

Reform and Insurrection in Bourbon New Granada and Peru

Edited by John R. Fisher, Allan J. Kuethe, and Anthony McFarlane

Based on a rich selection of documentary materials, the ten essays in this book open new perspectives into interpreting the political, social, commercial, and economic developments in the viceroyalty of New Granada, established in 1739, and the viceroyalty of Peru, which, after 1776, occupied a much-reduced territory. These essays, originally presented as research papers at the Forty-Fifth International Congress of Americanists, held in Bogotá in 1985, not only advance new perspectives into the Spanish empire, but also suggest new avenues for further research.

Review of International Studies

Edited by Richard Little, Department of Politics and International Relations, Lancaster University

Published for the British International Studies Association by Cambridge University Press

Set up in 1974 as the flagship journal of British International Studies Association, Review of International Studies serves the needs of scholars in politics, law, history and all other areas of social science in the international arena.

Review of International Studies is a journal which no library on international relations can be without. It covers all topics ranging from international organization and intercultural communication to political economy and war cultures. For example recent issues have covered European foreign policy, human rights and the arms industry, with a discussion on Clausewitz. There have been reviews of recent literature on the legality of nuclear weapons as well as on the UN; discussion of Cold War and Reganism; the theory of systems and states; and an analysis of the first UN resolution on treatment of Indians in South Africa. Review of International Studies takes a strong interdisciplinary perspective and its excellent reputation attracts writing from academics worldwide. It brings together work from well-known scholars and from those starting out, ensuring a dynamic exchange of new views and ideas.

International Affairs

Published for the Royal Institute of International Affairs by Cambridge University Press

International Affairs, founded in 1922, is the quarterly journal of the Royal Institute of International Affairs and Britain's leading policy journal of contemporary world affairs. It combines broad-based coverage of global policy questions with up-to-date and penetrating analysis of the key processes shaping world developments. Articles by practising policy-makers and academic specialists keep both general and specialist readers in touch with the leading edge of European debates, as well as with thinking elsewhere on current international issues. International Affairs brings the issues of today to the fore in a way that is readable and stimulating. The journal also carries an unrivalled book review section, reviewing more than 100 new books on world affairs in every issue, thus providing an up-to-date survey of new work.

"By far the best survey of current literature in the field"

'Alonso re-examines a category of Latin American fiction all but explained away in the past. He justifies the raison d'être of this category with arguments that by far surpass, [in] both intelligence and ingenuity, anything written on the subject before him . . . a very original, highly stimulating book'.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal of Latin American Studies is published three times a year, in February, May and October. Its editorial offices are located in the Institute of Latin American Studies, University of London. The editorial board includes representatives of the Centres or Institutes of Latin American Studies in the Universities of Cambridge, Essex, Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Oxford.

The scope of the Journal is the study of Latin America from the standpoint of the social sciences (including history and international relations). Articles on literature and the arts are not normally included, but the editors are pleased to consider contributions in the field of intellectual and cultural history. Articles with an inter-disciplinary approach are particularly welcome.

Contributions are invited from all parts of the world. Articles should generally not be more than 8000 words long. Two copies typed with double spacing should be submitted. A style sheet is available from the editors. The Journal is published in English, but articles may also be submitted in Spanish or Portuguese; if the article is accepted, translation into English will be the responsibility of the author. Tables, diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the editors. The Journal only publishes original contributions; translations of articles already published will not be accepted. Each contributor will receive, free of charge, 25 offprints of the article and a copy of the issue of the Journal in which it appears.

The Journal publishes book reviews in each issue. Not all books received can be reviewed and editorial policy gives preference to substantial reviews of books regarded as of major importance for the disciplines covered by the Journal.

All contributions and editorial correspondence should be addressed to Journal of Latin American Studies, Institute of Latin American Studies, 31 Tavistock Square, London, WC1H 9HA.
