

January
1988

Special feature

Bernard Lott on Language and Literature

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

Cambridge University Press

language teaching

The international abstracting journal for language teachers and applied linguists

(formerly Language Teaching and Linguistics: Abstracts)

Editorial Board

Valerie Kinsella
Michael Hammond
Rob Hirons

Compiler and Editor
Research Information Officer, CILT
English Language and Literature Division,
The British Council
Mrs Valerie Kinsella, 63 Long Ashton Road,
Long Ashton, Bristol BS18 9HW

Editorial correspondence:

Produced jointly by

The Centre for Information on
Language Teaching & Research (CILT)
Regent's College
Inner Circle
Regent's Park
London NW1 4NS
01-486 8221
Library open 10.00–17.00, Mon–Fri

The British Council
English Language Services Department
10 Spring Gardens
London SW1A 2BN
01-930 8466
(Visits to the English Teaching Information Centre by appointment only)

© Cambridge University Press 1988

Aims and features language teaching is a compact digest of current thinking on the theoretical and practical aspects of learning and teaching languages. It aims to help people concerned with the subject to keep up to date with the latest findings with minimum expenditure of time and money. It aims to encourage cross-fertilisation of ideas between those concerned with the teaching of different foreign languages (e.g. French, German, English) as well as between practising teachers, applied linguists and educational researchers.

In addition to over 130 abstracts in English in each issue, there is a specially commissioned state-of-the-art survey article on an important aspect of language learning or teaching, which features a full bibliography.

There are also brief annotations of recent publications, together with a list of books received, information on where to find substantial bibliographies on particular topics, and details of research projects in various countries.