

Colonial Rule in Africa Readings from Primary Sources

Edited, with an introduction by, Bruce Fetter

Colonial Rule in Africa presents the conquest, colonization, and struggle for independence of the continent through the eyes of the principal actors: administrators, missionaries, and the colonized peoples themselves. This is the first anthology that covers the whole continent over the entire course of colonization. As such, it will find a welcome place not only in the classroom, but in the hands of the general reader in search of a deeper understanding of African colonization.

Within the chapters are the seventy-nine quotations from primary sources that constitute the heart of the book. The author has provided an introduction to each quotation and a small outline map of Africa showing the part of the continent referred to. The introductions consist of brief biographies of the authors or, in the case of legal texts, a brief history of the document under consideration.

The French Slave Trade in the Eighteenth Century An Old Regime Business

Robert Louis Stein

Stein has written the first book in English to explore all aspects of the French slave trade, a volume that will be of interest and value both to students and scholars of eighteenth-century French history and to those concerned with this key aspect of the slave trade from any viewpoint.

The French slave trade, although highly significant, has never received the attention given to the British trade. Stein's pioneering work, combining synthesis and a great amount of original research—particularly into French provincial archives—will thus be of special interest to students of African history as well as to those of old regime French history.

In preparation since 1965, this eight-volume project will encompass the history of ideas, civilizations, societies, and institutions on the continent of Africa. Contributions from European scholars add a multiplicity of perspectives that no other work provides.

The remaining six volumes will include III: Africa from the VIIth to the XIth Century; IV: African from the XIIth to the XVIth Century; V: Africa from the XVth to the XVIIIth Century; VI: The XIXth Century until 1880; VII: Africa Under Foreign Domination, 1880-1935; and VIII: Africa Since the Ethiopian War, 1935-1975.

DISEASE IN AFRICAN HISTORY

An Introductory Survey and Case Studies

Edited by Gerald W. Hartwig and K. David Patterson

"Disease in African History represents a new departure for historians of Africa. There is really nothing quite like this book in the literature anywhere. This is not simply a collection of good articles, each making an original contribution to the common subject. It is a major breakthrough into a kind of history that has been very much neglected in the study of Africa."

Philip D. Curtin, The Johns Hopkins University

Papers by Gerald W. Hartwig, K. David Patterson, Charles M. Good, Mario Joaquim Azevedo, Mark W. DeLancey, and James W. Brown introduce Africanists to the fundamental role of disease in the continent of Africa and illustrate the potential significance these questions have to most research on Africa.

ECONOMIC IMPERIALISM IN THEORY AND PRACTICE

The Case of South African Gold Mining
Finance, 1886 – 1914      Robert V. Kubicek

Kubicek has written "a volume which not only exposes the inadequacy of the hagiographic, popular literature on the South African mines but is equally destructive of the so-called 'neo-Marxist' interpretations of the period. Kubicek has written an original work, one based on painstaking analysis of an impressive range of evidence collected from widely scattered and inaccessible sources."      A.H. Jeeves, Queen's University at Kingston, Canada

African Businessmen and Development in Zambia

ANDREW A. BEVERIDGE and
ANTHONY R. OBERSCHALL

"Surely one of the best studies of its kind. This work will help to combat the effects of ethnocentrism and dogmatic generalization in development studies."

—Richard L. Sklar, U.C.L.A.

Seeking to reduce foreign control, many African states have created unprecedented business opportunities for black Africans. Beveridge and Oberschall examine these new entrepreneurs in the rapidly growing business sector of Zambia and link this growth to the country's social structure and economic status. $22.50

The Rulers of Belgian Africa, 1884-1914

LEWIS H. GANN and PETER J. DUIGNAN

In this comprehensive picture of Belgian colonialism in the Congo, Gann and Duignan trace the formation of the colonial state that became Zaïre, considering it in the light of colonial experience in other African territories. Whereas most studies have focused on the conquest and subjugation of the African population, this study probes the colonial apparatus itself, investigating the attitudes and behavior of the civil servants and soldiers who built the empire. Written under the auspices of the Hoover Institution, Stanford University. $17.50
