Cover picture:

The airship R100 is shown, on the occasion of its successful return trip to Canada in 1930, flying past the Sun Life building in Montreal, a prominent local landmark. It was built by the Airship Guarantee Co. as the private enterprise part of the 1924 British Rigid Airship programme. In this issue Mr. Peter Brooks examines the operational record of civil rigid airships and evaluates their possible performance and cost effectiveness in the framework of contemporary air transport.
