

Retirement

Alan P. Grimes is retiring June 1986 from the Political Science Department at Michigan State University where he has taught for 37 years.

Award Recipients

National Science Foundation Awards

Under the Political Science Program, Division of Social and Economic Science, the National Science Foundation has made the following fiscal year 1985 awards.

James Alt, Washington University. Domestic and International Sources of Economic Policy: Party Strategies, World Demand, and Oil Shocks in Industrial Economies. $63,276. 24 months.

Lawrence N. Bailis, Brandeis University. Comparative Analysis of the Delivery of Human Services in the Public and Private Sectors. $54,354. 18 months.

Samuel H. Barnes, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. Explorations in Partisan Change Across Nations and Time: A Three-Nation Panel Study. $21,404. 12 months.

Larry Bartels, University of Rochester. Collaborative Research on Momentum in Presidential Primaries. $30,469. 18 months.

Henry Brady, Harvard University. Collaborative Research on Momentum in Presidential Primaries. $24,066. 12 months.

*Paul Burstein, Vanderbilt University. Consequences of Equal Employment Opportunity Legislation. $27,830. 18 months.

Henry W. Chappell, University of South Carolina. Collaborative Research on Theory and Evidence on Party Differences in Macroeconomic Policies and Outcomes. $20,390. 15 months.

Russell Dalton, Florida State University. Environmental Movements in Western Democracies. $61,997. 12 months.

*William Gamson, Boston College. Public Thinking on Political Issues. $11,333. 24 months.

*James Gibson, University of Houston. Legal Policy Consequences of Political Intolerance. $5,000. 12 months.

Edward S. Greenberg, University of Colorado-Boulder. Elite Consensus and Dissensus in the Post-War Period: A Preliminary Empirical Test of a Theory of Policy Regimes. $26,052. 12 months.

Bernard Grofman, University of California-Irvine. Collaborative Research on Studies of the Impact of Laws Relating to Elections and Representation. $23,200. 12 months.

Susan Hansen, University of Pittsburgh. Industrial Policy in the American States. $32,419. 12 months.

Ronald Inglehart, University of Michigan. Social and Political Change in Twelve Western Nations. $89,995. 36 months.

Shanto Iyengar, SUNY-Stony Brook. Political Understanding: How People Explain Politics. $106,013. 24 months.

M. Kent Jennings, University of Michigan-Ann Arbor. Political Orientations Over the Long Term: A Two-Generation Three-Wave Study. $99,934. 24 months.

William Keech, University of North Carolina. Collaborative Research on Theory and Evidence of Party Differences in Macroeconomic Policies and Outcomes. $15,231. 15 months.

Donald Kinder, University of Michigan. Context and Choice in the 1984 American Presidential Election. $52,742. 24 months.

Patrick D. Larkey and Richard A. Smith, Carnegie-Mellon University. Misrepresentation and Justification in State and Local Budgetary Processes. $74,991. 12 months.

Richard R. Lau and Richard A. Smith, Carnegie-Mellon University. $59,993. 18 months.

Russell J. Leng, Middlebury College. Behavioral Correlates of War Data. $32,623. 6 months.

People in Political Science

David Leonard, University of California-Berkeley. Rural Development Policy-Making and Administration in Kenya. $30,000. 9 months.

Thomas E. Mann, American Political Science Association. International Travel Grants to IPSA XIII World Congress. $30,000. 9 months.

Mathew D. McCubbins, University of Texas-Austin. Congress, the President and Appropriations. $53,358. 12 months.

Nicholas Miller, University of Maryland-Baltimore County. Agenda Processes and the Theory of Voting. $39,525. 12 months.

Warren Miller, University of Michigan. Long Term Support for the American National Election Studies, 1984-1988. $997,367. 12 months.

Richard Niemi, University of Rochester. Collaborative Research on Studies of the Impact of Laws Relating to Elections and Representation. $21,775. 12 months.

*Guillermo Owen and Bernard Grofman, University of California-Irvine. Research into the Dynamics of Spatial Voting Games and Games on Graphs. $33,750. 24 months.

*Michael Rice, Aspen Institute. Conference on Communications Technology and the Democratic Process. $3,338. 6 months.

William H. Riker, University of Rochester. Thematic Analysis of Rhetoric Heresetic in the Campaign for the Ratification of the Constitution. $68,991. 24 months.

Bruce M. Russett, Yale University. Extended Deterrence in International Relations. $50,399. 20 months.

Lester Salamon, The Urban Institute. Tools of Government Action. $63,351. 12 months.

Allen Schick, University of Maryland. Budgetary Adjustment to Fiscal Stress in Democratic Regimes. $50,000. 24 months.

Mark Schneider, SUNY-Stony Brook. Bureaucrats, Competition and the Size of Local Government. $40,075. 24 months.

Norman Schofield, University of California-Irvine. Stability of Political Systems and the Spatial Theory of Democracy. $34,606. 12 months.

Richard D. Shingles and Gary Zuk, Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Psychological Requisites of Political Stability in Industrial Democracies. $26,156. 12 months.

Roberta S. Sigel and Cliff Zukin, Rutgers University. Gender and Politics. $64,000. 12 months.

Steven S. Smith, Brookings Institution. Coalition Leaders in Congress. $49,926. 24 months.

Sidney Tarrow, Cornell University. Social Movements, Political Parties and Reform in the Italian Cycle of Protest: 1966-1975. $50,028. 12 months.

David Whiteman, University of South Carolina-Columbia. Congressional Decision Making: Developmental Models for the Acquisition and Use of Analytic Information. $41,473. 24 months.

Doctoral Dissertation Awards

Hayward R. Alker and Joshua Goldstein (candidate), Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: Modelling Long Economic Cycles and International War. $1,510. 14 months.

Walter Dean Burnham and Cathie Jo Martin (candidate), Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: Federal Tax Policy: The Decline of Equity in the Post War Period. $9,245. 12 months.

Raymond D. Duvall and Howard P. Lehman (candidate), University of Minnesota. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: Debt and Development: The Implications of Debt Financing in Developing States. $7,600. 6 months.

William Foltz and Jennifer Widner (candidate), Yale University. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: Harambee, Ethnic Loyalties and the Sources of Kenyan Political Stability, 1969-83. $11,872. 12 months.

Peter Katzenstein and H. Richard Friman (candidate), Cornell University.

Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: Industrial Alliances, the State, and the "New" Protectionism: Textile Protection in the United States, Japan and West Germany, 1952-1982. $3,309. 12 months.

Peter Lange and Randall Kindley (candidate), Duke University. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: The Role of the Shop Councillor in Concertative Wage Regulation. $7,275. 12 months.

Bruce Russett, and Paul K. Huth (candidate), Yale University. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: The Analysis of Extended Deterrence in International Relations. $4,914. 18 months.

Sidney Tarrow and Lynne M. Wozniak, Cornell University. Doctoral Dissertation Research in Political Science: Labor and Social Pacts: Democratic Consolidation in Spain, 1977-1983. $7,010. 10 months. □

---

*Political Science is the secondary funding source for this proposal; another NSF program is primary.

National Science Foundation Graduate Fellowships

NSF has offered 505 college students three-year awards for graduate study in the natural and social sciences, mathematics and engineering. The fellowships provide a stipend of $11,100 per year for full-time graduate study. The following students plan to study political science. Their listings include name of baccalaureate institution and chosen institution for graduate study.

Nancy Elizabeth Burns, University of Kansas. University of Michigan.

Patricia Dawn H. Conley, Washington University. University of Kentucky.

Gerald Herbert Gamm, Harvard University. Same.

John Paul Hernandez, Jr., University of California, Berkeley. Same.

William Ben Hunt, Vanderbilt University. Harvard University.

Pamela L. Metz, Wellesley College. Princeton University.

Karl Philip Mueller, University of Chicago. Princeton University.

John Willard Slocum, University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. University of Chicago.

James David Weiss, Kenyon College. University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Peter Michael Yu, Princeton University. Harvard University.

National Science Foundation Minority Graduate Fellowships

NSF Minority Graduate Fellows are provided a stipend of $11,100 per year for full-time graduate study, in addition to an annual allowance of $5,250 provided to the U.S. institution in lieu of all tuition fees. Fellowships are for a three-year period. The following students of political science and international relations are among the awardees, listed with their baccalaureate institution and chosen graduate institution.

Jesse Rafael Borges, SUNY at Binghamton. Harvard University.

Nata Carol Crawford, Brown University. Harvard University.

Luke Charles Harris, St. Josephs University, Pennsylvania. Princeton University.

Jaime Ramon Pericas, University of Puerto Rico. University of Wisconsin, Madison.

R. Drew Smith, Indiana University, Bloomington. Yale University. □

Pi Sigma Alpha Award

Mark W. Cannon, staff director of the Bicentennial Commission on the Constitution and former Administrative Assistant to the Chief Justice of the United States from 1972 to 1985, where he was the first person to hold the position, has received the National Capital Area Political Science Association 1986 Pi Sigma Alpha Award. The award recognizes outstanding contributions to the interface between political science and public service.

People in Political Science

Wilson Center Fellowships

The Fellowship Committee of the Board of Trustees of the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars has awarded fellowships to 51 individuals from 16 countries in its annual fellowship competition. Among the recipients are the following political scientists, their affiliations, and the titles of the projects they will pursue at the center.

Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies:

Bruce Bassett Parrott, Director of Soviet Studies, School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University. The politics of Soviet national security policymaking.

Asia Program:

Lowell Dittmer, associate professor of political science, University of California, Berkeley. Chinese political culture in the reform epoch.

John Lawrence Scott Girling, Australia, senior fellow in international relations, Australian National University, Canberra. Development and democracy: Southeast Asia with a focus on Thailand.

International Security Studies Program:

Edward A. Kolodziej, professor of political science, University of Illinois. The nuclear deterrence policies of the Western democracies: implications for deterrence theory and nuclear stability.

Walter E. Beach was honored by the National Capital Area Political Science Association.

Bruce R. Kuniholm, associate professor of history and public policy, Duke University. U.S.-Turkish relations since World War II.

Barry Ross Posen, assistant professor of politics and international affairs, Princeton University. Conventional war and inadvertent nuclear escalation.

Richard Newton Rosecrance, Walter S. Carpenter Professor of International and Comparative Studies, Cornell University. International causes of national decline and resurgence with application to the United States.

Claudia Wormann, Federal Republic of Germany. Assistant professor of international relations, Free University of Berlin. Security, technology, and trade: U.S., West-West technology transfer options during the Reagan administration.

East European Program:

Jane Leftwich Curry, professor of political science, Manhattanville College, "Bureaucratization" or rule in the developed states of Eastern Europe.

Najdan Radomir Pasic, Yugoslavia. Professor of political science, University of Belgrade. Interest pluralism in the political system of self-management: the case of Yugoslavia.

Other Awards and Honors

Walter E. Beach of the Brookings Institution was honored by the National Capital Area Political Science Association for his dedicated and longstanding service to the association. A plaque was presented to him by the group's president, Roger Davidson of the Congressional Research Service at NCAPSA's annual meeting on March 1.

Larry L. Berg, founder and director of the University of Southern California's Institute of Politics & Government, has been honored along with the institute in a resolution by the California State Legislature for "bringing about a more politically active citizenry, and for instilling in the new generation a sense of responsibility and capability in improving the operation of the political system."

Alan C. Isaak, professor of political science, Western Michigan University, received the Teaching Excellence Award. The award, which is granted annually by the University's Alumni Association, is based on a university-wide competition and carries a $1,000 honorarium.

Robert J. Jackson, Doreen Jackson, and Nicolas Baxter-Moore have been awarded this year's Secretary of State Canadian Studies Writing Award in government and politics for Politics in Canada: Culture, Institutions, Behaviour and Public Policy (Prentice-Hall Canada Inc.).

William F. Mullen, associate professor of political science, Washington State University, was awarded a 1985 Burlington Northern Faculty Achievement Award and has also accepted a visiting professorship in political science at Nihon University for the spring semester 1986. He will be teaching the U.S. Presidency and Presidential Elections.

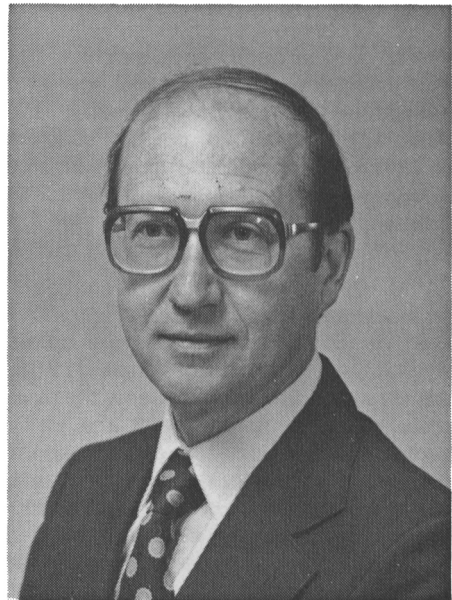

Alan C. Isaak is the recipient of Western Michigan University's Teaching in Excellence Award.

In Memoriam

Wilder W. Crane

Wilder W. Crane, professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, died at his Chippewa Falls home on December 7, 1985. He was 57 years of age and was on medical leave from the university at the time of his death.

All of us who knew Wilder were impressed with his genuine love for and commitment to the state of Wisconsin and in particular, to Chippewa Falls, a small city in the northwestern portion of the state. He served his home community as an executive in his family's business, the Crane Lumber Company, as a member of the Chippewa County Board, and as a member of the Wisconsin

Robert J. Jackson, co-author of the award-winning Canadian politics text, Politics in Canada.