OTHER ACTIVITIES

In recognition of the increasing demand for survey research materials collected in the developing nations of Africa, Asia, and Latin America, the Survey Research Center of the University of California, Berkeley, has established an International Data Library and Reference Service. Under a grant from the National Science Foundation, the Library is organizing itself to perform two services: 1) Existing survey materials—IBM cards and codebooks—are being obtained, prepared, and will be made available to scholars for purposes of secondary analyses. These data will be made available for the very small cost of their duplication; 2) Information on the research capabilities of overseas research agencies and on the methodological problems encountered in overseas research will be collected and made available to scholars.

Scholars and research agencies possessing overseas survey materials are requested to deposit such data in the Library. The Library will cover the costs of reproduction and mailing of the materials.

Requests for information and services should be addressed to: International Data Library and Reference Service, Survey Research Center, University of California, Berkeley, California, 94720.
