By the time Darwin returned, in 1836, Fanny was married and had a daughter. She wrote more soberly to thank Darwin for a gift of flowers on 14 January 1837.

My dear Charles,

I am ashamed to think how ungrateful I must have appeared to you—for I believe it is more than a month since I received your beautiful present of Flowers & they have remained quite unnoticed by a line of thanks.— pray forgive me I have indeed been more or less so unwell since I received them that I have not been able to write or do any thing else— accept now my best thanks, I was very much pleased by your kind recollection of me— the Flowers are the prettiest things I ever saw, much too good to wear I think & I mean to do justice to them in a glass case—

Friends

—I think you have used your friends very shabbily in taking flight so soon again. I had no idea you were going away for the whole winter— I hope when you have any precious time to throw away you will find your way to Chirk Castle— where I assure you we shall both be delighted to see you—

ever dear Charles y^{rs} most truly | F Myddelton Biddulph

Chirk Castle Jan^{ry} 14th 1837.

In 1838, Darwin married his cousin Emma, and after four years in London moved to Down in Kent. During this time there is little surviving correspondence with women other than members of his own family: Darwin was frequently ill and when he was not was busy writing and studying, establishing himself as a respected man of science. In 1849, he began to visit hydropathic establishments in search of a cure for his ill health. At two of these establishments, Moor Park in Surrey and Ilkley Wells in Yorkshire, he encountered Mary Butler, the sister of Richard Butler, the vicar of Trim in Ireland. Butler visited the Darwins at Down in 1860. Evidently she and her friend, the novelist Georgiana Craik, had discussed Darwin's theories with him. With the first surviving letter, written early in 1859, Darwin sent autographs, no doubt cut from the letters of his naturalist friends:

Down Bromley Kent
Feb. 20th

My dear Miss Butler

I send you some autographs with a list of the men, as you, perhaps, would not know who were who. You will now be well stocked with the autographs of Naturals.

I made myself very pleasant at home with ghost stories & other plumes borrowed from you.

I enjoyed my fortnight extremely at Moor Park, but if I were long exposed to the very pleasant temptation of sitting between Miss Craik & you, I wonder what I should not come to believe: Honey-suckles turning into oaks would be a mere trifle & new species springing up on every Railway embankment.

Will you tell D^r Lane that I found Etty [Hennietta, Darwin's daughter] looking as well & as fat as before her illness.

Pray give my kindest remembrances to all the very pleasant party at Moor Park & believe me with much respect | My dear Miss Butler
| Yours Truly obliged | Charles Darwin

Please to tell Lady Drysdale that I reached the Station only 14 minutes before the Train started & I should like to know when she will ever have such a triumph as that.

Friends

Later in the same year Darwin wrote to find out whether he could expect to see her at Ilkley. He was finishing work on Origin of species.

Down, Bromley Kent
Sept. 11th

My dear Miss Butler

I wrote to Moor Park to enquire for your address, & was told that a letter addressed to you at M^r Tennant's would be forwarded, but that you were wandering about Scotland. This, I much fear, augurs badly for Ilkley.— My Book at last is so nearly finished that I can really & truly see that I shall be a free man at the end of this month. Our plans are rather undecided; but I incline strongly to go to Ilkley, but I fear, without I found it a very tempting place, that it is too late to take a house for my family; & in this case I should stop three or four weeks in the establishment, return home for a week or so, & then go to Moor Park for a few weeks, so as altogether to get a good dose of Hydropathy.

My object in troubling you with this note,—a trouble, which I hope & believe you will forgive—is to know whether there is any chance of your being at Ilkley in beginning of October. It would be rather terrible to go into the great place & not know a soul. But if you were there I should feel safe & home-like.— You see that all your former kindness makes me confident of receiving more kindness.

I hope that you are well & have had happy visits with your friends,
Pray believe me, my dear Miss Butler, with truth | Yours sincerely
obliged | Charles Darwin

In December 1862, Butler wrote her last extant letter to Darwin, asking for assistance for another fellow patient, Mr Thom. Darwin sent him £20. This letter is doubly interesting since 'asking for money, or a job, for someone' is a small but significant theme in letters to Darwin from women. Darwin had grown a beard by this time, at Emma's suggestion, possibly to reduce the irritation caused by shaving and eczema. Darwin wrote to his son William in July 1862, 'Mamma says I am to wear a beard.'

Sudbrook Park | Petersham
Wednesday

My dear M^r Darwin

We were all relieved & made happy by M^{rs} Darwins account of you and I wish that I could go to you now and have the very great pleasure of being once more amongst you all, but Lady Drysdale some time since, made me promise not to leave Sudbrook till after Christmas— We are a quiet sociable party here, & the absence of even one would make some difference in the arrangements of the house. I have an interest much at heart just now, which I fear you will not be able to assist—willing to do so I am certain you will be— You remember M^r Thom—who excited y^r. admiration by the several victories which he achieved over Brandy, Opium Tobacco—& himself!! he has been the steadiest of men ever since Clever, well educated, highly principled—modest!— For some years he has been nominally Sub Editor of the Home News (from which M^r. Robert Bell derives the revenue) but really the sole Manager of the Paper, which has an extensive circulation, & is said to be extremely well conducted—

The Sedentary life in a damp office in the City has so completely undermined his health that he is obliged to give up his employment, & has no prospect of meeting with a suitable one in this Country— so that as a last resource he is going to Queensland—at the age of 33—to spend the remainder of his days amongst Cows & Sheep (he scarcely knows one from the other) in a strange Country—where he has not even a friend; I feel for him deeply

There are many persons to whom the services of such a man would be valuable—for his abilities are excellent—& he has the highest testimonials as to character, whilst both his appearance & manner are prepossessing— It has struck me as just possible that you may know of some place to fit him. He has been trying to get into the Constabulary but has not the proper interest to give any hope of success—he tried for the Secretaryship to an Hospital & found that there were Six hundred Candidates!!— An Inspector of Schools he once thought of, but of that there is no chance, from the Government Interest requisite— Could you speak a good word for him in some influential quarter? he would do you no discredit I believe in any way, for he is really a superior & meritorious man?

We have felt a good deal of anxiety about M^r. Smyth—who was thrown penniless upon the kind family here—but M^r. Tennant of Glasgow has given him an appointment in Trinidad where he has a prospect of becoming a Planter & doing well—he sailed for the West Indies a fortnight ago.— My dear M^r. Darwin I will not excuse myself for writing all this to you, I scarcely believe in the possibility of your having it in your power to befriend poor M^r Thom, but at all events I am assured of your most kind sympathy—

My best love to M^{rs}. Darwin, I dont like the idea of your long beard. M^r. Davenport who is here—wears one from the same cause, but he has benefited wonderfully from the frequent use of the Turkish Bath—& is beginning to look perfectly handsome—

Always Sincerely & affectionately Yours | Mary Butler

The Darwin and Huxley families became close not only because of scientific sympathies between Charles Darwin and Thomas Huxley but because they both had many children, and the Darwins, who were older and better established, gave the Huxleys a good deal of practical and emotional support, on occasion transferring the whole family from London to Down for a rest. Henrietta Huxley, Thomas's wife, liked to tease Darwin with literature.

Dear M: Darwin

Hal has just brought me your note containing your slyly disparaging remarks on my beloved Tennyson—& quoting “as a gem”

‘And he meant, he said | he meant, | Perhaps he meant, or partly | meant you well.’

In the first place it was very mean of you to give the lines without the context shockingly Owenlike [an allusion to Darwin's adversary, the anatomist Richard Owen]

Secondly. The lines only convince me more than ever that Tennyson is quite master of his situation. Could you better render In words, the desire in the wife's mind to do justice, to—her enemy I suppose for I have not read “Sea Dreams”, together with the conflicting feeling which yet possessed her of his insincerity? I am very pleased that Tennyson accredits the feminine mind with such a strong sense of justice.

I now refer to the book— I am grieved to find that a philosopher of your repute—should have damaged your reputation for accuracy so greatly as to tell me that the quotation was from “Enoch Arden” whereas it was from “Sea Dreams”— If the “facts?!” in the Origin of Species are of this sort—I agree with the Bishop of Oxford— [Samuel Wilberforce had criticised the Origin of species at the British Association for the Advancement of Science meeting in 1860.]

Yours too sincerely | Henrietta Huxley

love to your dear wife & ask her for a screed.

New Year's Day | 1865.

In 1872, the Huxleys moved house.

at Miss Woodington's | The Common | Sevenoaks
Oct. 16th

My dear M^{rs}: Huxley

Every man has a right to give a friend a marriage present; & going into a new house is nearly as serious & dangerous an affair as marriage.— Therefore I have a full right to enjoy the pleasure of making you a marriage present. I defy your husband, with all his sharpness, to pick a hole in this logic. But here comes my difficulty: I want to give something useful & not poetical, & I thought of asking to be allowed to furnish your dining room; but then I know not what furniture you already have. Now will you not allow me to treat you, as I have treated some of my near relations (& I am sure that I feel like a near relation to you all) & ask you to buy something with the enclosed for your self.—

Friends

Do grant me this favour.— I was very sorry to hear so poor an account of your husband's state, both for my own sake, & you must know what admiration & affection I feel for him, & for the sake of the whole world.— I hope that he may soon improve, & there is at least one comfort in indigestion, with all its miseries, that there is always a good chance of a prompt cure.—

Pray believe me, my dear | M^{rs} Huxley.— | Yours affectionately |
Charles Darwin

Mary Catherine Stanley, Lady Derby, was the daughter of George Sackville-West, Earl De La Warr; she married James Gascoyne-Cecil, the marquess of Salisbury, and after his death she married Edward Henry Stanley, the earl of Derby. Her ODNB entry describes her as a politician manqué, and speculates that her childhood friendship with the duke of Wellington might have been the source of her fascination with 'politics, diplomacy, and war, and her preference for male conversation'. Her second marriage brought her to Holwood House, in Keston, Kent, not far from Darwin's house at Down. Her letters to Darwin are notably brisk and brief. They begin with a shared interest in the writings of the psychic investigator William Crookes, on 16 November 1871:

Holwood | Beckenham
Thursday Evg

Dear M^r: Darwin

I could not lose a moment on my return home—& read the article most eagerly. You will be obliged to believe that M^r Crookes has "a craze". It staggers me a good deal.—but I know that my imagination is apt to overpower my judgment!—

I wish I had seen you after you had read the article. I sh^d have liked so much to hear what effect it produced on you!—

Y^{rs} very sincerely | M C Derby

Down | Beckenham | Kent
Saturday

Dear Lady Derby

If you had called here after I had read the article you would have found a much perplexed man. I cannot disbelieve M^r: Crookes' statement, nor can I believe in his result. It has removed some of my difficulty that the supposed power [altering the weight of objects remotely] is not an anomaly, but is common in a lesser degree to various persons. It is also a consolation to reflect that gravity acts at any distance, in some wholly unknown manner, & so may nerve force. Nothing is so difficult to decide as where to draw a just line between scepticism & credulity.

Friends

It was a very long time before scientific men would believe in the fall of aerolites [meteorites]; & this was chiefly owing to so much bad evidence, as in the present case, being mixed up with the good.

All sorts of objects were said to have been seen falling from the sky—

I very much hope that a number of men, such as Professor Stokes will be induced to witness M^r. Crookes' experiments.

Pray believe me | your Ladyship's | truly obliged | Charles Darwin

23. S^t. James's Square. | S.W.
June 4/72

Dear Mr. Darwin

Sackville [Sackville Cecil, Lady Derby's son] would be extremely pleased to be allowed to be present with M^r. Galton at a Séance of M^r. Crookes'.—tho' he doubts being able to form any opinion without going thoroughly into the Evidence, & this,—with the work he has in hand would not be possible.

But the truth is I am very eager Sackville should be at one of M^r. Crookes' séances, & if you think it likely M^r. C. w^d. allow him to go with M^r. Galton—w^d. it be asking too much of you to try to arrange it? Sackville is very sceptical on the point but very curious—I am all ready to hear of a new force & very curious indeed.

...

Believe me | Y^{rs} very sincerely | M C Derby

As an occasional neighbour of Darwin's, Lady Derby took an interest in the district, but was rarely able to visit. In this letter, a visit from her has almost coincided with a visit from two ornithologists, one Russian, one American.

Fairhill, | Tunbridge.
Sept 14/75

Dear M^r. Darwin

It was very good of you to write to me yest^r. & I thank you much for telling me such exact truth. I was very much disappointed not to go to Down, but sh^d. have been in despair had I found myself arriving at an inconvenient moment. I must now defer my visit till November, for we go to the North early next week.

I went on to Keston to see M^r. Carlyle; the country air has done him great good & I want him to linger on at Keston till the fine weather leaves us. [Lord Derby had put Keston Lodge at Thomas Carlyle's disposal for the summer of 1875.] I suspect he is getting rather dull, & is half sorry to have been so unsocial to his neighbours on his first arrival!

Friends

I was in the New Forest the other day & saw some birch trees with bark exactly like that of the birch in Holwood which I remember hearing you speak of.

Believe me | dear M^r Darwin | Yrs very sincerely | M C Derby
I hope M^{rs} Darwin's headache has passed away

In 1875 she wrote to thank Darwin, probably for praising Lord Derby's inaugural address as rector of the University of Edinburgh.

Knowsley, | Prescott.
22 Dec^r/75

Dear M^r Darwin

Though you tell me not to answer your most kind note I cannot help disobeying you: Your warm & genuine expressions of approval have given L^d Derby more pleasure than any other compliment he has received, & you must forgive me for saying so.— We made two short visits to Keston last month, but I was never able to find time to get as far as Down.

We are more & more pleased with Keston each time we go there.

Will you remember me kindly to M^{rs} Darwin & believe me | Y^{rs} very sincerely | M C Derby

Knowsley, | Prescott.
19 Sept/77

Dear M^r Darwin

Count Schouvaloff [Peter Andreivich Shuvàlov, Russian ambassador to London] has been asserting today that your works are still prohibited in Russia. I told him your story as you told it to me, but he thinks I have made a mistake. If you would not mind dictating a letter to me stating what you believe to be true, I sh^d be much interested to be able to tell him that he was mistaken.

Still if you prefer to let the matter alone take no notice of my request.

Yrs very sincerely | M C Derby

23. St. James's Square. | S.W.
May 24/78

Dear M^r Darwin

My brother who has just returned from S. America has brought from the River Plate the accompanying fragment of bone from a fish's head called Corbin; he is very anxious to know if it ever came under your notice. There are two of these bony substances in the head of every fish. Fibrous threads diverge from the rough part in the interior—as if this substance were the covering of the brain! if one can venture to speak of the brain of a fish.

Friends

Forgive me for troubling you & for daring to suppose I am mentioning any thing that can be new to you.—
Believe me | Yrs Very sincerely | M C Derby

The following letter, from 1879, shows a message from Darwin to Lord Derby being transmitted in a letter from Emma to Lady Derby.

Down, | Beckenham, Kent. | Railway Station | Orpington. S.E.R.
Tuesday | Nov 12

My dear Lady Derby

My eldest son has received the accompanying papers from Mr Olmstead (so distinguished for his services in the American war)

He is very anxious to obtain some influential signatures to the petitions & Mr Darwin sends it to you in hopes that Lord Derby may be inclined to give his— I enclose an envelope to return it.

My husband sends by this post a short notice of his grandfather D^r E. Darwin which he has just published. He would be much pleased if it interested you in any degree—

Believe me | my dear Lady Derby | very truly yours | Emma Darwin

The petition, which originated with Frederick Law Olmsted and Charles Eliot Norton, had to do with buying up property around Niagara Falls so as to provide better public access and preserve the site for future generations. Darwin had received it from his son William, who probably had it from his American wife, Sara, Norton's sister-in-law. William wrote to Darwin: 'Sara thought it would be possible to send it to Lord Derby through Lady Derby. His would be a capital name if it could be got; but I don't want to give you any trouble; & unless you thought Mother could send it to Lady Derby nothing had better be done' (letter from W. E. Darwin to C. R. Darwin, [9 November 1879], Cornford Family Papers.)

Lady Derby's final letter thanks Darwin for a copy of his book on worms.

Knowsley, | Prescot.
16 Oct /81

Dear M^r Darwin

I am much obliged & greatly flattered by your kind thought of me. I have read your book with the greatest interest. You said once, laughing,—that you were finding that "Worms" could revolutionise the world;—you have succeeded in proving the greatness of their power.

I wonder how you fared at Down in the gale of Friday! We felt here as if we might be swept away. Seventy trees came down in an hour; people could not keep their feet. The storm was preceded by some minutes perhaps ¼ hour of perfect stillness—unusual stillness at 5. a.m. on Friday; the watchmen & others described “the roar as coming from the S.W for 3 or 4 minutes & then the wind burst in a hurricane”.

Friends

I hear of great havoc at Holwood. Will you give my kindest regards to M^{rs} Darwin & believe me | Yrs very sincerely | M C Derby.

The Nortons became friends of the Darwins after staying near Down in 1868. Susan Ridley Sedgwick Norton, wife of Charles Eliot Norton, and sister of William Erasmus Darwin’s future wife, Sara, wrote this letter in 1871:

Dresden. | 9. Räcknitz Strasse—
Nov. 20th

My dear Mr Darwin—

Truth compels me to state that I was not in search of pure science when I came across the little pamphlet which leaves here for Down tomorrow morning—far from it—but as I looked vainly, alas! for a french novel what should I see but the words “War Goethe ein Darwinianer”? Now I ask you, who are incapable of prejudice, if any better proof of German “fleissigkeit” [diligence] is wanting than that these admirable pursuers of hidden truth have actually time enough & to spare to steal the best genius of other countries?— Being in true feminine style convinced, without knowing anything about the matter that Goethe was no Darwinianer—I have not read the pamphlet—but Mr Norton has & he tells me that the profound Schmidt is of my way of thinking— You shall decide whether yr great original was to have been seen some time since wooing the lovely sirens of Weimar rather than those most interesting inhabitants of warmer climes—

Writing you this nonsense gives me a pleasant opportunity of telling you that we have heard from my Aunts & Sister, most animated accounts of your sons’ visit to Cambridge [Mass.].— They have left behind them many friends & the most agreeable impressions & what more can one ask to do in going to a foreign country?— My Sister & brother imply that there was an immense amount of laughing done— So I take it that my country furnished at least one very admirable element of enjoyment—Mirth.— I wish we might have been at home to return a little bit of your unbounded hospitality to us but perhaps one of these days you may be fired with the desire to see those monkeys which one of yr great novelists describes as gaily gambolling in the trees of Illinois! If such should be the case you will surely not overlook Cambridge, the home of all virtue & learning & at least for a time will rest at Shady Hill,—where novels and a most affectionate welcome will always await you

You may be glad to know that we are most comfortably established in this dullest & most respectable of cities—& are all well—even Mrs. Norton [her mother-in-law] may be called well now—but

Friends

Germany is “langweilig” [boring] & I shall be glad when I find myself on the lovely shores of the dear little Island.

We send to you & yours warmest messages of regard—& Mr Norton bids me remember him very especially to yrself & Mrs. Darwin | Pray give her my love— | & always believe me | dear Mr Darwin—
| Affectionately yours | Susan Norton.

Down, | Beckenham, Kent.
Nov, 23^d

My dear M^{rs}. Norton

I am very much obliged for your kind & pleasant letter & for your present of the little book about Goethe. It is written by a very good zoologist, & I shall be glad, to look at it, but the German language is a sore grief & trouble to me.—

My sons enjoyed themselves wonderfully in America, & they met with really extraordinary kindness from many persons.— When I asked them what on the whole they liked best there, they answered without a moment’s doubt “our stay at the Ashburners [Susan Norton’s aunts] & the great valleys in California”,—which seems an odd couplet. We heard much of all the fun & laughter they had with your sister & brother; & they heartily congratulated themselves that they had the good fortune to be invited to the house.—

I am glad to hear you are comfortably settled at Dresden, & as for dullness forgive me for saying that with your party it is not to be believed.—

Pray give my respect & kind remembrances to M^{rs}. Norton, & good wishes to all your party, & I remain | My dear M^{rs}. Norton | Yours sincerely & obliged | Ch Darwin

P.S. My wife has just given me a good scolding, & I always tremble before her just severity, for not having given you her affectionate remembrances.—

In 1872, after the publication of Expression of the emotions, Darwin made contact with a very old friend from Shropshire, Sarah Owen, sister of Fanny Owen. Fanny had married and become Fanny Myddelton Biddulph. Sarah was now the widowed Mrs Haliburton, after a second marriage.

Down, | Beckenham, Kent.
November 1st

My dear M^{rs}. Haliburton

I daresay you will be surprised to hear from me. My object in writing now is to say that I have just published a book on the “Expression of the Emotions in Man & Animals”; & it has occurred to me that you might possibly like to read some parts of it; & I can hardly think that this would have been the case with any of the books which I have already published. So I send by this post my present book. Although I have had no communication with you or the other members of your family for so long a time, no scenes in my whole life pass so frequently or so vividly before my mind, as those which relate to happy old days spent at Woodhouse. I should very much like to hear a little news about yourself & the other members of your family, if you will take the trouble to write to me. Formerly I used to glean some news about you from my sisters.

Friends

I have had many years of bad health & have not been able to visit anywhere; & now I feel very old. As long as I pass a perfectly uniform life, I am able to do some daily work in Natural History, which is still my passion, as it was in old days, when you used to laugh at me for collecting beetles with such zeal at Woodhouse. Excepting from my continued ill-health, which has excluded me from society, my life has been a very happy one;—the greatest drawback being that several of my children have inherited from me feeble health.

I hope with all my heart that you retain, at least to a large extent, the famous “Owen constitution”.—

With sincere feelings of gratitude & affection for all bearing the name of Owen, I venture to sign myself | Yours affectionately | Charles Darwin

My wife desires me to send her very kind regards to you.—

Bridge House | Richmond | S.W.

Nov^r 3^d

My dear Charles Darwin

If I was to try & express to you, the extreme pleasure your letter had given me, to say nothing of the Book that accompanied it, I might be accused of flattery, or “soft Sawder”—Still, I may, (& I will) with truth declare that few letters, & few gifts have afforded me the gratification of yours yesterday— To know that I was still remembered by you, after such a lapse of years, is in itself a satisfaction

That remembrance has indeed been reciprocal, & often & often have I lamented that I never had a chance of seeing you— I have made enquiries from various friends of your’s, & have always been told, that even the excitement of meeting an old friend, was usually more than you could bear— Spite of this, I will still indulge the hope of once more shaking hands with one of the best & most valued friends of my youth—

How many sad changes have befallen us both, since we met, & how many of those we most loved, have been taken from us,—to me, especially Life is but a shadow, a remembrance, of happy bygone days—

I have, like you, a most vivid remembrance of the bright old Woodhouse times, in which you stand first & foremost I can recall the Beetle, & the Fungus hunting, & above all, the glee with which “Charles Darwin” used to be descried, cantering up to the house, it being a received opinion, that any frowns of the poor governor would be at once dispelled, you being always the most influential favourite— I have now in my possession a letter you wrote to me from “Terra del Fuego”, at my particular request, & I can often laugh at your boyish assertion, that the highest pitch of your ambition would be to be favourably alluded to, in Eddowe’s Journal!—[a Shropshire local newspaper] I think that ambition has been attained, & something more—

I live a very quiet, solitary life, only associating with a few old, & kind friends, my house is pretty enough, actually on Richmond Bridge, with small garden sloping down to the River— My old passion for Animals still continues, but alas, I have no room for Poultry here, I have tried Pigeons, but they & the Cats were incompatible, so my live stock is now reduced to two tiny Maltese dogs, two very large persian Cats, & an old Cockatoo that I have had since 1848— I am certain your book will very much interest & amuse me— When one lives as I do, alone with Animals, their habits & manners become doubly interesting & familiar— My health is but indifferent, I fancy there is something amiss with my heart & the famed “Owen Constitution” is not what it was, in days of Yore. Time, & Sorrow, have much tried me—

You ask after the Family, poor Fanny, as you perhaps know, became a Widow 6 months ago, & now lives in London, with two unmarried daughters— Caroline Lister is settled in Yorkshire, Sobie [Sobieski, another sister] lives alone at Cirencester, Arthur now reigns at poor old Woodhouse, Francis lives on his small property near Overton, & Charles is Chief Constable of Oxfordshire, with a Wife & 5 Children— Of your Children, I have from time to time heard, that many of them inherit the Family talents, & I think you have one Daughter married, if not more—

When Summer returns, if we live till then, may I look forward to our meeting somehow & somewhere, I often go to London, & would meet you anywhere you might appoint though I must not run the risk of affecting your health—

Once more, thanking you from my heart, for the pleasure you have given me, believe me, always, most truly & affectionately Yours |
S. H. Haliburton

Why did you address me so formally?—

Down, | Beckenham, Kent.
Nov. 6th

My dear Sarah

I have been very much pleased by your letter, which I must call charming.— I hardly ventured to think that you would have retained a friendly recollection of me for so many years. Yet I ought to have felt assured that you would remain as warm-hearted & as true-hearted as you have ever been from my earliest recollection.— I know well how many grievous sorrows you have gone through; but I am very sorry to hear that your health is not good. In the Spring or summer, when the weather is better, if you can summon up courage to pay us a visit here, both my wife, as she desires me to say, & myself would be truly glad to see you, & I know that you would not care about being rather dull here. It would be a real pleasure to me to see you.— Thank you much for telling about your family,—much of which was new to me. How kind you all were to me as a boy, & you especially, & how much happiness I owe to you.

Friends

Believe me | Your affectionate & obliged Friend | Charles Darwin
Perhaps you would like to see a Photograph of me now that I am old.—

In 1880, Haliburton wrote again:

Bridge House | Richmond | S.W.
Nov^r 21st.

Dear Charles Darwin

(For I really cannot address you in any other way)

Yesterday I read, in a leading Article of the Times, “Of all our living Men of Science, none have laboured longer, or to more splendid purpose than M^r Darwin”, & it recalled to my mind, your boyish assertion made many many years ago, that “if ever Eddowe’s Newspaper alluded to you, as “our deserving Fellow Townsman”, your ambition would be amply gratified”—

So you may believe with what sincere gratification, I see your fondest hopes, more than gratified, & realized— You have hosts of friends, but few older, or more sincere than myself, for you are associated with the happiest memories of my youth, & I have the most affectionate recollections of the name of Darwin, as connected with all that was good & pleasant— How my poor Father would have rejoiced in your “splendid success”, & I can fancy his carrying that Newspaper about, & reading it to every body!—

It is a long time since I have heard any thing of you, but I hope you are tolerably well, as I see you are able to receive “Deputations”—

Let me hope we may live to meet again, meanwhile believe me always | Your’s very affectionately | S. H. Haliburton

Down, | Beckenham, Kent. | (Railway Station | Orpington. S.E.R.)
Nov. 22^d 1880

My dear Sarah.

You see how audaciously I begin; but I have always loved & shall ever love this name.— Your letter has done more than please me, for its kindness has touched my heart. I often think of old days & of the delight of my visits to Woodhouse & of the deep debt of gratitude which I owe to your Father. It was very good of you to write. I had quite forgotten my old ambition about the Shrewsbury newspaper; but I remember the pride which I felt when I saw in a book about beetles the impressive words “captured by C. Darwin”. Captured sounded so grand compared with caught. This seemed to me glory enough for any man! I do not know in the least what made the Times glorify me, for it has sometimes pitched into me ferociously.

Friends

I should very much like to see you again; but you would find a visit here very dull, for we feel very old & have no amusements & lead a solitary life. But we intend in a few weeks to spend a few days in London, & then if you have anything else to do in London you would perhaps come & lunch with us.

Believe me my dear Sarah | Yours gratefully & affectionately |
Charles Darwin

My health is better than it was & I am able to do daily a good deal of work, but 24 hr^s never pass without some discomfort, & I am easily tired. Nevertheless there is much to make me happy & life is still an enjoyment.—

Bridge House | Richmond | S.W.
Dec. 12th.—

Dear Charles Darwin

It is no use! I cannot resist writing to tell you, what a real & great pleasure it was to me, to see you, & such a goodly Assemblage of Darwins besides, a gratification I had hardly hoped for— You are one of my oldest remaining friends, & you are so happily associated with the palmy days of yore, that it is indeed a heartfelt satisfaction to me to see you, & to feel assured, that old times are still fresh in your memory, & your friendly regard unabated—

I can only hope this satisfaction may be renewed at no very distant period for Life is short, & uncertain; But while it lasts, believe that I am always most affectionately your's, | S. H. Haliburton.

PS. | Our meeting had but one drawback, you called me “M^r. Haliburton” twice— This offence must not be repeated—

Leith Hill Place | Dorking
Dec. 13. 1880

(Home tomorrow)

My dear Sarah

It was very good of you to write, & your note has given me much pleasure. It is not too common to find anyone in this world as true as steel. Your postscript is your own dear old self.—

Immediately that you left (Queen Anne St. Emma & I said to one another we must try when the weather gets a little better, whether she will face the dullness of Down & pay us a little visit. So that in the early spring you will have to make up your mind.

I had hoped to call & see whether M^{rs}. Biddulph would admit me, & had got her address, but a Russian naturalist came to luncheon & dined me half to death & then an American naturalist, & I was half dead. But next time that I am in London I will try. I think that there must be some M^{rs} Biddulph living in Leamington, for I was told so positively that our M^{rs} Biddulph lived there, that I have thought of enquiring. In former years I was, also, rarely fit to see anybody.

Let me call you | my dear old friend | Yours affectionately |
Charles Darwin

Caroline [Wedgwood, Darwin's sister] is a little better & came down to dinner the first time for three months. She sends you her very kind love.

Haliburton's last known letter to Darwin, in 1881, contained condolences on the death of Darwin's brother, Erasmus.

Pavilion Hotel | Folkestone
Sep^r 8th

My dear Charles Darwin

I cannot refrain from offering to you my very sincere condolences on the loss of your Brother, for I know it must be a great sorrow to you, & I must always sympathize in all that concerns you— When I last saw Erasmus, this Spring, he appeared much in his usual health—

I am here, & have been, for more than three weeks, in attendance on my poor Sister Sobie, who returned from Aix les Bains in a most wretched state, & she has ever since been dangerously ill, Inflammation of the Lungs, & her Heart also affected, her recovery is more than doubtful, & her sufferings are sad to witness— Fanny Biddulph is here also, she desires many kind remembrances to you—

Believe me always | Most sincerely Your's | S H Haliburton

Do not take the trouble to answer this, I only wished to assure you, that your trouble had not been disregarded by me—