
The 1972 Annual Meeting

The 1972 Annual Meeting of the American Political Science Association was held at the Washington Hilton Hotel, Washington, D.C., from September 5-9. Dwaine Marvick of the University of California, Los Angeles, served as Program Chairman. Official registration was 3,262 with 682 participants in panel sessions. Many Association committees also met and held open sessions to inform the membership of their efforts and invite suggestions for future activities.

Other important aspects of the 1972 Annual Meeting included the Annual Business Meeting, the Awards Ceremony and the Presidential Address.

The Annual Business Meeting

The 1972 Annual Business Meeting was held on Wednesday, September 5, at 4:00 p.m. The Vice President of the Association, Clara Penniman, presided; the American Arbitration Association assisted with the administration of the session. Items on the agenda included an amendment to the Constitution, three resolutions, and nomination of officers and their certification by the Election Committee.

Robert E. Ward
Univ. of Michigan, Association President 1972-73

The Constitutional Amendment on an Association Trust and Development fund will be submitted for a mail ballot vote of the membership based on the action of the Business Meeting. One resolution calling on the Association to support the Equal Rights Amendment to the United States Constitution and to convey this support to states still considering the amendment received the support of over two thirds of those present and voting and was adopted. Two other resolutions, one on student participation in Association affairs and one on reestablishing a separate committee on academic freedom will be submitted to the membership for a mail ballot vote.

The final action of the Business Meeting was the nomination of candidates for Association officers and Council and their certification by the Chairman of the Elections Committee. The results of the balloting on the Constitutional amendment, the two resolutions and on the election of officers and Council members as well as the official minutes of the Business Meeting will be published in future issues of PS.

Awards

Seven awards recognizing outstanding publications and dissertations were presented at Annual Meeting awards ceremony. This included the first presentation of the E. E. Schattschneider Award established in the last year in honor of the late Professor E. E. Schattschneider.

The 1972 Awards and winners were:

Woodrow Wilson Foundation Book Award

David E. Apter of Yale University received the 1972 Woodrow Wilson Foundation Book Award of $1,000 and a medal for the best book published in the United States in 1971 in government, politics, or international affairs. The award winning book, Choice and the Politics of Allocation, was published by the Yale University Press. Gwendolen M. Carter, the Chairman of the Selection Committee, in her citation said, "We were looking for a work that combined theoretical sophistication with a sound basis of research. Among a number of books that met these criteria, we looked further for one that seemed to us to break new ground, that dealt with insights drawn from the experience and needs of developing as well as developed states, that was profound without being pretentious, and that stimulated our imagination by opening up new avenues of thought for further exploration. The book we have chosen is one of the slimmer volumes we read but it is packed with ideas, carefully and systematically presented and in a form which, happily is the clearest, at least to me, of all of this author's works." The Committee which selected the winner was composed of Gwendolen M. Carter, Northwestern University, Chairman; Manning J. Dauer, University of Florida, and John E. Turner, University of Minnesota.

Gladys M. Kammerer Award

The Gladys M. Kammerer Award for the best political science publication in the field of United States national policy was awarded to Alice M. Rivlin of the Brookings Institution for her book, Systematic Thinking for Social Action, published by the Brookings Institution. In presenting the award of $500.00 to Rivlin, Stephen K. Bailey, the Chairman of the Selection Committee stated:

"Her volume is an honest appraisal of attempts in the 1960's to make the national policy process more rational and more responsible. She deals precisely and perceptively with the uses and abuses of quantification in accountability designs.

"Because she is learned, Dr. Rivlin writes logically. Because she is experienced in government, she writes with authority. Because she is disciplined, she writes with clarity and force.

"Her work has meaning and significance for all those who wrestle with questions of the effective implementation of governmental programs. It is a major contribution to the literature of Political Science. It sets high standards for improving the national policy process."

Members of the Selection Committee were Stephen K. Bailey, Syracuse University, Chairman; Robert Eyestone, University of Minnesota; and Francine F. Rabinovitz, University of California, Los Angeles.

E. E. Schattschneider Award

The first E. E. Schattschneider Award for the best dissertation completed and accepted in the general field of American Government and Politics in 1971 was presented to Paul M. Sniderman of Stanford University. His dissertation, "Personality and Democratic Politics: Correlates of Self-Esteem," was submitted by the Department of Political Science, University of California, Berkeley. Reading from his citation of the award, Austin Ranney, the Chairman of the Selection Committee, noted that Sniderman's work "is grounded in a thorough and judicious understanding of the current state of theory and research on the problem. Its hypotheses are carefully formulated and tested by methods that are both rigorous and appropriate, some of the author's own creation. The findings are discussed in lucid and accurate English prose. The author's use of data previously collected by his advisor, Professor Herbert McClosky, shows how much can be done with secondary analysis. And his conclusions about the conditions under which various degrees of self-esteem are developed and associated with various degrees of commitment to democratic values makes a major contribution to our understanding of the relationship among personality, belief and behavior."

Members of the Selection Committee were Austin Ranney, University of Wisconsin, Madison, Chairman; Barbara Hinckley, University of Wisconsin, Madison; and H. Douglas Price, Harvard University.

The Pi Sigma Alpha Award

The Pi Sigma Alpha Award, for the best paper presented at the 1971 Annual Meeting, went to Alexander George of Stanford University for his paper, "Multiple Advocacy in Making Foreign Policy." Of his paper, Avery Leiserson, the Chairman of the Committee said:

"Professor George set for himself the theoretical problem of the conflict between the classical model of a centralized, hierarchical system of coordination in complex organizations and the loosely-coordinated, pluralistic variety resting upon a system of bargaining among semi-autonomous centers of bureaucratic responsibility. While he takes a clear position as to which side of the dispute he prefers, one of the strongest aspects of his analysis is the emphasis he places on the difficulties of his proposals for designing and managing the foreign policy decision-making process. His elaboration of the conditions under which the Chief Executive may go wrong in foreign policy-making, indeed, renders the paper almost a monograph on the subject."

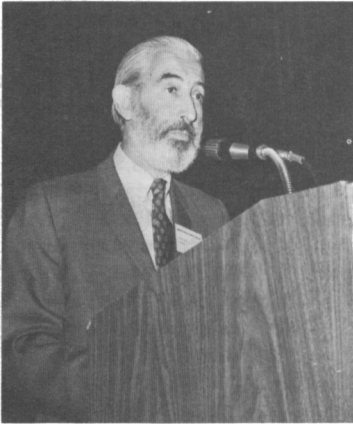

Members of the Selection Committee were Avery Leiserson, Vanderbilt University, Chairman; Harvey Mansfield, Jr., Harvard University; and Suzanne H. Rudolph, University of Chicago.

Edward S. Corwin Award

The Edward S. Corwin Award for the best dissertation in 1971 in public law, broadly defined went to Walter G. Markham of the University of Hartford for his dissertation "Draft Offenders in the Federal Courts: A Search for the Social Correlates of

1972 ANNUAL MEETING

The Presidential Address

Heinz Eulau, Stanford University.

The Presidency

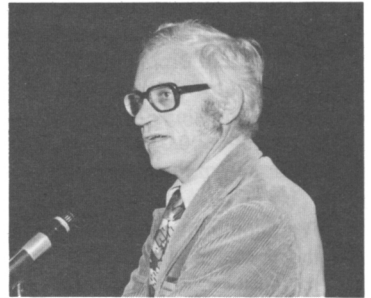

L to R: William R. Keech, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; Aaron Wildavsky, University of California, Berkeley; Edward J. Pfeiffer, Claremont Graduate School, and John Kessel, Ohio State University.

Problems of Evaluating a Theory in Different Social Systems

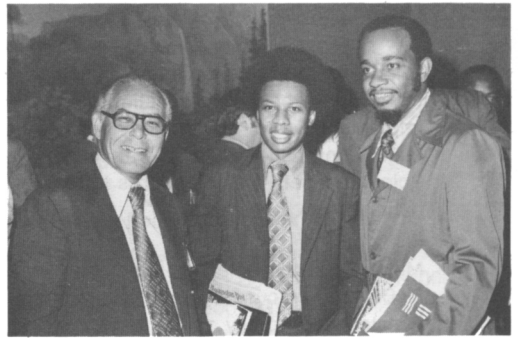

L to R: Adam Przeworski, Washington University (St. Louis); Philip E. Converse, University of Michigan; and W. Phillips Shively, University of Minnesota.

Donald R. Matthews
Brookings Institution and APSA Treasurer
speaking at the Business Meeting.

The National Capital Area Political Science Association Dutch Treat Cocktail Party

L to R: Robert E. Martin, Howard University; James Womack, Office of Rep. Richardson Preyer; and Maurice C. Woodard, Howard University.

The Quality of Political Life in America Today: The Performance of Intellectuals

L to R: Theodore Lowi, Cornell University and S. Martin Lipset, Harvard University.

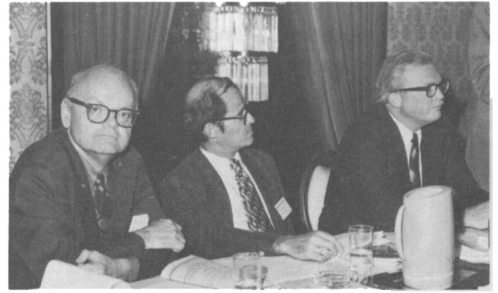

The APSA Child Care Service at the 1972 Annual Meeting.

Clara Penniman, University of Wisconsin, Madison, and APSA Vice President presiding at the Annual Business Meeting.

The Political Scientist and His Consultative Roles

L to R: Lewis Anthony Dexter, University of Maryland, Baltimore; Gilbert Steiner, The Brookings Institution; and David Adamany, University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Access to Public Documents:
The Present Situation
and Future Prospects

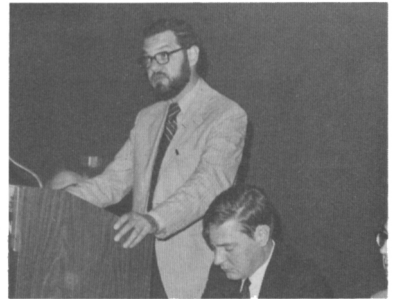

James MacGregor Burns, Williams College.

Robert E. Ward, University of Michigan and then President Elect and now President, APSA, at the Annual Business Meeting.

Book Reviewing and Professional Journals

L to R: Philip Siegelman, California State University at San Francisco; and George Carey, Georgetown University.

Deil S. Wright, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, presiding at the APSA Task Force on Placement.

Open Session of the Committee on the Status of Women in the Profession

L to R: Betty Zisk, Boston University; Ruth Weintraub, CUNY, Hunter; Ada Finifter, Michigan State University; and Ruth Silva, Pennsylvania State University.

Former APSA Congressional Fellows Reception

L to R: Ralph K. Huitt, National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges; John F. Manley, Stanford University and John F. Bibby, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

Malcolm Jewell, University of Kentucky, and Chairman, Committee on Departmental Chairmen, presiding at open session for department chairmen.

1972 Annual Meeting

The Quality of Political Life in America Today: Emergence and Selection of Presidential Candidates

Presentation of Awards Ceremony

L to R: Dwaine Marvick, University of California, Los Angeles, and Program Chairman, 1972 Annual Meeting and Gwendolyn Carter, Northwestern University, and Chairman, Woodrow Wilson Book Award Committee.

L to R: Austin Ranney, University of Wisconsin, Madison, and David Truman, Mount Holyoke College.

Presentation of Awards Ceremony and Presidential Address

Currin Shields, University of Arizona, and Chairman, Ad Hoc Committee on Regional and State Political Science Associations.

L to R: Harold D. Lasswell, CUNY, John Jay College, who introduced President Eulau; Walter G. Markham, University of Hartford, winner 1972 Edward S. Corwin Award; and Harold Chase, University of Minnesota.

Presentation of Awards Ceremony and Presidential Address

L to R: Heinz Eulau, Stanford University and APSA President; David Apter, Yale University and winner 1972 Woodrow Wilson Book Award and Alexander George, Stanford University, winner 1972 Pi Sigma Alpha Award.

Samuel Krislov, University of Minnesota and Chairman, APSA Rules Committee.

APSA Council Meeting

L to R: Nelson W. Polsby, University of California, Berkeley; Richard F. Fenno, Jr., University of Rochester; and Samuel D. Cook, Duke University.

National-Local Interface

Evron M. Kirkpatrick, APSA Executive Director speaking at the Annual Business Meeting.

L to R: Douglas G. Montgomery, Case Western Reserve University; Daniel Elazar, Temple University; and William L. Furlong, Utah State University.

The National Capital Area Political Science Association Reception

Leadership Theory and Political Science

L to R: Carl Beck, University of Pittsburgh, and Wayne Reilly, Hollins College.

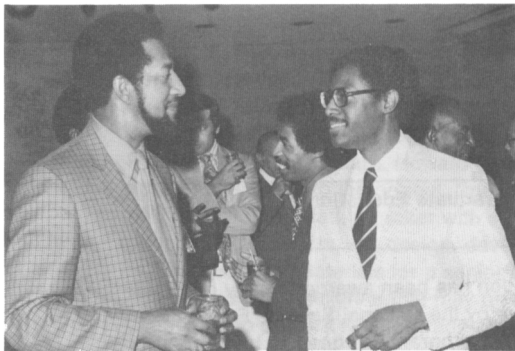

L to R: Valerie Earle, Georgetown University; Richard L. Smolka, American University; and Earl H. DeLong, American University, Emeritus.

Comparative Voting Behavior

Donald Stokes, University of Michigan.

Howard University Reception

L to R: Jesse McCCorey, University of California, Berkeley and Ronald Walters, Howard University.

Justices." It was submitted by the Department of Political Science, University of Pennsylvania. Members of the Selection Committee were Samuel Krislov, University of Minnesota, Chairman; Lucius J. Barker, Washington University, St. Louis; and William K. Muir, University of California, Berkeley.

The Helen Dwight Reid Award

The Helen Dwight Reid Award for the best dissertation in the field of international relations, law and politics in 1971 went to Stuart A. Bremer of the University of Michigan for his dissertation, "National and International Systems: A Computer Analysis." It was submitted by the Department of Political Science, Michigan State University. Members of the Selection Committee were Dina A. Zinnes, Indiana University, Chairman; Phillip M. Burgess, Ohio State University; and Andrew M. Scott, University of North Carolina.

Leonard D. White Award

The Leonard D. White Award for the best dissertation in the general field of public administration, broadly defined was shared between Erza N. Suleiman, CUNY, John Jay College, for "Administration, Politics and the Higher Civil Service in France" and Jessica Wolf, Middlesex Area Mental Health Council, Inc. and University of New Haven for "Toward a Model of Interorganizational Behavior: Two Case Studies in France." Dr. Suleimans' dissertation was submitted by the Department of Political Science, Columbia University, and Dr. Wolf's dissertation was submitted by the Department of Political Science, Yale University. Members of the Selection Committee were Lloyd D. Musolf, University of California, Davis, Chairman; Chester B. Earle, American University; and Orion F. White, Jr., Syracuse University.

Presidential Address

President Heinz Eulau of Stanford University presented his Presidential Address, "Skill Revolution and Consultative Commonwealth" at the Annual Meeting. It will be published in the REVIEW.

APSA Undergraduate Education Improvement Program

The Association has been awarded nearly one-half million dollars by the National Science Foundation for a three-year program designed to bring about improvements in the undergraduate teaching of political science. A committee consisting of Vernon Van Dyke, Chairman, University of Iowa; Vincent Browne, Howard University; Martin

Diamond, Northern Illinois University; Heinz Eulau, Stanford University; Betty Nesvold, San Diego State University; Jack Peltason, University of Illinois, Urbana; Ithiel Pool, M.I.T.; James Robinson, MacCalester College, and Stanley Rothman, Smith College, has been appointed to guide this Association project. The proposal listed as primary objectives the stimulation of interest, the generation of materials, and the dissemination of information helpful in upgrading political science instruction in a variety of institutional settings. More specifically, the Committee expects to give high priority to the introductory course(s), field experiences, and the application of educational technology to political science teaching.

Reports of the progress of the project and requests for assistance will be contained in the pages of PS.

1973 APSA Biographical Directory

The sixth edition of the APSA BIOGRAPHICAL DIRECTORY will be published in December and copies may be ordered now for January 1973 delivery. The new DIRECTORY will include complete, up-to-date names and addresses of approximately 12,500 individual APSA members as well as biographical information on over 7,000 political scientists. The DIRECTORY will contain appendices classifying members by geographical location and fields of interest.

Prices for the sixth edition of the APSA Directory are: APSA members, hardback $10.00, paperback $7.50; non-members, hardback $15.00, paperback $12.50. An order form for the DIRECTORY is on page 576 of this issue.

Annual Meeting Visiting Foreign National Travel Grant Programs

Under two programs, one sponsored by the Asia Foundation and one by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs of the U. S. Department of State, forty visiting foreign scholars and advanced graduate students in the field of political science from twenty-six nations were provided travel grants to attend the 1972 Annual Meeting. The individuals and the nations represented are:

ASIA FOUNDATION TRAVEL GRANTEES

Republic of China
Shane Rong Lee	East Texas State University
Japan
Hideo Otake	University of Chicago