Just War or Just Peace? Humanitarian Intervention and International Law

Simon Chesterman

This book asks whether states have the right to intervene in foreign civil conflicts for humanitarian reasons. The UN Charter prohibits state aggression, but many argue that such a right exists as an exception to this rule. Offering a thorough analysis of this issue, the book puts NATO's action in Kosovo in its proper legal perspective.

Peace Agreements and Human Rights

Christine Bell

This book examines the place of human rights in peace agreements against the backdrop of international legal provision. The introductory analysis draws on a review of many peace agreements, while the body of the book focuses on the peace agreements in four cases: South Africa, Israel/Palestine, Northern Ireland, and Bosnia.

Consumer Protection and the Criminal Law

Law and Policy in the United Kingdom

Peter Cartwright

To what extent should criminal law be used to protect the consumer? Peter Cartwright evaluates the role of criminal law sanctions in consumer protection from an economic and social perspective. In this important new study the author examines the rationales for protecting consumers, and considers the role that legal techniques play in fulfilling these. This study will be of interest to academics, undergraduate and post-graduate students as well as lawyers.

Authority, Continuity and Change in Islamic Law

Wael B. Hallaq

In this path-breaking new book, the author shows how authority guaranteed both continuity and change in Islamic law. Hallaq demonstrates that it was the construction of the absolutist authority of the school founder, an image which he suggests was actually developed later in history, that maintained the foundations of school methodology and hermeneutics. The author concludes that the mechanisms of change were embedded in the very structure of Islamic law, despite its essentially conservative nature.

Rebellion and Violence in Islamic Law

Khaled Abou El Fadl

Khaled Abou El Fadl's book represents the first systematic examination of the idea and treatment of political resistance and rebellion in Islamic law. Pre-modern jurists produced an extensive and sophisticated discourse on the legality of rebellion and the treatment due to rebels under Islamic law. The book examines the emergence and development of these discourses from the eighth to the fifteenth centuries, and considers juristic responses to the various terror-inducing strategies employed by rebels—including assassination, stealth attacks and rape.

World Court Decisions at the Turn of the Millennium

by Peter H.F. Bekker

This book provides a full overview of the judicial activity of the International Court of Justice (ICJ) during the five-year period 1997 – 2001, following the format of a previous volume describing the decisions from 1987 – 1996. Each chapter opens with a summary of the judicial activity of the ICJ during a given year, using the General List of ICJ cases, pleadings filed, Orders, Judgements and Advisory Opinions issued and hearings held at the Peace Palace to describe the statistics on the docket of the ICJ. The sections in each chapter describe the facts, the arguments of the parties and the decision of the ICJ, together with the commentary of the author, a former ICJ staff lawyer. Additional information on the work of the ICJ during the period covered is offered in an introductory chapter and the annexes found at the end of this book, including the composition of the ICJ (Judges and Judges ad hoc), the regional distribution of States parties to cases and a list of the most important ICJ literature. The book includes a limited number of reprints from the American Journal of International Law, together with much new material, including the author's perceptive and comprehensive introduction.

The Hague Peace Conferences of 1899 and 1907 in International Arbitration Reports and Documents

compiled and edited by Shabtai Rosenne

This volume is presented to the English-speaking world in commemoration of the centenary of the establishment of the Permanent Court of Arbitration (PCA) at the First Hague Peace Conference of 1899 and its continuation at the Second Hague Peace Conference of 1907. The International Bureau of the Permanent Court of Arbitration marks the centenary of the First Conference by making available in English the reports of the competent Commissions of each Conference dealing with the peaceful settlement of international disputes and the Permanent Court of Arbitration, together with the proposal of the Second Conference for a permanent court of arbitral justice. These reports contain a full account of the considerations that prevailed in the negotiation of every provision of each Convention and serve also as authoritative commentaries on each Convention. This important book will facilitate access to the drafting history of the 1899 and 1907 Hague Peace Conventions and as such will be of interest to practitioners, historians and scholars of international law.

Juricultural Pluralism Vis-à-vis Treaty Law

STATE PRACTICE AND ATTITUDES

by Sandra L. Bunn-Livingstone

The way in which 'legal' culture has been defined in the past has limited comparative processes to law itself. The author proposes a new term, 'juriculture', defined as 'the axiological and behavioural formula which pertains to the law.' This is a comparative tool which focuses on ontological and epistemological bases of law and concomitant legal theories which are distilled from these philosophical bases, in addition to primary and secondary rules, and written laws. An empirical analysis of cases in the Iran-U.S. Claims Tribunal and six human rights treaties demonstrates that beyond weak juricultural pluralism, which the international legal system provides for, there is also a strong juricultural pluralism which is not envisaged by the system. This highlights the tension between universality and diversity in both primary and secondary rules, and international law itself.

'It is very much to Dr. Bunn-Livingstone's credit that she has both seen this crucial problem of modern international treaty law and has set about studying it and dissecting its implications for practice, and the ways in which a degree of legal pluralism in both its weak and strong forms are present in the current international legal system. It is not a task which many international lawyers have shown much appetite to tackle. But that renders this contribution to our knowledge the more important.'

Helsinki Monitor Quarterly on Security and Cooperations in Europe

Editor-in-Chief: Arie Bloed

Executive Editor: Monica van de Ven

AIMS & SCOPE

Four times a year, Helsinki Monitor reports on developments in and related to the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE). It covers new and ongoing measures taken in the context of the Helsinki process, including preventive diplomacy, arms control, human rights, confidence-building, security, democracy building, election monitoring, economic security, and environmental matters. With its thorough analysis and background information, Helsinki Monitor has become a primary source of reference on the OSCE process. In addition to a complete overview of the most important recent developments and a regular chronicle of OSCE activities, the Monitor presents the following: articles on the work and field of operation of the OSCE and on relevant topical issues; a selection of recent OSCE documents; short reviews of current books and reports; and in-depth reviews of books and other publications by guest authors. 'Theme' issues appear from time to time; the most recent of these (in 2000) considered 'Russia and Human Rights'. Other topics that were covered in recent issues included the OSCE in Central Asia, the protection of minorities in Kosovo, and democratisation in Bosnia and Herzegovina. As of 2001, the Monitor will be published by Kluwer Law International, in cooperation with the Netherlands

Helsinki Committee (NHC) and the International Helsinki Federation for Human Rights (IHF), which continue to be responsible for its contents. Helsinki Monitor continues, as always since its inception in 1990, to be of particular value to international governmental and non-governmental organisations, policy makers, politicians, researchers, journalists, libraries, human rights organisations and others interested in national and international security.

MELLAND SCHILL STUDIES IN INTERNATIONAL LAW

THE CONTEMPORARY LAW OF ARMED CONFLICT -2ND EDITION

US $90. 400 Pages. 1 Hardcover Volume. Available in Softcover $52. Table of Cases. Table of Treaties. Index. ISBN 1-929446-03-9

Author: Professor Leslie Green is well known to fellow specialists in the field, and to international lawyers generally, through his numerous publications.

About the Book: The present work is the culmination of many years of study, writing and practical experience of this body of law. It is recognized as a classic and authoritative work.

Professor Green has based his text on the Manual of Armed Conflict Law that he prepared for the Canadian Department of National Defence.

This comprehensive work should prove invaluable to national defence departments around the world, as well as to serving officers and practising lawyers who have to deal with any aspect of the legality of war, war crimes, civilians, and United Nations operations. It should also be useful for international law teachers and their students.

THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF NEUTRALS

US $90. 250 Pages. 1 Hardcover Volume. Table of Cases. Index. ISBN 1-929446-06-3

Author: Stephen C. Neff is Senior Lecturer in Public International Law at the University of Edinburgh.

About the Book: The Rights and Duties of Neutrals is the first English-language book to survey the history of the law of neutrality from its medieval roots to the present day. This book traces the evolution of state practice, together with the debates over the relevant doctrinal issues and the various attempts to reform and codify the law of neutrality.

"Neutrals is a welcome addition to the literature on a topic which has been underestimated in importance, and thus rather neglected. This volume is the first English-language survey of the history of the law of neutrality, beginning with its medieval roots. It nicely organizes and presents the critical mass regarding the rights of neutrals vis-à-vis belligerents, and the devices employed to restrict neutrals from trading with the enemies of various belligerents. This work also analyzes attempts to both reform and to codify the Law of Neutrality. This work is highly recommended for inclusion in any public or private collection focusing on the use of force or generally dealing with International Law. It makes a complex subject readable. It is also chock full of both historical and contemporary references for further research."

THE BOUNDARIES OF INTERNATIONAL LAW: A FEMINIST ANALYSIS

US $90. 400 Pages. 1 Hardcover Volume. Available in Softcover $52. Table of Cases. Table of Treaties. Index. ISBN 1-929446-07-1

Authors: Hilary Charlesworth, Director, Centre for International and Public Law, Australian National University. Christine Chinkin, Professor of International Law, London School of Economics and Political Science.

"The Boundaries of International Law, a long-overdue synthesis of a vast amount of scholarship, remains necessary for both practical and academic reasons. ... The Boundaries of International Law is a formidable demonstration of our field's inequities with respect to half of the world's population."

New Titles from Transnational Publishers

HANDBOOK ON WTO TRADE REMEDY DISPUTES: The First Six Years (1995 - 2000)

Terence P. Stewart and Amy S. Dwyer

This unique HANDBOOK studies the important area of WTO trade remedy disputes. Since the WTO Agreement entered into force in 1995, over a third of all requests for consultations filed with the WTO have concerned a trade remedy dispute. The book summarizes over 40 decisions issued by WTO panels and the Appellate Body in trade remedy disputes during the first six years of the WTO Agreement.

PRIVATIZING PEACE: From Conflict to Security

Allan Gerson and Nat J. Colletta

Poverty and war continue to scar the planet in ways that frustrate the efforts of the international community to curtail them. It is clear that innovation and a commitment to utilize all resources need be a central hallmark of the strategy not only to win the war but also to win the peace. To ensure responsible coordination and implementation of peacebuilding measures, the authors propose a new institutional structure: a Peace Transitions Council whose members—drawn from the UN, the World Bank, national governments, NGOs, civil society, and the private sector—would bring special relevant expertise to the development and management of peacebuilding programs.

HUMAN RIGHTS PROTECTION FOR REFUGEES, ASYLUM-SEEKERS, AND INTERNALLY DISPLACED PERSONS: A Guide to International Mechanisms and Procedures

Edited by Joan F. Fitzpatrick

This volume provides a detailed and concrete analysis of how human rights complaints mechanisms can be accessed by refugees, asylum-seekers, and internally displaced persons. The Guide offers a thorough explanation of the UN human rights treaty bodies, with a focus upon the four committees authorized to receive communications from individuals. Detailed information is provided concerning procedural requirements, while the treaties are analyzed for their relevance to the forcibly displaced. United Nations mechanisms are also examined, with an emphasis on the thematic and country special procedures of the Commission on Human Rights.
