An Introduction to Homer

W. A. Camps

This is a book for all readers of Homer, whether in translation or in the original. It attempts to characterize the poetic art of the Iliad and Odyssey and to analyse the reasons for its effectiveness. The author's main intention is to share with others some of the pleasure that he has had himself from this first great poetry of the Western world. £5.95 paper covers £2.50

The Chorus in Sophocles' Tragedies

R. W. B. Burton

This book attempts to assess the contribution of Sophocles' choruses, both as singers and as actors, to our understanding of his plays. The author devotes a chapter to each tragedy, analysing the odes and sung dialogues in detail, and setting the songs in their dramatic context. £16.50

Greek Aims of Fortification

A. W. Lawrence

In this book information from literature and inscriptions is combined with the evidence of hundreds of ruins throughout the Greek world to provide an interpretation of the remains in the light of historical conditions. It investigates the motives for building the various types of fortification, the diverse means by which individual types performed their function, and the many respects in which the need for defences affected the lives of the inhabitants of Greek cities. Illustrated £35

Doubt and Dogmatism

Studies in Hellenistic Epistemology

Edited by Malcolm Schofield, Myles Burnyeat, and Jonathan Barnes

The Hellenistic philosophers are not as well known to the general philosophical community as Plato and Aristotle, nor have they been studied by scholars with the intensity they deserve. Yet the achievement of Hellenistic philosophy was considerable in itself, and historically it had a formative influence on the development of modern philosophy. The problems and debates under discussion in this book marked out some of its central concerns for philosophy. £12.50

Heraclides of Pontus

H. D. Gottschalk

In this book Dr Gottschalk attempts to reconstruct the thought of Heraclides, a follower of Plato and older contemporary of Aristotle. After an introductory chapter on Heraclides' life and writings, five chapters deal with separate groups of fragments: the first offers a reconstruction of the dialogue Peri tes apnou; the rest deal with his corpuscular theory of matter, the astronomical fragments, ethical and religious fragments, and historical and literary studies. £12.50

The Loeb Classical Library

RECENT NEW WORKS

Each volume £5.50 net

Manilius

His Astronomica appears in English prose for the first time in a translation by Professor G.P.Goold of Yale University, the General Editor of the Loeb Classical Library. Abundant charts and star maps, introductory essays, and notes provide a guide to ancient astronomy and astrology, as well as to the text of the poem.

Libanius II

This is the second of three volumes of selections from one of the most prolific and influential writers of later antiquity. The book includes speeches from the period after Julian, translated by Professor A.F.Norman of the University of Hull. One of the sharpest critics of growing Christian intolerance, Libanius is a prime source of our knowledge of the society and attitudes of the fourth century.

Menander

Three volumes containing all of Menander are being edited and translated by W.G.Arnott, Professor of Greek, the University of Leeds. The first volume appeared in 1979. (These three volumes will replace the earlier one-volume edition.)

Greek Lyric

New discoveries, extensive scholarly work on the text, and a more accurate translation will be incorporated in a completely fresh version by Professor D.A.Campbell of the University of Victoria. The first volume will appear next year.

Aristophanes – THE COMEDIES edited and translated by A. H. Sommerstein

Each comedy has a freshly constituted text with a new English translation intended to be at the same time readable and accurate in detail, and a commentary concentrating on the theatrical, literary, social and historical background against which the plays have to be understood. The plays will be published in chronological order starting with the Acharnians.

Parallel Greek & English texts; Vol. I: ACHARNIANS 224pp. A5; cloth ; 0 85668 167 9; £10 Paper 0 85668 172 5; £5. (Vol. II: KNIGHTS in preparation for 1981)

Dennis Proctor – THE EXPERIENCE OF THUCYDIDES

After tracing the changes in Thucydides' outlook against the background of events during the long composition of his masterpiece, the History, Sir Dennis deals fully with the main issues of Thucydidean scholarship, the stages of composition, the status of the speeches and the Melian Dialogue, the analysis of the causes of the war, Thucydides' political sympathies and reflections on revolution in the Greek cities. The Historian is shown as a man of deeply ingrained moral principles who grew in depth of feeling rather than intellect. 272pp. A5;

July 1980; Cloth 085668 153 9; £12.50

A. W. Johnston – TRADEMARKS ON GREEK VASES

The work embraces all those dipinti and graffiti found underneath decorated Greek vases over the period c.630 – c.360 B.C. The bulk of these marks are on Attic vases and Dr. Johnston presents these in a full catalogue raisonnée arranged by types of mark. There is an extensive commentary on the marks, lists of non-Attic vases and chapters on the origins, physical aspects, script, dialect and vocabulary of the marks, provenances of marked vases, vase names prices, painters, interpretations and trade. 304pp. A4; 53 photos, 14pp. figs; 0 85668 123 7; £24

The Spartans

L. F. FITZHARDINGE

'a balanced, scholarly account of all the evidence . . . lucidly written, well-illustrated and important book' – The Daily Telegraph
From the early fourth century BC there grew up a view of Sparta that prevailed almost unchallenged until the beginning of our time. Excavations by the British School in the years 1906-1910, however, seemed to reveal that Sparta was not merely a well-governed military organization, but a state in the mainstream of Greek culture, where the arts flourished and outside contacts were many and fruitful. L. F. Fitzhardinge has based this new and convincing account of Spartan life and mores entirely on contemporary written evidence and the latest archaeological findings.
With 150 illustrations £9.50
Ancient Peoples and Places

The Theatre of Aristophanes

KENNETH MCLEISH

How would Aristophanes' works have first been staged in the fifth century BC at the Theatre of Dionysos in Athens? How would the actors have interpreted the lines, how would they have 'played' the jokes and comic routines of which the extant texts are blueprints? Treating the eleven surviving plays essentially as scripts for performance, and drawing on his own considerable 'behind-the-scenes' experience as scriptwriter, producer and actor, Kenneth McLeish brilliantly analyses the components of Aristophanes' art, the unique performing traditions of Greek Old Comedy, and the theory and evolution of the comic theatre itself.
With 9 line drawings £9.50

The Greeks Overseas

Their Early Colonies and Trade

JOHN BOARDMAN

New and enlarged edition

The spread of Greek civilization through Europe, into Africa and the Near East, began long before the full flowering of Classical Greek culture. The Greeks Overseas vividly demonstrates the value of archaeology in reconstructing one of the most important formative periods of European history. The first edition of this work appeared as a paperback 15 years ago. For this edition the text has been completely updated, partly rewritten, fully annotated and provided with a new and much wider range of illustration in a larger format.

Chronology of the Ancient World

E. J. BICKERMAN A revised edition

Almost every nation of the ancient world used its own method of arranging the calendar.

E. J. Bickerman, Professor Emeritus of Ancient History at Columbia University, has gathered together and set out all the information needed for the accurate dating of ancient history – both of the classical nations and of other early civilizations in the Near East. Much of the book is devoted to tables, in which the different cycles of civic and solar time, the succession of rulers, and the main events of ancient Greek and Roman history, are all established in the context of absolute historical chronology.

With 8 figures and 11 tables £12.00

Mistra

Byzantine Capital of the Peloponnese

STEVEN RUNCIMAN

'a masterpiece of compressed learning . . . supported by excellent maps and superb illustrations' – The Observer

'With the eloquence, learning, and love of his subject that we have come to expect from him, Sir Steven demonstrates how Mistra is one of the tangled main roots to our golden past' – The Times

Sir Steven Runciman's latest book succinctly describes the history and topography of Mistra, relating it to the wider history of eastern and western Europe and bringing to life the personalities who have dominated the Peloponnesian capital throughout the centuries of its existence.

CONSOLIDATED INDEX TO THE JOURNAL OF HELLENIC STUDIES VOLUMES LXI–XC (1941–70)

compiled by J. O. Burt

This consolidated index covers both the Journal and Archaeological Reports (published separately from 1955). It adopts the pattern of the previous consolidated indices with one important improvement, the provision of full tables of contents of the volumes covered. These are followed by an index of authors of articles and reviews; a general index of subjects; an index of passages from Greek and Latin authors; an index of Greek words; an epigraphic index, and an index of books reviewed. These indices are based directly on the Journals and are in no way dependent on the annual indices to which they offer a valuable supplement.

Price £6.00 (£6.50 by post)
