REDEFINING EQUALITY

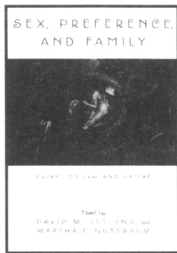

Edited by NEAL DEVINS and DAVISON M. DOUGLAS

Addressing the specific cases behind the headlines and the abstract arguments within the legal texts, the contributors look closely at everything from school bussing programs and affirmative action to the role of the courts and the politics of equality.

SEX, PREFERENCE, AND FAMILY

Essays on Law and Nature

Edited by DAVID M. ESTLUND and MARTHA C. NUSSBAUM

In this timely, provocative volume, essayists including Susan Moller Okin, Catherine MacKinnon, Cass Sunstein, Martha Minow, William Galston, and Sara McLanahan argue positions on sexuality, the family, and the proper role of law in these areas.

BAD KIDS

Race and the Transformation of the Juvenile Court

BARRY C. FELD

Written by a leading scholar of juvenile justice, this book explores the social and legal changes that have transformed the juvenile court in the last three decades from a nominally rehabilitative welfare agency into a scaled-down criminal court for young offenders.

THE KILLING STATE

Capital Punishment in Law, Politics, and Culture

Edited by AUSTIN SARAT

Collecting work by several notable scholars, this book exhibits a new way of thinking about state killing that goes beyond abstract moral argument and narrow policy debate to assess its impact on our legal system, its powerful symbolic appeal, and its place in today's "culture wars."

THE CULTURAL LIFE OF INTELLECTUAL PROPERTIES

Authorship, Appropriation, and the Law

ROSEMARY J. COOMBE

"A sparkingly original synthesis of cultural studies and law. Coombe is a clever and edifying guide through the hidden landscape of property rights that subtly shapes so many cultural phenomena, from the circulation of celebrities to the struggles of indigenous peoples."—Bruce Robbins, Rutgers University

"This is highly original ethnography. Coombe not only shows us the lifeways of law, but also some fascinating routings between the streets and high theory, and back again. . . ."—Carol J. Greenhouse, Indiana University

"This is a scintillating cultural commentary: Coombe's own skills as anthropologist and lawyer have been re-combined to devastating effect."—Marilyn Strathern, University of Cambridge

THE ENCHANTMENT OF REASON

PIERRE SCHLAG

Claiming that reason has been endowed with a virtually mystical power to organize social life, Schlag unravels the seemingly rational world of judicial opinions, statutes, doctrines, and legal principles. In the process, he paints a shocking picture of the chaos and, indeed, violence of the American legal tradition.

"Schlag is one of the most exciting and interesting legal theorists now writing and this book shows all of his considerable virtues."—James Boyle, Washington College of Law, American University

"This is an important contribution to the genre of jurisprudential reflection. It considers some of the most difficult and sophisticated issues on the current intellectual scene and, unlike much 'postmodern' scholarly production, it is clear, well-argued, and often brilliantly written."—Gary Peller, Georgetown University Law Center

Fear of Judging

Sentencing Guidelines in the Federal Courts

Kate Stith and José A. Cabranes

"Fear of Judging is a brilliant work. Although the Guidelines have been in effect for more than ten years, this is the first book-length appraisal of their history and operation. The authors reveal the banality, artificiality, incomprehensibility, arbitrariness, and complexity of the Guidelines sentencing as well as the evasion and hypocrisy that the Guidelines have encouraged. Fear of Judging is a triumph of decency, careful scholarship, and good sense."—Albert W. YOUTH VIOLENCE

Edited by Michael Tonry and Mark H. Moore

Youth violence has become one of the most contentious and perplexing issues in current debates on crime policy, not the least because of the sharp increase in violence among young minority males since the mid-1980s. Youth gangs have become increasingly associated in the public eye with drug dealing, firearms, and random violence. Magazines publish cover stories on "superpredators" and warn that demographic change will lead to an explosion of predatory violence. Congress provides billions to the states as an incentive to get tough with juvenile offenders, including in the effective abolition of the juvenile court. Developmental researchers seek to identify the aspects of childhood that either lead to or prevent juvenile crime.

Featuring articles by leading American and European scholars from many fields, Youth Violence provides a reliable, up-to-date, authoritative and comprehensive overview of policy issues and research developments concerning crime and violence among the young.

Contributors include

Youth Violence, Mark H. Moore and Michael Tonry

Mistaken Identity

The Supreme Court and the Politics of Minority Representation

Keith J. Bybee

Is it ever legitimate to redraw electoral districts on the basis of race? The U.S. Supreme Court has treated race-conscious redistricting either as a requirement of political fairness or as an exercise in corrosive racial quotas. Cutting through these contradictory positions, Keith Bybee examines the theoretical foundations of the Court's decisions and the ideological controversy those decisions have engendered. He uncovers erroneous assumptions about political identity on both sides of the debate and formulates new terms on which minority representation can be pursued.

"Throughout this book, Keith Bybee presents a fine balance of historical, legal, and political philosophical argument. . . . [T]his is an impressive display of scholarly mastery."—Austin Sarat

"This book is elegantly written, closely argued, and controversial without ever falling for cheap shots or easy answers."—Jennifer Hochschild
