HEDLEY BULL MEMORIAL APPEAL

Hedley Bull, Montague Burton Professor of International Relations at Oxford, died on May 18 1985. An appeal to commemorate his life and work has been launched. It seeks support for the following projects at Oxford University:

- * The establishment of one or more Hedley Bull Research Fellowships in International Relations. These will enable young scholars of outstanding distinction from anywhere in the world to engage in research and teaching.
- * The substantial improvement of library facilities in International Relations.
- * The establishment of a grant fund for graduate students in International Relations.

The appeal is administered by:

Mary Bull
Raymond Carr, Warden of St. Antony's College
Michael Howard, Regius Professor of Modern History, Oriel College
Anthony Kenny, Master of Balliol College
Robert O'Neill, Director, International Institute for Strategic Studies, London
Adam Roberts, Alastair Buchan Reader in International Relations, St. Antony's College

All enquiries and contributions should be addressed to:

Political Geography Quarterly

Editor: Peter J. Taylor
Associate Editor: John O'Loughlin
Review Editor: Andrew Kirby

The January 1986 issue of Political Geography Quarterly is a special issue concerned with 'The New Political Geography of the Sea' and is the proceedings of a panel discussion held at the annual meeting of the Association of American Geographers in Denver, Colorado on 26 April 1983. The issue is supplemented by three invited articles.

Martin Ira Glassner writes on the spatial and territorial elements of the Law of the Sea (including such larger issues as the links between the Law of the Sea and Antarctica, and the military uses of the sea).

Ved P. Nanda writes on the exclusive economic zone and the 1982 UN Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS III), with special reference to the US failure to sign the Treaty.

Bernhard J. Abrahamson writes on The Law of the Sea Convention and its implications for shipping.

Lewis M. Alexander writes on some geographical aspects of maritime boundaries.

Hungdah Chiu, a representative of the International Law Association at UNCLOS III, provides an analysis of the disputes between some of the countries in the Western Pacific as a result of the adoption of UNCLOS III.

Alexander Melamid writes on the division of narrow seas, with particular attention to the Torres Strait boundary between Australia and Papua New Guinea and its special provisions.

Michael A. Morris writes on the conflicts in maritime geopolitics in Latin America.

Thomas A. Clingan writes on US-Mexican maritime relations in the aftermath of UNCLOS III.

Robert E. Bowen writes on the land-locked and geographically disadvantaged states and UNCLOS III.

Political Geography Quarterly is published in January, April, July and October by Butterworth Scientific Ltd., P.O. Box 63, Westbury House, Bury Street, Guildford, Surrey, GU2 5BH, UK.
