

ART OF THE HOUMA FOUNDRY

Shanxi Provincial Institute of Archaeology

Art of the Houma Foundry is an illustrated repertory of archaeological finds made at the site of a sixth- to fifth-century B.C. bronze foundry located at modern Houma in Shanxi Province, P.R.C. The excavation of the foundry site, the largest known in the ancient world, was important above all for the spectacular wealth of decorated clay foundry debris that was recovered there.

This book presents 1,200 of the most notable pieces of decorated foundry debris in photographs and drawings. Though unearthed more than thirty years ago, most of this material has never been published. Art of the Houma Foundry makes available an archive of unparalleled richness for one of the major art styles of ancient China.

More than 1,300 halftones and illustrations.

*New Sources of Early Chinese History:
An Introduction to the Reading of Inscriptions and Manuscripts*

EDITED BY EDWARD L. SHAUGHNESSY

This volume surveys the wealth of early Chinese paleographic material from Shang to Han, including oracle-bone inscriptions, bronze inscriptions, covenant texts, and manuscripts on bamboo, wood, and silk. The eight chapters, written by recognized authorities in their respective fields, address the new interpretations of early Chinese history that arise from research on inscriptions and manuscripts while also discussing paleographic research methods. Scholars of early China who are already familiar with the paleographic sources will find this volume to be a timely summation of the state of the field and a valuable guide to new directions in research; for those scholars who are new to the use of inscriptions and manuscripts, it will serve as a basic introduction. New Sources of Early Chinese History, which is over 300 pages, includes an introduction by Edward L. Shaughnessy, a bibliography with suggestions for further reading, and an index. The main chapters and contributors are:

1. Shang Oracle-Bone Inscriptions • DAVID N. KEIGHTLEY

BIRDTRACK PRESS specializes in setting the type for sinological publications that integrate printed Chinese with alphabetic text: we produce camera-ready copy at an affordable price. We routinely set the unusual characters sinologists require, including custom logographs for variant or archaic forms. We offer a large selection of alphabetic typefaces, and can create special diacritics or phonetic symbols to match. We know how to meet publishers' page specifications, and are happy to discuss technical issues with design and production staff. We also work directly with authors, and have the expertise and experience in sinological computing and typography to ensure professional results.
