Chan-Kuo Ts'ue

Translated by

J. I. Crump

This is the largest collection of pre-Han (c.300–221 B.C.) historical anecdotes, fables, and tales of great men. The Chinese have looked upon it for centuries as unreliable history and have condemned it for its offences against 'proper morality', but they have always admired its prose style and used it for a model. 1 map. £10

The Poetry of T'ao Ch'ien

Translated with commentary and annotation by

James Robert Hightower

T'ao Ch'ien (or T'ao Yuan-ming), a philosophical poet of the early fifth century, was one of China's most highly esteemed writers, a man of principle whose experience of officialdom led him to retire early to a life of hardship as a farmer rather than compromise his ideals. His poetry reflects the pleasures and trials of country living; this translation includes all his surviving work, with background information for the Western reader. 80/- Oxford Library of East Asian Literatures

While China Faced West

American Reformers in Nationalist China 1928–1937

James C. Thomson Jr.

During the period covered by this book, the Nanking decade, the Chinese Nationalist government strove to build a new China with Western assistance. Mr Thomson describes how American missionaries and foundation representatives participated in the Nationalist attempt to transform rural society. 75/- Harvard University Press

A Study of Chinese Communes 1965

Shahid Javed Burki

Communes have been the basic units of economic and political organization in rural China since 1958. The author of this book, who in 1965 was allowed to study the communes, spent six weeks visiting them, holding discussions with their officials, and collecting data on their agricultural production. 34/- Harvard University Press

Manuscripts

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts on all aspects of contemporary China and from all points of view, including those which deal with Taiwan and Overseas Chinese. Articles on China prior to 1949 are also welcome, particularly, but not exclusively, when these relate directly to contemporary China or to the history of the Chinese Communist Party. Articles should be submitted, together with a duplicate copy, to the editorial office. They should be typed in double spacing and, preferably, conform to the styling of The China Quarterly.

The China Quarterly is published by the Contemporary China Institute of the School of Oriental and African Studies, London University, with the support of the International Association for Cultural Freedom. The views expressed in articles are those of individual authors and do not necessarily represent the views of the Contemporary China Institute.

Modern China Studies International Bulletin

a bi-annual Bulletin of post-graduate research in progress conferences and senior staff movements in the field of modern China studies, published by The China Quarterly

Issues 1 & 2 (August 1970 and February 1971), to be issued free to China Quarterly subscribers, will provide a comprehensive survey of current research on 20th-century China.

The Bulletin will be put on a subscription basis with Issue 3, August 1971. From then on, the August issue will be devoted to news of conferences and senior staff movements in the year to come, while the February issue will list current post-graduate research projects.

The Assistant Editor, Mrs Jill Kitson, is collecting information about current research for inclusion in Issue 1. If you have not yet been contacted, please write as soon as possible with details of your project, set out as in the specimen entry, to:

Modern China Studies International Bulletin

The inter-relationship between the central and provincial governments in China 1958-65

A study of the political and economic relations between the provinces and the centre, with particular reference to the south-east maritime provinces. Evidence from provincial newspapers and unofficial publications during the Cultural Revolution is used to argue that the degree of local independence from Peking was directly related to the grain surplus/deficit of individual provinces. edc (estimated date of completion) 1971.

Proposed annual subscription rates: $4 or 33s (£1.65); to China Quarterly subscribers, $3 or 25s (£1.25)

Single copies: August issue, $1.50 or 12s 6d (62p); February issue, $4.50 or 37s (£1.85)

Subscription office: Research Publications, 11 Nelson Road, London, S.E. 10.
